MEMORANDUM FOR DIANNA G. HOLLAND

FROM: PETER J. RUSTHOVEN

SUBJECT: Request from Thomas M. O'Brien
for Presidential Gift Items for
a Rancheros "Reagan Room" Display

Fred and I have discussed this and have decided that, as there have been no further letters or inquiries about this matter, we should cross our fingers and hope that nothing more will need to be done.

Accordingly -- though I have an uncomfortable feeling that I am jinxing myself by doing this -- these materials are being forwarded for filing. Thanks.

Let's discuss your letter -

FOR: FRED F. FIELDING

FROM: PETER J. RUSTHOVEN PR

SUBJECT: Request from Thomas M. O'Brien
for Presidential Gift Items for
a Rancheros "Reagan Room" Display

> 3/5

Kathy Osborne advised Michael Deaver, who in turn advised our office, that the President's friend and fellow Ranchero Thomas M. O'Brien had requested examples of the various gifts the President gives to visitors (e.g., cuff links, stick pins, jelly bean jars, etc.) for use in a proposed "Reagan Room" display at the Rancheros' "Main Building." Deaver's note indicated that this request should be denied via a letter from you to O'Brien.

Accordingly, attached for your review and signature is a proposed letter to O'Brien, with blind copies to Deaver and Osborne. You will recall, however, that we also recently wrote to O'Brien about his numerous letters to the President about the various re-election activities that O'Brien and Antonio Aguilar ("the John Wayne of Mexico," according to Osborne) are thinking of undertaking on the President's behalf. I mention this because Osborne's memorandum on the present matter, which I had not seen at the time we prepared our earlier letter to O'Brien, indicates that both O'Brien and Aguilar have recently been in to see the President, who apparently enjoys their company.

This is fine, of course, but I think we may wish to suggest to Deaver that he make it a point to be in the room the next time these gentlemen visit, so he may graciously steer the conversation away from the topic of any independent electioneering they may wish to do on behalf of the President. Hence, I have prepared a short cover memorandum to that effect for Deaver, with copy to Osborne, to accompany their copies of the current letter to O'Brien.

Dear Mr. O'Brien:

Kathy Osborne advised me of your idea of creating a "Reagan Room" for the Rancheros in which you would like to display gift items that the President sometimes presents to visitors.

While I can understand your enthusiasm for this idea and, as always, appreciate that you are motivated by your friendship and admiration for the President, I am afraid we will be unable to supply the items you requested. Since the beginning of the Administration, we have had to be very sensitive about use of such gifts and other Presidential memorabilia for any purpose other than that for which they are intended -- namely, as personal or, in some cases, official mementos for the persons to whom they are given. In keeping with this policy, we have, for example, turned down numerous requests that such items be donated for auctions to benefit charitable causes. Also, a display of such items might unintentionally cause offense to visitors who did not receive one of the gift items. Finally, as Kathy mentioned to you, some of the gifts are reserved for foreign heads of state, and we believe it would be inappropriate to lend them for any kind of private display.

Again, I am sorry we cannot comply with your request. To my knowledge, however, Presidential gifts of this sort have never been provided by the White House for such a display. Should we do so in this instance, I fear we would offend a number of individuals whose requests for such items have had to be rejected. Your understanding of the reasons we must take this position is greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Attached for your information is a copy of the letter you requested I send to Mr. O'Brien about the above-referenced request.

I also noted, however, that Kathy Osborne's cover memorandum about this matter mentioned that both O'Brien and his friend, Antonio Aguilar, have visited with the President in the not-too-distant past. In light of our recent letter to O'Brien cautioning against his writing the President about any independent re-election campaigning O'Brien and Aguilar may undertake, you may want to join any future visits the two of them may have with the President, as a guard against inadvertent conversation about this topic.

SUBJECT: TOM O'BRIEN

Tom is a monthly correspondent with RR and a Rancho buddy. He has been in to see the President -- most recently on December 12 with Antonio Aguilar (the John Wayne of Mexico).

Tom called this morning to tell me of a project he wants to put together for the Rancheros Main Building -- a "Reagan Room."

He would like to have some special display cases made to show gift items which RR gives out here at the White house such as cuff links, stick pins, jelly bean jar, etc. He indicated he wanted two of each -- one to show in the Presidential wrapping and the other the actual gift (although the wrapped item could be empty and just show the wrapping paper).

I advised Mr. O'Brien that some of the items definitely would not be available because they were used only for heads of state, etc., and advised that we've never received this type of request before and that I would get back to him.

The President is very fond of Tom O'Brien (and Antonio Aguilar) and it appears they will both be active in a Presidential campaign if the President chooses to run.

