STATUS OF SAUDI AWACS PROPOSAL

17

The Administration submitted to the Congress August 24 its proposal to sell to Saudi Arabia airborne early warning and aerial refueling aircraft and F-15 enhancement items. The $8.5 billion air defense package consists of the following items:

- Five E-3A Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) Aircraft and associated support, spares, training and ground environment improvements ($5.8 billion).
- 101 ship-sets of conformal fuel tanks (CFTs) for F-15s ($110 million).
- Six KC-707 tankers (with an option for two more) ($2.4 billion).
- 1,177 AIM-9L (Sidewinder) air-to-air missiles ($200 million).

We recognize that Saudi acquisition of this equipment is of concern to Israel. The air defense package has been designed to meet legitimate Saudi defense requirements. Sale of the E-3A AWACS aircraft and enhanced F-15s to Saudi Arabia will only marginally improve Arab military capabilities vis-a-vis Israel. With or without the improvements, Israel will continue to be capable of decisively defeating any potential combination of Arab opponents, on all fronts, at any level of hostilities.

We have received four types of assurances from the Saudis, covering physical security, data sharing, restrictions on third party transfers, and restrictions on the area of operation.

The 20-day informal notification period will not begin until September 9 when Congress returns from recess. During the 30-day formal notification period which follows, both houses would have to pass resolutions disapproving the sale in order to block it.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

BRIEFING PAPER

Normalization of Relations Between Egypt and Israel

Egyptian-Israeli normalization since the signing of the Peace Treaty in March 1979 generally has proceeded well. Israel has attached great importance to the pace of normalization as a tangible measure of Egypt's commitment to their new relationship. The Egyptians have not expanded cultural contacts or tourism to the degree Israelis would like. For its part, Israel has insisted that there not be any linkage between other developments in the region, (East Jerusalem, its settlement policies, or positions in the autonomy negotiations) and the pace of normalization. Sadat is trusted, but the Israelis worry about the commitment to normalization of those in the bureaucracy and the intelligentsia.

Sadat was very embarrassed by the Israeli raid on the Iraqi nuclear reactor which occurred only three days after his meeting with Begin and discomfited by subsequent events in Lebanon. The normalization process, however, has continued, and Begin and Sadat met in Alexandria August 25-26. This moderation is largely attributable to Egypt's desire to avoid any actions which could jeopardize completion of Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai next April.

The Egyptians nevertheless see normalization as implicitly linked to Israeli actions, even though the Camp David Accords make no such connection. Many Egyptian officials believe the pace of normalization should be related specifically to progress in the autonomy negotiations, but Sadat, thus far, has decided otherwise on most occasions. If Sadat decides to slow significantly normalization, it is not likely he would do so before the return of Sinai in April 1982.

Despite these differing perspectives, there has been a significant evolution in the bilateral relationship since the Peace Treaty was signed. Ambassadors were exchanged in February, 1980, and traffic across the interim border at El Arish was begun. Direct air flights between Tel Aviv and Cairo began in March, 1980, and have expanded to seven round-trip flights weekly. Trade, commercial and cultural agreements were concluded, quickly approved by the Knesset, and ratified by the People's Assembly in May of this year. Egypt supplies 2 million tons of oil annually to Israel, at a value of $750 million in 1980. Some specific activities will inevitably be adversely affected by Egyptian concern over events such as the Israeli raids on Baghdad and Beirut. In general, however, Egypt and Israel seem to be moving toward greater cooperation, particularly in agricultural development and health projects. We will encourage and endeavor to support such cooperation.

ISRAELI EFFORT TO PRESSURE SOVIET JEWISH EMIGRANTS TO SETTLE IN ISRAEL

Background: Since the Soviet Government opened the doors to limited Jewish emigration in 1971, well over 50% of the Jewish emigrants have regularly chosen not to resettle in Israel but to immigrate instead to the U.S. and to other third countries -- usually because of close or distant relatives or close friends already living elsewhere. The Israeli Government has never been pleased with this fact, and has been under continuing pressure from its staunch Zionist circles to make sure that Jews who get out of the Soviet Union go to Israel, whether they want to or not.

