Preamble:

The Background

The International Fund for Ireland came into existence in December 1986, following the signing of an Agreement between the British and Irish governments.

The major contributor to the Fund has been the United States, with donations to date of US$120 million. Canada has promised up to CAN$10 million, of which $1.5 million has been received. New Zealand has made a single contribution of NZ$300,000. To date the total available to the Fund for disbursement is equivalent to approximately UK£80 million.

The objectives of the Fund, as defined in Article 2 of the Agreement by which it was established, are 'to promote economic and social advance and to encourage contact, dialogue and reconciliation between nationalists and unionists throughout Ireland'. The means of pursuing these objectives are defined as:

- (a) stimulating private investment and enterprise;
- (b) supplementing public programmes; and
- (c) supporting voluntary effort, including self-help schemes.

In addition the Fund is required to take account of the wishes of the donor countries. The United States has requested priority for private sector investment and job creation, and Canada for business co-operation, youth training and exchanges. New Zealand did not express any preferences.

The Agreement requires the Fund to spend approximately three-quarters of its resources in Northern Ireland and approximately one quarter in the South where the Fund's efforts have been concentrated on the border counties of Donegal, Cavan, Monaghan, Sligo, Leitrim and Louth.

The Board of the Fund consists of seven members, appointed jointly by the Irish and British governments. The donor countries are represented at Board meetings by Observers nominated by them. The Board is assisted by an Advisory Committee composed of officials appointed by the two governments. The Fund does not have its own staff or premises; its administration is provided through a Secretariat, headed by two joint Directors-General and a small staff, located in Dublin and Belfast respectively, provided by the two governments.

The Board has developed its own policies for the deployment of the resources entrusted to it, taking careful account of the terms of the Agreement under which it was established, the wishes of the donor countries, and the need to complement the economic and social policies of the two governments. It takes particular care to avoid substituting its resources for those already available from other sources in the public or private sectors; to seek 'leverage' from other sources whenever possible; to ensure that its expenditure provides good value for money; and that the projects and ventures it supports are viable and likely to be of lasting benefit.

In order to identify areas of activity where the Fund's resources could be used most effectively, the Board decided at an early date to establish a series of seven programmes in specific areas of activity, and to appoint programme teams which would bring together relevant expertise from the private sector and from government departments and public agencies, North and South. These programme teams advise the Board and the Secretariat and, under the direction of designated members of the Board, act as administering agencies for the Fund. Applications to the Fund for assistance are channelled to the administering agencies as appropriate. The Board itself takes the decision on major projects, and on exceptional projects falling outside the remit of any of the individual programmes.

The Agreement by which the Fund was established expressly required the Board to set up two investment companies, one in the North and one in the South. Each of these companies has a share capital of £5 million which is fully paid up. The remit of each is to provide venture capital, either through equity or loan, on the basis of strictly commercial criteria, in the area in which it operates. Each company has its own Board of Directors and staff.

Chairman's Report

During the year, the Fund's portfolio of programmes, projects and initiatives has developed steadily. There is now a considerable amount of progress to be seen on the ground; expenditure is building up steadily, and the commitment of funds runs well ahead of expenditure, as the ensuing sections of this Report, and the appendices, plainly demonstrate.

The over-riding concern of the Board has been to help to bring to life worthwhile projects, within the terms of the Fund's remit, which without its support, simply would not have happened. It is in that spirit, and in accordance with that philosophy, that it has approached all its work.

But it is evident that, if a project would not, without the Fund's help, have come about, then neither would its concept, in most cases, have been fully researched, prepared, or developed, before the Board expressed willingness, in principle, to commit resources. In cases of this kind, it is hardly surprising that there should be a certain time-lag between application and expenditure.

The Board has found that projects tend, like buses, to travel by stops and starts, and each stage has its own tariff in time, if not in cash.

Not every case is long-drawn-out; some are quite simple and straightforward. But every application requires to be handled with equal care and, if waste and abuse are to be avoided, short cuts may prove foolhardy.

In the event, as the programme reports, appendices and the annex to the accounts which follow show, the Board has by now processed the applications received to the point where 858 offers have been made, representing a total to date of UK£26,579,000 (IR£31,174,000). This represents a formidable total of obligations, the more so when it is recalled that the Board is prohibited from entering into financial liabilities which exceed its resources.