Please advise. Thanks.

The President
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, District of Columbia

Dear Mr. President,

Like you, I am hearing impaired, and I am proud of what the United States has endeavored to advocate the rights of the handicapped citizens.

I have volunteered a lot of my sparetime and as the Chairman of the Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet Stamp Committee, I had a nice working relationship with the United States Postal Service in the inception and the plannings for the Gallaudet stamp. Among the plannings, they are the unveiling of the Gallaudet stamp design at Gallaudet College on June 26, 1982 and the first day stamp dedication ceremony at the American School for the Deaf on June 10, 1983. The Gallaudet stamp has the honor of being the first deafness-related stamp in United States history, and I am very proud to have volunteered in undertaking an important role in this endeavor.

I am very much aware of the fact that you, as the President of the United States, are a receipt of a personalized Presentation Album at every first day stamp dedication ceremonies and I wonder as to what you do with those albums. Could you consider the possibility of giving your Gallaudet Presentation Album to Gallaudet College, of which you are the Patron? Not only that Gallaudet College will be a good place for the perpetual display of the Album, it will also show that it came from a hearing-impaired President and that the Album of the first American deafness-related stamp has a fine home on the Gallaudet College campus, the only liberal arts college for the deaf in the world.

If things can be materialized, I will be happy to correspond with anybody you so designate on this matter.

Thanking you in advance for your time in reading this letter, I remain.

Sincerely yours,

Kenneth S. Rothschild, Chairman
Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet Stamp Committee

Dear Mr. President:

I want to sincerely thank you and Nancy for the set of glasses charting Wall Street. What fond memories they brought to mind! I've always felt lucky to have a birthday at Christmastime, and to be remembered by good friends makes the holiday season extra special.

Ann and I were both extremely disappointed not to be able to join you for New Year's at the Annenberg's. I especially missed the opportunity for some good golf!

Ann joins me in wishing you and Nancy the very best for the New Year.

With kindest personal regards.

Sincerely,

Jan

PERSONAL

The President and Mrs. Ronald Reagan
The White House
Washington, D. C. 20500

Dear Mr. President and Nancy:

The Boehm plate you so thoughtfully sent us for Christmas is an absolutely magnificent reminder of what a pleasure it is to be working with you on these large enterprises. It will always be a very beautiful and much treasured part of our home, and we are deeply appreciative in every way.

But, most of all, I would like to say again how grateful I am for the great privilege of working with you and participating to a small extent in the major and vitally needed changes you have made in America, and indeed in the world. It is a wonderful thing really to see so many of the changes that we all could see in the past were so needed in the United States actually taking place, as they did under your leadership in California. Normally, as you know better than any of us, there is a high degree of frustration in simply pointing out the problems and the courses needed to solve those problems, so it is all the more exhilarating and gratifying to see those changes actually happening and bringing about the results that we were all sure would follow if we could only get the changes made.

It is quite an achievement to have reversed in many ways the failed policies, and upset the conventional wisdom of the past, and to have accomplished so much along that difficult path in such a short time. So, I am not only enormously grateful for the opportunity to work with you, but also for what you have done to change the course of history, and to change it so much for the better.

Jane joins me in sending our very best wishes to you both for a most Happy New Year, and for continued good health and happiness.

Very respectfully,

Thanking President for Christmas Gift
Jays.

The box of Candy which arrived Christmas Eve - was an unexpected but most welcome addition! Mary Anne.

Dear Ronnie.

I have often wondered how those Saccharin Pens work and now I know---what a hell of an idea.

I have written for more and when they arrive I will send some on to you to give to your sweet toothed friends.

Thanks for your thoughtfulness. You never cease to amaze me with your schedule you find time for your friends.

Please give our love to Nancy as well as yourself.

Dear Mr. President:

Thank you for the cuff links with the seal of your office, a gift you sent me as one of your appointed United States Attorneys following our recent visit to the White House. I shall treasure them.

I was also pleased at your suggestion that we do more to enforce the obscenity laws. I agree and have been corresponding with my superiors at the Department of Justice about the track downers are getting on Playboy channel of their cable-TV!!

Thank heavens you are running again. The Democrats are having fits about your proposed Des Moines trip Feb 20. See copy of this morning's Des Moines Register article which will tickle you as it did us.

I think you should repeat, again & again, your response (my favorite) to those who question your age: "Well, I still put my socks outstanding up!" A picture would help us 56 yr. olds
Good luck Dick Turner

Reagan's caucus-day visit a clever play (and a boost for Jepsen's campaign)

By DAVID YEPSEN

PRESIDENT REAGAN showed last week why he will be a tough politician to beat this fall. His decision to campaign in Iowa is one of the better political strokes seen around here in a long time, and it's sent the Democrats to blathering.

