Statement in response to queries regarding next steps in Lebanon:

FBI 06-12

I think we need to recognize that we have made significant progress in promoting stability and fostering reconciliation in Lebanon. The Government of Lebanon is prepared to broaden its political base and has called on the opposition to join in a Government of National Unity. The presence of the MNF has provided the support which the GOL needs to deal confidently and fairly with the legitimate demands of the opposition. That presence has also deterred direct and overt Syrian aggression in the Lebanese problem. We still face the continuing problem of state supported terrorism and we are working hard on this problem as it affects Lebanon and other strategic interests.

We have a commitment in Lebanon which we intend to meet and in the next few weeks my Administration will be working closely with the Congress to arrive at an understanding which will allow us to further the progress we have made toward our objectives in the Middle East.

SIGNED AND MAILED

Dear Mr. Broyhill:

This is in reference to your letter of March 26, 1984, addressed to Mr. H. B. Oglesby, Special Assistant to the President, with the attached enclosure from Ms. Stephanie Jernigan, concerning her Lebanese friend who is fearful of returning to Lebanon because of the violence in that country.

There is no separate policy for Lebanese as a group. Under section 208 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, any alien physically present in the United States may apply for asylum if such alien believes he/she would be subject to persecution in his/her home country on account of race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion. Each application is decided on its individual merits based on the nature of the claim and the evidence, if any, submitted in support thereof.

Ms. Jernigan indicates that her friend is well educated and desires to remain and work in the United States. If her friend desires to become a permanent resident of the United States based on his education and training, he may be eligible for a preference classification in the issuance of an immigrant visa. A prospective employer desiring an alien's services may file a visa petition in the alien's behalf on the enclosed Form I-148. Such petition must be accompanied by a certification issued by the Secretary of Labor to the effect that like labor is unavailable in the United States and that the alien's employment would not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States similarly employed. Application for labor certification should be made by the prospective employer through the local office of the State Employment Service. The attached Form ETA-750 may be utilized for that purpose.

In the event a visa petition is filed and approved on behalf of an alien and an immigrant visa is immediately available at that time, such alien may, if otherwise eligible, file an application for adjustment of status to that of a permanent resident provided that he has not engaged in unauthorized employment in this country.

Honorable James T. Broyhill

Enclosed is a copy of the latest report from the Department of State which reflects the current availability of immigrant visas. Also enclosed is a publication entitled "United States Immigration Laws: General Information."

I hope this information will be helpful to you in responding to Ms. Jernigan.

Sincerely,

This matter will be involving assistance from officials with the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

I have enclosed the letter that Ms. Jernigan wrote to President Reagan so that an appropriate response may be drafted.

Dear Mr. Reagan,

I know you are very busy, and especially now as this is an election year, and I also know that you may never see this letter, but whoever opens and reads this first may know what can be done or what steps can be taken to help in my problem. If possible, I hope you can read this yourself personally.

I have a very dear friend from Lebanon who is here in the United States, he has already had his visa renewed, and in July he has to leave our country. He wants to stay here in America, as he cannot return to Lebanon because of all the trouble there. Can't something be done to let him stay here, where he can work and make a decent life for himself, in a country that has no war?

It doesn't seem fair to send someone back into the terrible trouble they have over there. After all, we allowed the Vietnam refugees, and the Cubans that Castro let leave Cuba come here and have another chance to make a better life for themselves. He is not a person of low character, he is very well educated, in fact, he is, or was, a medical representative in his country.

Please do something to let him stay here. Don't make him have to go back to a war torn country where on days, in Beirut, where his father and mother, are, and where he would have to return, his life could be snuffed out so easily. He was kidnapped by the Palastinians and held prisoner for ten months, where he was beaten unmercifully time and time again, just because he was on the Christian side. By God's love and grace he was rescued from that. He is under medical treatment here now because of the damage

they did to him during that time.
His doctor here will provide you with any papers necessary to aid you in this matter. He has already lost two homes in Lebanon because of the war. Just a couple of weeks ago a bomb exploded in his bedroom and blew up his home, had he been there he would have lost his life there. His Father and mother were in the hall and barely got out alive.