In recent weeks the Israelis have taken steps to do just that, by changing the procedures they follow in Vienna (first stop for Soviet Jews leaving the USSR) to pressure Soviet Jews to settle in Israel. The Austrian Government, which provides transit facilities and assistance for the Soviet Jewish emigrants, has told the Israelis their new procedures are unacceptable as denying the Jewish emigrants their right to freedom of choice. The State Department, when informed of the new procedures by the Israeli Ambassador, did not comment on the procedures but strongly reaffirmed the U.S. Government's commitment to the right of freedom of choice for the Jewish emigrants. The USG underwrites resettlement costs for Soviet Jewish emigrants who go to Israel as well as for those who settle in the U.S.

Israel has serious economic problems: Inflation is measured in triple digits. The 1981 balance of payments deficit is expected to be $5 billion (it was $3.8 billion in 1980). These problems reflect growing private consumption and the Israeli Government's massive deficit spending for defense, debt repayment, commodity subsidies, and social services. Higher import prices and depressed export markets have exacerbated the balance of payments problem. Only strong corrective measures can help solve these problems.

Israel's comprehensive indexing system enables the economy to function despite triple digit inflation. Political costs are high, however, and inflation is now the main economic target of the Begin Government. The Government introduced an austerity program in late 1979 to deal with the chronic balance of payments problem. That program involved real wage cuts, and thereby reduced import demand and stimulated exports. The U.S. supported that program, which succeeded in arresting the balance of payments slide and would, given time, have reduced inflation. Austerity has its political costs, however, and the program ultimately led to the Finance Minister's resignation and the June 1981 elections.

Prior to the elections, Begin's new Finance Minister, Yoram Aridor, switched economic targets to focus on inflation. Motivated in part by electoral considerations, Aridor cut sales taxes on consumer durables and cars and increased subsidies on basic commodities and energy, which led to increased imports and the beginnings of a consumer boom. As a result, inflation declined to about 3 percent in the month before the election, compared to the prior average 10 percent per month.

A policy of stable economic growth can mitigate both inflation and balance of payments problems. Such a policy will require Government budget restraint, reduction of consumption subsidies, and encouragement of the private sector. Otherwise the current anti-inflation program will lead to larger balance of payment deficits, which the U.S. will ultimately be called on to finance. Our assistance programs to date, averaging $2.2 billion in recent years in addition to the $3 billion Sinai redeployment package, have been critical in helping meet Israel's foreign exchange requirements. A new austerity program, because of its high political prices, can be implemented only early in the new Begin Administration.

U.S. ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE TO ISRAEL

We have been providing Israel with $785 million annually in economic assistance since fiscal year (FY) 1978 and have proposed that level for FY 1982. This assistance takes the form of transfers of cash from the Economic Support Fund. Prior to FY 1981, approximately two-thirds of the total package ($525 million a year) was a grant and the remainder ($260 million) a long term, low interest loan. For the current year Congress mandated an all grant program as a response to Israel's concerns about its heavy external debt burden. We believe that, with sound economic management, Israel should have no difficulty in servicing its debt. We therefore have proposed a return to the 2/3 grant - 1/3 loan formula in FY 1982, but Congress will likely again mandate an all grant program.

We have never conditioned assistance on Israeli Government willingness to carry out specified economic policies and programs. However, our aid is intended to help Israel cover short-term balance of payments deficits while the government takes steps to strengthen its financial position. The objective is to enable Israel to make do with less aid in future years without suffering a lower standard of living. In this light, we are not satisfied with the efforts that the Government of Israel is making to resolve the difficult balance of payments problems which gave rise to a need for our substantial economic assistance.

We expect to receive Israel's aid request for U.S. FY 1983 about the time of Prime Minister Begin's visit. Given the worsening balance of payments situation this year, we can anticipate that a case will be made for increasing the economic and military aid level. If the question of economic aid levels should arise, we should tell Begin that we are prepared to consider Israel's FY 1983 request in light of Israel's needs and our own (USG) budget and to review it with a high level Israeli delegation as in previous years. We hope the Israeli submission will reflect a program to attack inflation other than through increased consumption subsidies and to bring Israel's international accounts into better balance.