A publicity stunt, huffs the Democratic state chairman. A sophomoric grandstand play, puffs Gary Hart.

A publicity stunt in politics? A grandstand play in a campaign? A sophomoric politician? Why, to hear the Democrats talk, you'd think such things didn't happen in electioneering. Judging by how they are squealing, Reagan stuck 'em good.

They worked hard to get a show here, only to have the old actor grab the spotlight by putting another ring under the circus tent.

In one sense, the Democrats' complaining is a little puzzling. Before this

ON CAPITOL HILL

A commentary

campaign is over, they're likely to be complaining that Reagan won't come out and fight, that he's got a "Rose Garden" strategy. (At least that is usually the charge leveled at incumbent presidents in campaigns.)

So what happens when he does campaign? The Democrats say he shouldn't be campaigning.

But it illustrates the president's political prowess, because it shows, once again, that Reagan and his staff recognize the pulpit they have and how to use it.

Much has been written about Reagan's effective use of the presidency to communicate, and this can go down as another example. On Jan. 9, Ed Rollins, Reagan's campaign manager was in Iowa and said the president wouldn't campaign here.

Local Republicans, led by Gov. Terry Branstad, urged a reconsideration of that decision, citing a need to boost attendance at GOP caucuses that night, the need to counter the year-long barrage of anti-Reagan rhetoric from the Democrats in Iowa, and the need to steal a little of the Democratic thunder.

It's not all a presidential campaign deal, either. A large part of this can be put down as Reagan's coming to help Senator Roger Jepsen get re-elected. Jepsen's Democratic opponent, Congressman Tom Harkin, will come out of the caucuses with a list of the 100,000 most active Democrats in Iowa. Without a boost such as Reagan can provide, Jepsen would get only 30,000 GOP names from poorly attended Republican meetings.

That's giving Harkin a big advantage in raising money and in finding workers. Reagan's trip will help Jepsen counter that. Keeping Jepsen in the Senate will help the GOP keep control of the Senate, which would make Reagan's second term a bit more pleasant than a Senate controlled by the Democrats.

The trip could mean one other thing. Rollins has now got the "Iowa trip" out of the way early in the season, so we might not see Reagan back here for the rest of the campaign, especially if he does the feedlot visit and "major farm speech" bit while he's here.

Everybody around Iowa right now has got a "major farm speech" to give. Ever notice how you never hear a "minor farm speech" in a campaign.

Actually, the modern-day "major farm speech" is really a foreign-policy address, so such lectures tend to be more interesting than the arcane discussions of parity and target prices that were main themes of farm talks a while back.

Reagan is effective at what the Democrats are calling "publicity stunts." Actually, it's fair to say it is a form of presidential leadership. Political scientist Richard Neustadt once wrote that the power of the presidency is the power to persuade.