Please, don't make him lose his home here, let him start a fresh life. Don't send him back into that hell.

I know America can't let every person in the world, with a sad tale stay here, but this isn't just a sad story, this is a special situation. I love my country and I am very proud to be an American, and I am so glad we have no war of this kind here.
I have not had to lose my home and everything I own because of a senseless war I have no control over. We are the best country in the world, and we are a compassionate people. I am asking you to be compassionate in this situation. Let him get his residency here, in the required time, but let him stay and work as that time passes, and give him a chance to start his life over. This time in a safe atmosphere, and with God's help and yours, he will finally feel a little security.

Thank you so much and may God richly bless you for all you do.

Sincerely,
Stephanie Jernigan

P.S.

I would appreciate your answer
as soon as possible because as I said earlier our time is so short.
Thank you again.

MEMORANDUM TO: Bud McFarlane, National Security Advisor
FROM: J.F.M. James F. McGovern, Staff Director and Chief Counsel, Senate Armed Services Committee
SUBJECT: Planning Now Against a Future Congressionally Mandated Withdrawal from Lebanon

ISSUE

There will be increasing domestic political pressure in the United States, Italy and Great Britain (fueled by more MNF casualties) for withdrawal of all MNF land forces. Such pressure will intensify as future ceasefire agreements are achieved and then broken. President Assad will be convinced (if he is not already) that he can simply wait us out relying upon predictable Western impatience for quick solutions (particularly in an election year) to compel our eventual withdrawal. How then does President Reagan convince President Assad that we have the public support to remain as long as it takes to achieve our negotiating objectives?

DISCUSSION

At the risk of stating the obvious, it is my view that even if we win the first Congressional fight over withdrawal of U.S. Marines in Lebanon, domestic political pressures for withdrawal in the United States, Italy and Great Britain will, in the near term, become unmanageable. The continued presence of U.S. Marines (with the inevitability of more casualties) makes this too politically attractive an issue, particularly in an election year, for both Democrats and those Republicans who feel they need to distance themselves from the Administration. The arguments will vary from:

- A. The U.S. objectives in Lebanon are either unclear or unachievable.
- B. U.S. Marines have no clearly defined mission.
- C. Others will argue that even though they agree with U.S. objectives and understand the Marine mission, prospects for success are so grim that the risk of continued MNF casualties is not justified.

I believe that President Assad is well aware of predictable Western impatience for quick solutions, and that he is prepared to wait us out in the hope that such impatience (fueled by more casualties) will result in ever increasing pressure for withdrawal. In my view, time is on the side of the Syrians and heightened debate over the continued MNF land presence has left the United States with very modest negotiating leverage with the Syrians. For this reason, I am very pessimistic about the willingness of the Lebanese opposition factions to abide by any ceasefire agreements for more than a short period of time. I think any agreement reached will only be broken shortly thereafter. Euphoria will set in as each agreement is reached and prospects for peace look brighter, only to be followed by even greater pessimism when that same agreement is broken. This will, in turn, give credence to the arguments of those who assert the futility of U.S. objectives in Lebanon.

At stake is the ability of the U.S. to continue to influence events in the region. A precipitous withdrawal by the United States could very well have a calamitous effect on the balance of power in the Middle East. I am now of the opinion that it is no longer the actual presence of our Marines in Lebanon that is so important. Rather, it is the consequence of a precipitous withdrawal prior to the U.S. being able to demonstrate some substantial diplomatic success that is now important. We must in the very near term be able to point to some diplomatic success which either (1) provides us more time to achieve our negotiating objectives or (2) provides a face-saving opportunity to withdraw MNF land forces.

Set forth below are the conclusions which I have reached on this issue which I would guess are consistent with those that you hold. What I am really asking you to focus on is my recommendation #5 to withdraw all MNF land forces and, at the same time, to augment the MNF Naval combatants.