In fact, during the year the amounts expended and commitments entered into, as shown on page 38, exceeded the Fund's income from all sources by UK£2.973 million (IR£3.487 million). This had the effect of reducing the opening balance by a corresponding amount, leaving the Fund with a closing balance at credit of UK£4.212 million (IR£4.941 million). It is evident that, by its very nature, the Fund must conduct its affairs on a cumulative rather than a purely annual basis.

It is notoriously difficult to estimate the numbers of jobs created: but my best estimate would be that the Fund's commitments entered into to date will create something of the order of 4,500 permanent, new full-time jobs as well as additional part-time or seasonal jobs; 4,000 construction jobs of varying duration; and will retain work for at least 1,500 people in rural areas who might otherwise be forced to emigrate.

In line with the wishes of the donor countries, the original thrust of the Board's policy was to seek to effect a lasting and coherent improvement in the economic climate of the northern counties of Ireland as a whole, by seeking to remedy some of its more evident deficiencies, through the medium of seven main programmes of work.

These comprised: the two investment companies which the Board was from the outset required to set up; a business enterprise programme, designed to stimulate and support local initiative and self-help; a tourism programme, intended primarily to provide amenities otherwise lacking and the promotion of Ireland overseas; an urban development programme, designed to restore the self-esteem and community spirit of the provincial towns; programmes of applied research, intended to provide early economic benefits, in the fields of science, technology, and fisheries; a programme designed to stimulate producers to develop new enterprises in agriculture; and finally, a wider horizons programme intended to open the minds, especially of younger people, to new skills and to help them become less inward-looking, through training and work experience overseas. All of these programmes have met with a satisfactory response, and none has proved a failure.

In translating theory into practice, the Board has encountered many vexing problems. For example, the comparative size, number, and value of the projects to be supported; their spread in terms of geography, of demand, of population, of category; the balance between comparatively poor and comparatively well-off areas or applicants; the extent to which leverage should be insisted on, or to which it should be dispensed with.

In general, the Board has sought to carry no principle to extremes but to establish a reasonable and defensible balance between the competing considerations. Indeed, the Board derives much satisfaction from the wide spread and overall balance of the projects listed in the appendices.

In our first Annual Report, I promised that the Board would be keen to ensure that its policies remained responsive to changing needs and circumstances; and that we should accordingly be reviewing them regularly.

In September 1988, the Board carried out just such a review. This was timely, following as it did on the Presidential certification, and actual payment, of the third US contribution of $35 m; the announcement of proposals for an EC contribution of 15 m ECU in 1989 and in each of the two ensuing years; and proposals for a fourth US contribution in 1989.

As already announced, the Board decided to seek to make a more focused contribution to the economic and social regeneration of the most disadvantaged areas through its existing programmes, through a new Community Economic Regeneration Scheme, and through an allocation for special projects in the areas concerned. The Board also resolved to embark upon a modest, and experimental, venture into the field of community relations, both cross-border and cross-community. At the same time, in response to the wishes expressed by the Irish and British governments, it undertook to carry out detailed appraisals and feasibility studies of 'flagship' projects such as Navan Fort /Eamhain Macha, and the Ballinamore-Ballyconnell Canal.

These changes in emphasis appear to have been quite widely welcomed, and, indeed, there seems to be an increasing understanding both of the potential of the International Fund, and the policies of the Board. This is not to say that they give rise to no criticism or controversy, but it would be unhealthy if it were otherwise, and the Board is very open to constructive criticism. It is, however, a matter of some concern that the expectations of the public seem likely much to exceed the Fund's resources, almost all of which are now allocated apart from a very modest reserve.

The Board's task is not made easier by uncertainty as to its future lifespan and funding prospects. It is constrained, therefore, to live within its means from year to year. Nevertheless, when the last dollar, pound, cent and penny have been spent, and whenever that may be, I believe the International Fund will be seen to have made a significant contribution to the economic and social regeneration of the twelve northern counties of Ireland.

In April, I paid a useful visit to Washington, accompanied by Mr. Dempsey, one of the Board members, and senior staff. We had meetings with Senators, Congressmen, and members of their staffs, with officials of the State Department, other branches of the Administration, USAID, and with various groups having an interest in our work. These enabled us to report progress on the development of the Fund, and we were greatly heartened by the encouragement and support we received for the Board's policies and programme. I should like to thank all those we met there, as well as the Ambassadors of Ireland and of the United Kingdom, and their respective staffs. It remains for me to express my warmest thanks, and those of the Board, for the generosity of the donor countries, and the contribution made by their observers who, despite the fact that none of them is permanently based in Ireland, have been most diligent in their attendance at meetings: Hon. W. Fine for the United States; Mr. M. Phillips, QC, for Canada, who returned to Ottawa in August 1988 and has been replaced by Mr. D. Smith; and Mr. D. Leask, alternate observer for New Zealand, who has returned to Wellington and has been replaced by Mr. C. Pearson.