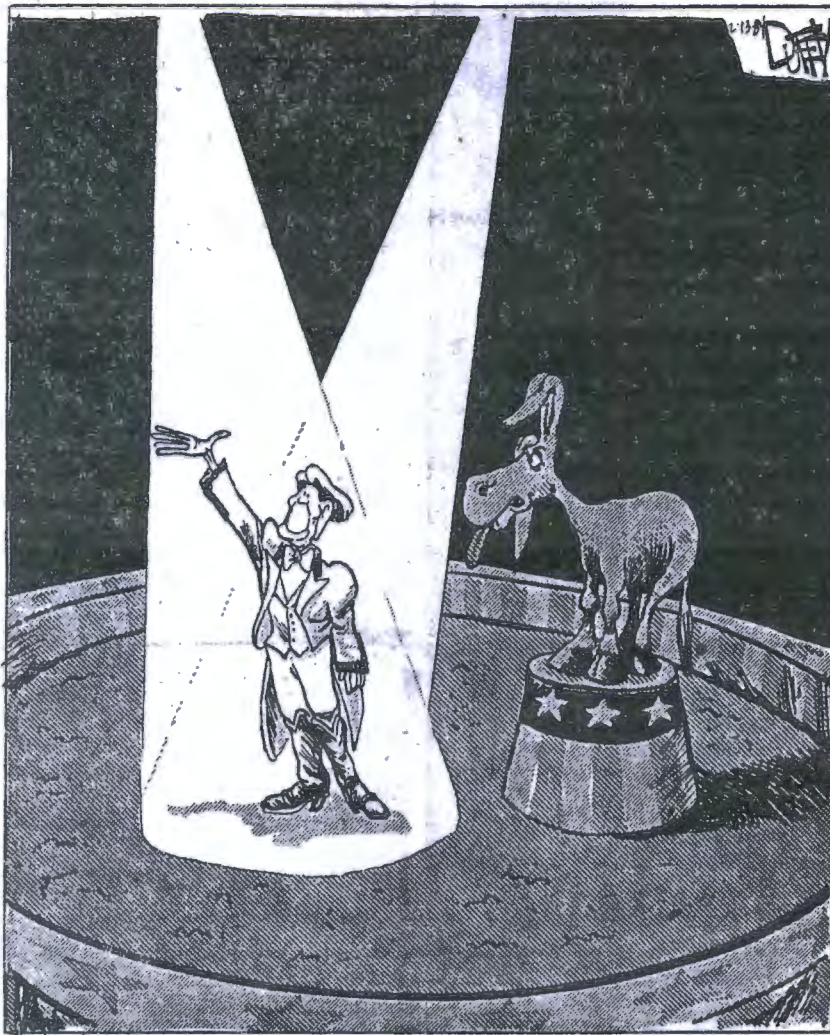

Regardless of what you think of his policies, Reagan has to be considered an effective president in the use of the media. His acting background serves him well in this "information age."

It sure seems that he knew just when the Democrats would start their last reel in Iowa.

Many Democrats and liberals think too much is made of such "stunts," and say reporters avoid more more substantive things.

Such criticisms are usually heard from two sources: (1) politicians who are losing a campaign and who are shopping around for a scapegoat, and

The Democrats worked hard to get a show going here, only to have the old actor grab the spotlight by putting another ring under the circus tent.

(2) politicians who know that reporters are thin-skinned and by twitting us hope to get us to write about them.

The latest practitioner is Gary Hart. Last week in Council Bluffs, Hart gave a speech in which he said "something is very wrong in our democracy. Elections have become a circus, where entertainment is the primary purpose and the horizon of vision is limited to the next ring. Form is elevated over substance, technique and audacity are celebrated over veracity and principle.

"The establishment politics raises pragmatism to an ideology, makes expediency a virtue. The coins of the realm in our current politics are the gimmick, the slick promise, the placebo."

Hart, you may recall, is the candidate who drove a tractor to the recent farm forum in Ames. That's not a gimmick? To avoid any mistakes in that "circus," Hart's schedule for earlier in the day called for him to "practice driving tractor" in the morning.

There is no love between Hart and California Senator Alan Cranston. It probably goes beyond their competition for the same wing of the Democratic Party to a rivalry inside the Senate between an established senator and a young "upstart."

Hart is enjoying a boomlet right now. People are talking about him as a result of his performance in the debates. But Cranston's campaign is moving to douse Hart's spark by saying Hart isn't a distance runner in this race.

Mark Cohen, one of Cranston's delegate hunters, said last week that Hart has not filed full delegate slates in many states. He said that in the six primaries following Iowa and New Hampshire, there are 366 delegates to be selected and Hart has filed for only 189 delegates, while George McGovern has filed for 188.

"What's the use of catching fire if there's nothing to keep the fire going," Cohen asked.

Hart doesn't deny the count but says that his opponents are getting desperate and that he will be able to get delegates to switch, once he does well in Iowa and New Hampshire. The Cranston people say that's not likely.

One other sign of Hart trouble is his money. Again, while he is enjoying a boomlet now, can it last without more cash? Kathy Bushkin, his press secretary, confirmed that Hart's staff is going without pay for a while in order to dump more money into television commercials. She said they would all be paid later.

Hart's people say Cranston has peaked and is fading. Cranston's people say they are better organized than Hart and so have better nets to catch voters.

Memo to Lee and Van Buren counties: Ask "I'm just a country boy" Lowell Junkins, the majority leader in the Iowa Senate, how he likes all those limousine rides he gets with Des Moines businessmen Bill Knapp and John Ruan, who want the Legislature to help build a World Trade Center in Des Moines.

Senator Jepsen is hot about accounts saying that he's just making his first appearance in Algona in five years. He says he's been there three times during his term, and his staff says that's pretty good. They even produce pictures of Jepsen in front of the Algona City Hall to prove their point.

"If Jepsen hasn't been in Algona, then someone has been up there impersonating him," says press secretary Jim Lafferty. "We'd better have the FBI investigate."

Maria Menne, the Iowa coordinator for Reubin Askew's campaign, was waiting for an interview with a Newsweek reporter last week when he called to say he was lost. He asked her for directions.

Menne replied, "Why don't you tell me your questions and I'll decide whether I'll give you the directions or not."