CONCLUSIONS

1. Withdrawal of U.S. troops without tangible evidence of U.S. diplomatic success would be a substantial setback for continued U.S. influence in the region (stated unequivocally by Mubarak, Shamir, Gemayel and Hussein).
2. Repositioning of only U.S. land forces aboard ships would result in unmanageable domestic political pressures upon other contingents of the MNF to similarly withdraw which, in turn, would eliminate the modest negotiating leverage which we currently have.
3. Any additional Congressionally mandated time limitations for withdrawal would almost certainly end any hope for serious negotiations with the Syrians and Lebanese opposition factions.
4. Syria's political/military objectives extend beyond Lebanon; therefore, we must isolate Syria from other moderate Arab states and attempt to take away the Palestinian issue from President Assad; isolation of Syria from moderate Arabs is the best leverage regarding Syria but such efforts will take time.
5. There is significant flexibility in the Israeli position, particularly with respect to continued Syrian presence in Lebanon. (Prime Minister Shamir and General Levy stated that they could live with Syrian forces remaining in Lebanon under certain circumstances.)

6. We can anticipate more casualties as agreements are made and then broken; terrorist activities (and therefore casualties) will increase as political debate over continued presence in Lebanon intensifies in U.S. pre-election rhetoric.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Mount a major effort to defeat a Congressionally mandated withdrawal from Lebanon. In an effort to defeat early Congressional efforts to mandate a precipitous withdrawal, you may want to confide in key Congressional leaders that recommendation #5 will be implemented if negotiations with the Syrians do not bear fruit within a time certain.
2. Propose military and economic funding grants to Lebanon on an expedited basis.
3. Explore Israeli flexibility.
4. Intensify efforts to isolate Syria from moderate Arabs, though I believe Ambassador Rumsfeld is already engaged in this effort.
5. Within a limited time (no later than May or June, 1984), if negotiations have failed and domestic political pressures for withdrawal continue to increase as I am certain they will, do the following:
  - a. replace all MNF land forces with either U.N. peacekeeping troops or the Lebanese Armed Forces or both;
  - b. increase substantially the number of ships (and firepower) in the MNF Naval task force, particularly that of the French, Italians and British;
  - c. claim that such moves do not constitute withdrawal — to the contrary, such moves are designed to "up the ante" by removing our admittedly vulnerable peacekeeping force from its static position and that such moves will have the effect of substantially increasing our on-the-scene ability to deal with future Syrian ceasefire infractions without having to worry about additional casualties, which up to now have been effectively used by the Syrians to erode political support. In other words, we should claim that we are simply improving our military position in Lebanon.

You should note the substantial difference between what I am proposing — namely a withdrawal of all MNF land forces with the simultaneous increase in the MNF naval task force presence versus the shipboard repositioning of only the U.S. Marine contingent. Under no circumstances, however, should we withdraw MNF ground forces immediately following an "adverse" event.

ADVANTAGES TO RECOMMENDATION #5

1. Our present position makes us both militarily and politically vulnerable. This option permits us to decrease both vulnerabilities.
2. Reduces dramatically the likelihood of future MNF casualties which in turn will reduce increasing domestic political pressure for complete withdrawal.
3. Once domestic political pressure for U.S. withdrawal is reduced, President Assad will realize that the United States is there to stay until U.S. negotiating objectives are achieved.

4. Satisfies an important perception problem, namely, that the United States -- once committed -- has the staying power to see its foreign policy objectives through.
5. Permits the U.S. and other MNF contingents to consider the option of escalating with naval firepower and de-escalating depending upon the seriousness of the ceasefire infraction without the fear of retaliation on vulnerable MNF land forces by Syrian-surrogate Lebanese opposition factions. The MNF will then have a range of military escalatory options beginning with overflights and the use of 5-inch guns, to the use of 16-inch guns and airstrikes without having to fear that the static position of the troops on the ground would bear the brunt of escalated MNF naval firepower.
6. Even if I have miscalculated advantages 1-5, recommendation #5 affords us a face-saving device for the removal of our land forces from Lebanon before domestic political pressure compels a withdrawal, which in turn would be a disastrous setback for President Reagan and his continued ability to influence events in this critically important region.

