ASSOCIATE COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Presidential Remarks: Prime Minister
Ciriaco de Mita of Italy Departure Statement

Counsel's office has reviewed the above-referenced Presidential remarks, and we have no legal objection to their delivery. We suggest, however, that the reference to the "signing" of the INF Treaty at page 1, paragraph 3, be changed to the "entry into force" of the INF Treaty.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: PRIME MINISTER CIRIACO DE MITA OF ITALY
DEPARTURE STATEMENT
TUESDAY, JUNE 14, 1988

Ladies and gentlemen:

It has been my great pleasure to meet today with Prime Minister De Mita of Italy who is no stranger to the White House. But this is the first time that he comes as Prime Minister, and I want to begin by offering our warmest congratulations.

I regard this visit as extremely important. As members of the Atlantic Alliance and as major industrial states, the United States and the Republic of Italy have much to discuss and much to do. Accordingly, our discussions today were wide-ranging and extremely useful.

Although our agenda was far too long for me to discuss in detail, let me give you some of the highlights. First, I gave the Prime Minister my views on where our relationship stands with the Soviet Union. I told him that we are very pleased with the progress that we have made on the broad agenda and, of course, with the ^{entry into force} ~~signing~~ of the I.N.F. treaty. I also told him of my firm belief that without Italy's courage, determination, and support throughout I.N.F. deployment and negotiations, there would have been no treaty. In arms control and the other areas on our agenda much work remains to be done; we will continue to depend -- and gratefully so -- upon Italy's support as an ally and advice as a friend.

One of the important issues before our Alliance is where we will redeploy the 401st Tactical Fighter Wing. Italy's willingness at NATO invitation to consider accepting the planes on its soil is typical of Italy's serious approach toward its Alliance commitments. Its willingness to do its part, to share the risks and responsibilities as well as the benefits of NATO membership, is exemplary.

The Prime Minister and I will meet again shortly in Toronto, where we will participate in the Economic Summit. We reviewed some of the issues that we expect to discuss there, including Italy's welcome initiative to strengthen international environmental protection activities.

Prime Minister De Mita and I also talked about our mutual desire for a peaceful end to the conflict between Iran and Iraq and for a comprehensive peace in the Middle East. I know there is deep interest and concern among the Italian people on these issues, and we appreciate deeply the positive role that the government of Italy has played in that troubled region.

Another issue of deep concern to all of us is international terrorism. In the last 6 months Italy has been the victim of two shocking incidents -- the death of one of your close friends, Mr. Prime Minister, on which I want to extend again my deepest condolences, and an attack on a U.S.O. club in Naples, in which an American servicewoman was killed. These incidents, terrible as they are, only serve to strengthen our resolve; and they remind us of the importance of our cooperative efforts against the inhuman scourge of terrorism.

Mr. Prime Minister, in closing I must confess to a grave misjudgment concerning our two countries. About 6 months ago I said that U.S.-Italian relations could hardly be better. But remarkably, they are. In fact, I believe that we have made significant progress in a number of areas, and I am confident that we will continue this trend for the foreseeable future.

Mr. Prime Minister, we are indeed pleased and honored to have you as our guest.

The NSC concurs with the draft departure remarks for the De Mita OWV. However, we ask again that the joke about "I thought relations could not be better" be omitted. We believe that the subtlety may be lost in the translation.

Ladies and gentlemen:

It has been my great pleasure to meet today with Prime Minister De Mita of Italy who is no stranger to the White House. But this is the first time that he comes as Prime Minister, and I want to begin by offering our warmest congratulations.

I regard this visit as extremely important. As members of the Atlantic Alliance and as major industrial states, the United States and the Republic of Italy have much to discuss and much to do. Accordingly, our discussions today were wide-ranging and extremely useful.

✓ Although our agenda was far too long for me to discuss in detail, let me give you some of the highlights. First, I gave the Prime Minister my views on where our relationship stands with the Soviet Union, ^{and where it is going.} I told him that we are very pleased with the progress that we have made on the broad agenda and, of course, with the ^{entry into force} signing of the I.N.F. treaty. I also told him of my firm belief that without Italy's courage, determination, and support throughout I.N.F. deployment and negotiations, there would have been no treaty. In arms ^{reductions} ~~control~~ and the other areas on our agenda much work remains to be done; we will continue to depend -- and gratefully so -- upon Italy's support as an ally and advice as a friend.

