Dear Mr. Bodway:

Thank you for the thoughtful letter to President Reagan from you and the other members of the Board of Directors of the Semiconductor Industry Association. It raises some troublesome aspects of industrial policy as practiced by some countries, particularly preferential access to finance capital in commercializing the results of R&D. It also points to the U.S. stance, which sees a limited role for government and wider one for the market and the private sector.

I am enclosing a text of the communique issued after the Versailles Conference. In the final paragraph, you will note that President Mitterand's report on high technology was considered by the Summit and that a working group was established to develop proposals for consideration by the 1983 Summit. Selection of the U.S. representative is still in train, but you may be sure that our choice will be someone who can effectively project the free market principles of this Administration.

Text of Communiqué Issued After the Versailles Conference

VERSAILLES, France, June 6 (AP) — Following is the official English-language text of the joint communiqué issued today by the seven major industrial nations at the conclusion of the economic conference here:

In the course of our meeting at Versailles, we have deepened our mutual understanding of the gravity of the world economic situation, and we have agreed on a number of objectives for urgent action with a view to improving it.

We affirm that the improvement of the present situation, by a further reduction of inflation and by a return to steady growth and higher levels of employment, will strengthen our joint capacity to safeguard our security, to maintain confidence in the democratic values that we share and to preserve the cultural heritage of our peoples in all their diversity.

Full employment, price stability and sustained and balanced growth are ambitious objectives. They are attainable in the coming years only if we pursue policies which encourage productive investment and technological progress; if, in addition to our own individual efforts, we are willing to join forces, if each country is sensitive to the effects of its policies on others, and if we collaborate in promoting world development.

In this spirit, we have decided to implement the following lines of action:

Growth and employment must be increased. This will be attained on a durable basis only if we are successful in our continuing fight against inflation. That will also help to bring down interest rates, which are now unacceptably high, and to bring about more stable exchange rates.

In order to achieve this essential reduction of real interest rates, we will as a matter of urgency pursue prudent monetary policies and achieve greater control of budgetary deficits.

It is essential to intensify our economic and monetary cooperation. In this regard, we will work toward a constructive and orderly evolution of the international monetary system by a closer cooperation among the authorities representing the currencies of North America, of Japan and of the European community in pursuing medium-term economic and monetary objectives. In this respect, we have committed ourselves to the undertakings contained in the attached statement.

The growth of world trade in all its facets is both a necessary element for the growth of each country and a consequence of that growth. We reaffirm our commitment to strengthening the open multilateral trading system as embodied in the GATT and to maintaining its effective operation.

In order to promote stability and employment through trade and growth, we will resist protectionist pressures and trade-distorting practices. We are resolved to complete the work of the Tokyo Round, and to improve the capacity of the GATT to solve current and future trade problems. We will also work toward the further opening of our markets.

We will cooperate with the developing countries to strengthen and improve the multilateral system, and to expand trading opportunities in particular with the newly industrialized countries. We shall participate fully in the forthcoming GATT ministerial conference in order to take concrete steps toward these ends. We shall work for early agreement on the renewal of the O.E.C.D. export credit consensus.

We agree to pursue a prudent and diversified economic approach to the U.S.S.R. and Eastern Europe, consistent with our political and security interests. This includes actions in three key areas:

First, following international discussions in January, our representatives will work together to improve the international system for controlling exports of strategic goods to these countries and national arrangements for the enforcement of security controls.

Second, we will exchange information in the O.E.C.D. on all aspects of our economic, commercial and financial relations with the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

Third, taking into account existing economic and financial considerations, we have agreed to handle cautiously financial relations with the U.S.S.R. and other Eastern European countries, in such a way as to insure that they are conducted on a sound economic basis, including also the need for commercial prudence in limiting export credits. The development of economic and financial relations will be subject to periodic ex-post review.

The progress we have already made does not diminish the need for continuing efforts to economize on energy, particularly through the price mechanism, and to promote alternative sources, including nuclear energy and coal, in a long-term perspective.