DISADVANTAGES TO RECOMMENDATION #5

1. If not accomplished with great finesse (i.e., early consultations with our allies, MNF partners and friendly moderate Arab states), and if preparatory actions do not occur until domestic political pressures for withdrawal are so acute as to eliminate any other options, then such a move will be transparent and will be perceived to be tantamount to a forced withdrawal.
2. Some will assert that the U.S. commitment to Lebanon can only be satisfied with the continued presence of U.S. land forces. While in most cases I would agree with this assertion, I do not in the present situation because the vulnerability of our land forces in Beirut (albeit more secure now than it was on October 23) is impeding negotiations because of the strategy of the Syrians and other Lebanese opposition factions that continued MNF casualties will eventually force the U.S. to turn and run.

This memorandum reflects my own views and not necessarily those of the Chairman or other Members of the Senate Committee on Armed Services.

FROM: JACK F. MATLOCK JFM

SUBJECT: Soviet Demarche on U.S. Naval Actions off Lebanon

FG015
ND013
CO165
FG006-12
KCM HAS SEEN

Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin delivered an "oral statement" protesting what it terms "arbitrary restrictions" declared by the U.S. Navy on navigation off the coast of Lebanon. The statement, attached at TAB I, charges that declaration of these waters as a "zone of dangerous activities" violates international law and is in specific conflict with the 1958 Geneva Convention.

It would appear that this demarche was made largely for the record. An "oral statement" is the least formal and authoritative mode of written diplomatic communication. Use of it rather than a formal Note or an Aide Memoire signals that the Soviets are not really very concerned, although they feel they must say something lest their silence be construed as tacit endorsement.

State is preparing an appropriate response in coordination with other agencies.

TAB I "Oral Statement" Delivered to SecState by Ambassador Dobrynin, January 4, 1984

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~
Declassify on: OADR

NSC #8400071

oral statement

The United States of America, in violation of the generally recognized standards of international law and the principles of freedom of seafaring, has declared a vast area of the Mediterranean adjacent to the coast of Lebanon "a zone of dangerous activities of the U.S.Navy" and established in that zone a special regime for international navigation.

Introducing these arbitrary restrictions the American side, in fact, lays claim to having a part of the high seas under its sovereignty, which is in flagrant conflict with the provisions of the Geneva convention of 1958 to which the U.S. is a party, too.

The Soviet side declares a resolute protest in connection with this arbitrary and unlawful act of the U.S., does not recognize the restrictions introduced by the United States and warns that the entire responsibility for the consequences of that act will be born by the American side.

At the same time we call the attention of the U.S. government to the fact that its actions near the coast of Lebanon cannot fail to aggravate even further the already extremely tense situation in that entire region. The American side should realize what such a dangerous policy can lead to in terms of the developments in the Middle East and even beyond that region.

Rumsfeld Talk with UN Undersecretary Urquhart

UN Undersecretary General Urquhart called on Ambassador Rumsfeld in the department on January 24 for the exchange of views on Lebanon.

- o Urquhart agreed that it is difficult to see a UN role in Beirut at present, except possibly in connection with the refugee camps. He added that any UN involvement around refugee camps in Lebanon would best be combined with another function, so as to lower the prominence of such a role, which is a touchy point with President Gemayel.
- o Both Rumsfeld and Urquhart agreed the UN could possibly play a role in connection with a further Israeli withdrawal in southern Lebanon.
- o Noting that UNIFIL's mandate comes up for renewal on April 19, Urquhart indicated that a new UNIFIL function overseeing an Israeli pullback and keeping peace in the zone from which the Israelis withdrew would be welcomed by both the UN and the UNIFIL troop contributors. Rumsfeld made it clear that the U.S. wants UNIFIL to stay in Lebanon and would favor a constructive new role for that force.
- o Urquhart mentioned two preconditions to any new UN role in Lebanon: a consensus among UNSC members and agreement among the parties on the ground. He said he knew very little about the Soviet attitude in the UNSC.
- o Rumsfeld and Urquhart agreed that the U.S. and the UNSYG should stay in touch, and Urquhart commented that the secretary general and he were concerned that a precipitate MNF withdrawal could destabilize Lebanon. (C)

SUBJECT: State draft report on H.Con.Res. 225, Expressing the sense of the Congress that the President should instruct the United States delegation to the United Nations to introduce a resolution in the General Assembly calling for the immediate withdrawal of all Syrian and Syrian-controlled forces from Lebanon.