One of the important issues before our Alliance is where we will redeploy the 401st Tactical Fighter Wing. Italy's willingness at NATO invitation to consider accepting the planes on its soil is typical of Italy's serious approach toward its Alliance commitments. Its willingness to do its part, to share the risks and responsibilities as well as the benefits of NATO membership, is exemplary.

The Prime Minister and I will meet again shortly in Toronto, where we will participate in the Economic Summit. We reviewed some of the issues that we expect to discuss there, including Italy's welcome initiative to strengthen international environmental protection activities.

Prime Minister De Mita and I also talked about our mutual desire for a peaceful end to the conflict between Iran and Iraq and for a comprehensive peace in the Middle East. I know there is deep interest and concern among the Italian people on these issues, and we appreciate deeply the positive role that the government of Italy has played in that troubled region.

Another issue of deep concern to all of us is international terrorism. In the last 6 months Italy has been the victim of two shocking incidents -- the death of one of your close friends, Mr. Prime Minister, on which I want to extend again my deepest condolences, and an attack on a U.S.O. club in Naples, in which an American servicewoman was killed. These incidents, terrible as they are, only serve to strengthen our resolve; and they remind us of the importance of our cooperative efforts against the inhuman scourge of terrorism.

De Mita [Mr. Prime Minister, in closing I must confess to a grave misjudgment concerning our two countries. About 6 months ago I said that U.S.-Italian relations could hardly be better. But remarkably, they are.] In fact, I believe that we have made significant progress in a number of areas, and I am confident that we will continue this trend for the foreseeable future.

Mr. Prime Minister, we are indeed pleased and honored to have you as our guest.

MEMORANDUM FOR TONY DOLAN

FROM: PAUL SCHOTT STEVENS PS

SUBJECT: Departure Statement for Italian PM De Mita

Attached is the Department of State's proposed draft of Presidential departure remarks on the occasion of the visit of Italian Prime Minister De Mita on June 14.

We have no substantive problem with this draft, and we pass it on for your consideration.

We note, however, that the precise language on Italy's expected acceptance of the 401st Tactical Fighter Wing may have to be adjusted next week according to its exact status in the Italian parliamentary process. We have also marked a passage at the end that may be infelicitously phrased.

SUGGESTED REMARKS FOR PRESIDENT REAGAN
AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE WHITE HOUSE MEETING

Ladies and Gentlemen:

It has been my great pleasure to meet today with Prime Minister De Mita of Italy. Our visitor is certainly no stranger; he has been our guest at the White House several times in the past. However, this is the first time that he comes as Prime Minister, and I want to begin by offering our warmest congratulations.

I regard this visit as extremely important. As members of the Atlantic Alliance and as major industrial states, the United States and the Republic of Italy have many important issues before us. Our discussions today were wide-ranging, serious and extremely useful.

Although our agenda was far too long for me to discuss in detail, let me give you a flavor of some of the highlights. First, I gave the Prime Minister my views on where our relationship stands with the Soviet Union. I told him that we are very pleased with the progress that we have made on the broad agenda and, of course, with the signing of the historic INF treaty. I also told him of my firm belief that without Italy's courage, determination and support throughout INF deployment and negotiations, there would have been no treaty. In arms control and the other areas on our agenda much work remains to be done; we will continue gratefully to depend upon Italy's support as an ally and advice as a friend.

SUBJECT: Departure Statement for Italian PM De Mita

At Tab I is a memo from you to Tony Dolan transmitting State's proposed draft of a Presidential departure statement for Italian Prime Minister De Mita on June 14. Ty Cobb and I have looked it over and found no substantive problem, although the language on the transfer of the 401st TFW may need to be adjusted next week according to its exact status in the Italian parliamentary process at the time. Also, John Negroponte caught some possibly infelicitous phrasing, which we have marked.

R Ty Cobb concurs.