These efforts will enable us further to reduce our vulnerability to interruptions in the supply of energy and instability of prices. Cooperation to develop new energy technologies, and to strengthen our capacity to deal with disruptions, can contribute to our common energy security. We shall also work to strengthen our cooperation with both oil-exporting and oil-importing developing countries.

The growth of the developing countries and the deepening of a constructive relationship with them are vital for the political and economic well-being of the whole world. It is therefore important that a high level of financial flows and official assistance should be maintained and that their amount and their effectiveness should be increased as far as possible, with responsibilities shared broadly among all countries capable of making a contribution.

The launching of global negotiations is a major political objective approved by all participants in the summit. The latest draft resolution, circulated by the Group of the 77 is helpful, and the discussion at Versailles showed general acceptance of the view that it would serve as a basis for consultations with the countries concerned. We believe that there is now a good prospect for the early launching and success of the global negotiations, provided that the independence of the specialized agencies is guaranteed.

At the same time, we are prepared to continue and develop practical cooperation with the developing countries through innovations within the World Bank, through our support of the work of the regional development banks, through progress in countering instability of commodity export earnings, through the encouragement of private capital flows, including international arrangements to improve the conditions for private investment, and through a further concentration of official assistance on the poorer countries.

This is why we see a need for special temporary arrangements to overcome funding problems for I.D.A. 6 and for an early start to consideration for I.D.A. 7. We will give special encouragement to programs or arrangements designed to increase food and energy production in developing countries which have to import these essentials, and to programs to address the implications of population growth.

In the field of balance of payments support, we look forward to progress at the September I.M.F. annual meeting toward settling the increase in the size of the fund appropriate to the coming eighth quota review.

Revitalization and growth of the world economy will depend not only on our own efforts but also to a large extent upon cooperation among our countries and with other countries in the exploitation of scientific and technological development. We have to exploit the immense opportunities presented by the new technologies, particularly for creating new employment. We need to remove barriers to, and to promote, the development of and trade in new technologies both in the public sector and in the private sector. Our countries will need to train men and women in the new technologies and to create the economic, social and cultural conditions which allow these technologies to develop and flourish.

We have considered the report presented to us on these issues by the President of the French Republic. In this context we have decided to set up promptly a working group of representatives of our governments and of the European community to develop, in close consultation with the appropriate international institutions, especially the O.E.C.D., proposals to give help to attain these objectives. This group will be asked to submit its report to us by 31 December 1982. The conclusions of the report and the resulting action will be considered at the next economic summit to be held in 1983 in the United States of America.

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY STATEMENT

1. We accept a joint responsibility to work for greater stability of the world monetary system. We recognize that this rests primarily on convergence of policies designed to achieve lower inflation, higher employment and renewed economic growth ; and thus to maintain the internal and external value of our currencies. We are determined to discharge this obligation in close collaboration with all interested countries and monetary institutions.

2. We are ready to strengthen our cooperation with the I.M.F. in its work of surveillance ; and to develop this on a multilateral basis with special reference to the five currencies constituting the S.D.R.

3. We attach major importance to the role of the I.M.F. as a monetary authority and we will give it <sup>our</sup> full support in its effort to foster stability.

4. We rule out the use of our exchange rates to gain competitive advantages.

5. We are ready, if necessary, to use intervention in exchange markets under the conditions provided for in article IV of the I.M.F. articles of agreement to counter erratic fluctuations.

6. Those of us who are members of E.M.S. consider that these undertakings are complementary to the obligations of stability which they have already undertaken in that framework and recognize the role of the system in the further development of stability in the international monetary system.

7. We are all convinced that greater monetary stability will assist freer flows of goods, services and capital. We are determined to see that greater monetary stability and freer flows of trade and capital reinforce one another in the interest of economic growth and employment.

Dear Mr. President:

We understand that President Mitterand intends to discuss high technology questions at the Summit. His interests appear to center around concerns that France share in advanced technology industries in the coming decades, as well as the impact of technology on national culture, identity, employment and society in general. This series of somewhat defensive concerns provides a positive opportunity for the United States.