The Office of Management and Budget requests the views of your agency on the above subject before advising on its relationship to the program of the President, in accordance with OMB Circular A-19.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

The Administration is opposed to H.Con.Res. 225, which would express the sense of the Congress that the President should instruct the United States delegation to the United Nations to introduce a resolution in the General Assembly calling for the immediate withdrawal of all Syrian and Syrian-controlled forces from Lebanon.

While wholeheartedly agreeing with the need for withdrawal of all unauthorized foreign forces from Lebanon, and in particular, Syrian forces, we have significant reservations regarding the procedures specified in the proposed resolution and the desirability of addressing the Syrian question in isolation at the United Nations at this time.

Procedurally, any United Nations resolution calling for the withdrawal of Syrian forces from Lebanon should most properly be introduced by the Government of Lebanon, not the United States. We also believe that questions of this nature are more appropriately considered in the Security Council than in the General Assembly. The Council has consulted on Lebanon many times in the past few years.

The concept of proposing such a UN resolution at this time itself raises some specific risks. A resolution restricted to the Syrian presence in Lebanon, might reach a final vote only after being amended in ways contrary to its original purpose. For example, we could face a strong counter-attempt to press harsh language calling for Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon, possibly not mentioning Syria at all. We might then be forced to consider vetoing the resolution in the Security Council or opposing it as part of a minority voting "no" in the General Assembly. Furthermore, inasmuch as most of the warring factions in Lebanon are in fact Lebanese, it is most unlikely

The Honorable
Dante B. Fiscell,
House of Representatives.

that any UN body would call for withdrawal of these factions from Lebanon.

I regret that we cannot be more supportive of this resolution, even though we fully share its objectives.

The Office of Management and Budget advises that from the standpoint of the Administration's program there is no objection to the submission of this report.

Sincerely,

W. Tapley Bennett, Jr.

Dear Mr. Powers:

Your inquiry to the President concerning United States citizens in Lebanon has been referred to me for reply.

The American Embassy in Beirut was asked to comment on the Philadelphia Inquirer's report you cited in your telegram of February 10. The Embassy has described two incidents which occurred prior to February 10 which bear some resemblance to the Inquirer's allegation that the Embassy had turned away frightened U.S. citizens.

An American family arrived at the Embassy on the morning of Tuesday, February 7 with suitcases in hand asking for assistance to depart Lebanon. At that time, no decision had been made to reduce Embassy personnel or to evacuate U.S. citizens. The family was advised of the above and counseled to listen to the radio in the event that an evacuation was announced.

Another U.S. citizen arrived at the Embassy on the following day and asked to be evacuated with U.S. Embassy personnel by helicopter to Cyprus. He was not included with Embassy personnel that day but was evacuated with other private U.S. citizens on February 10.

A voluntary evacuation of U.S. citizens was announced over the radio and in the local press on February 10 and 11. According to the Department's statistics, over nine hundred people, including some 360 private U.S. citizens, were evacuated from Lebanon to Cyprus during a two day period. The Embassy has assured us that no American citizens were turned away during the evacuation. They are also confident that all American citizens who desired to depart Lebanon at that time were assisted in doing so.

Mr. Donald V. Powers
330 Fishers Road,
Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania.

The staff of the American Embassy in Lebanon will continue to assist to the best of their ability those U.S. citizens who chose to remain in Lebanon. Please contact me again if you have any further questions.

Sincerely,

/s/