The development of advanced technologies will continue to have boundless benefits for mankind, in terms not only of the quality of life, but of employment as well. For maximum benefits to all, the marketplace must be allowed to determine which technologies are accepted commercially, and where production should be located. Trade and investment should flow freely across national borders without government intervention.

The tendency, unfortunately, is the reverse. Many industrialized countries, as well as the principal developing countries, seek to obtain industrial production at the expense of others. Domestic high technology industries are provided artificial environments: virtually unlimited access to capital at lower than market rates, waiver of antitrust rules to foster use of shared research facilities and to permit market allocation, subsidies, protection against imports, and stringent requirements placed on foreign investors. The trend is toward the closing of markets, and toward economic decisions which are increasingly state-guided.

We firmly believe that the uniquely American commitment to the free marketplace is correct and must become the pattern for world trade and investment. This is as fully in the interests of the other Summit countries as it is in our own, although others may not perceive this to be the case. We strongly recommend that the French idea of constituting an international high technology group be adopted to report to the next summit meeting, and that it be used to urge upon the others the wisdom of opening their markets fully to trade and investment in high technology goods and services.

The President

We urge further that, should the idea of forming this group be adopted, you select as the U.S. representative a strong proponent of the free market system who has a strong background in the private sector, and particularly in the information industries.

MEMORANDUM FOR WILLIAM P. CLARK

FROM: CRAIG L. FULLER
SUBJECT: Versailles Briefings

I have had two requests from Cabinet members to provided the President with briefing materials for the Versailles Summit and the NATO meeting. Secretary Block and Ambassador Brock have outlined the points they would like to cover in the attached memos.

Can they be accommodated in the scheduled briefing time today in which trade issues are discussed?

___ yes      ___ no

Secretary Baldrige has also called and asked what role he will have in the briefings. Because of his involvement in Trade, East-West issues, technology and energy, I recommend that he be invited to today's morning session when the "key economic" issues are discussed.

___ agree      ___ disagree

MEMORANDUM TO: Craig Fuller
Assistant to the President for Cabinet Affairs

SUBJECT: Versailles Summit--Agricultural Trade Issues

I would like to meet with the President to discuss the importance of his raising at the Versailles Summit our concerns with the agricultural trade policies of the European Community and Japan. I am certain that if the President raises these issues, our success in dealing with these major problems for U.S. agriculture will be considerably improved. Also, I am concerned how the European Community and Japan will react if the President does not express our concerns. In addition, the President's personal attention to these issues at the Summit will be viewed very positively by our agricultural constituency.

Finally, I will want to mention to the President that during his brief visit in Rome, our efforts to improve trade access for U.S. almonds might arise.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: William E. Brock

SUBJECT: U.S.-European Community Agriculture Problems --
President Thorn's Approach To You at the Versailles Summit

As you know, the United States is pressing forward with six separate GATT trade complaints against the European Community. The EC practice of subsidizing exports of its agricultural commodities has deprived American farmers of export opportunities in poultry, wheat flour, raisins, cling peaches and pears, and other products. These subsidized exports have also depressed world market prices for sugar, beef, and other agricultural commodities. The EC now appears to be willing to discuss some form of limitation on its own practices, but would like the United States to "freeze" the pending GATT complaints against it while it discusses a possible settlement with the U.S.

Accordingly, we have been advised that EC President Gaston Thorn will approach you and suggest that both the EC and the U.S. should "moderate" their difficulties concerning agriculture. Although we doubt whether the EC's political situation (French farmers count on heavy price supports) will enable it to come up with sufficient concessions to make an interesting offer, we see nothing wrong with the initiation of discussions. I would therefore recommend the following response if you are approached by President Thorn asking for "moderation" in connection with our agricultural dispute:

-- I can understand the political importance that agriculture has in the European Community. Our farmers also have a severe economic problem, as U.S. net farm income has dropped from about $32 billion in 1979 to an estimated $15 billion this year. The subsidized agricultural exports from the European Community are adding to our difficulties. Nevertheless, we have no objection to participating in an attempt to explore means by which the agricultural problems between the EC and the United States might be moderated.