The Board has had the opportunity during the year of demonstrating and explaining its work to a large number of visitors from the donor countries, including the US Ambassadors to the United Kingdom and to Ireland, the Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, Mr. William Fuller of USAID, members of his staff, and visiting Senators, Congressmen, and other elected representatives. These visits have been of much value, I hope and believe, both to the visitors and to the visited: to the former, in elucidating what the Board is doing, and to the latter, in elucidating the policies and preferences of the donors.

Next, my thanks are due to my colleagues on the Board itself. Meetings are held two-monthly, alternately in the north and south, and members have put themselves, on occasion, to great inconvenience to attend. They have, in addition, undertaken many other duties, including the oversight of the programme teams. The Board is an extremely harmonious one, and, in my view, constitutes a model of constructive cross-border and cross-community co-operation. There have been no changes in its membership during the year. Then, I must express appreciation for the work of the Advisory Committee of senior civil servants, and the various agencies to which the Board has delegated some of its functions. The Board largely depends upon their expertise in their several specialist fields; has full confidence in their impartiality, and has watched with interest and satisfaction the development of a high level of collaboration between northern and southern officials in a whole series of practical matters wholly lacking in political or constitutional overtones.

Finally, it gives me pleasure, on behalf of the Board, to thank the two small teams of officials, seconded by the British and Irish governments, who have demonstrated the highest possible levels of commitment to the Fund's work. Mr. John Hunter, the Fund's first northern joint Director-General, left in April 1988, and was replaced by Mr. Irvine Devitt. Both of them have given the Board outstanding service, as has Mr. Brendan Lyons, the southern joint Director-General throughout the year under review; and the Board is grateful to all three of them, and to their staffs.

Investment Companies

IFI (Northern) Investments Ltd.

The Board members are:

W. M. Carson
(Chairman)
M. D. McGuane
Sir Ewart Bell
J. Doherty
J. Comerton
K. Dunlop
C. Denny

IFI (Northern) Investments Limited was incorporated on 8 September 1987. The Board met for the first time on 1 October 1987, when Mr. John Hunter was appointed acting chief executive. On 1 February 1988, Mr. James O'Neill became chief executive and company secretary. Mr. Paul Leonard took up his duties as senior executive in June 1988. The company's headquarters are at Bulloch House, Linenhall Street, Belfast 2.

During the year the Board of the company agreed investments in two projects.

The first comprised an equity investment of $450,000 in a US-based manufacturer of electronics pressure gauges, which has established a wholly-owned subsidiary in the Antrim Technology Park. This project will result in the direct employment of some 200 people.

The second involves an equity investment of £22,000 in a local company offering a repair and re-engining facility to the local fishing fleet and other boat owners.

The Board of the investment company has approved, in principle, investments in, and is finalising investment agreements with, five other companies involving a proposed total commitment of a further £1,350,000.

For particulars of the investments made see Appendix 1.

The aim of each company is to identify the risk capital needs for ventures of existing or new industrial and commercial enterprises and to provide, on sound commercial criteria, equity capital or loans. The normal practice of the investment companies will be to invest in ordinary or preference shares in private companies; they will be prepared to invest in greenfield or start-up operations but not in very high-risk or rescue projects.

IFI (Southern) Investments Ltd.

The Board members are:

M. D. McGuane
(Chairman)
W. M. Carson
M. Abrahamson
G. P. Dempsey
K. Dunlop
J. Flavin
J. Gannon
N. V. McCann

IFI (Southern) Investments Limited, was incorporated on 17 September 1987 and held its first Board meeting on 24 September 1987. Mr. D. McGing, of Coopers and Lybrand, acted as chief executive until the appointment of Dr. Declan Glynn in May 1988. The company has its headquarters in Dundalk.

Eighty-five proposals had been considered by the company to 30 September 1988. Decisions have been taken to invest IR£800,000 in three of the projects submitted, although investment agreements had not been finally concluded before 30 September. Eighteen further proposals are under active consideration, involving total investments of IR£2.5 million.

The three approved projects are expected to result directly or indirectly in the employment of approximately 800 people.

During the first full year a network of contacts in the border counties has been established. A number of presentations have been made to business people, including industrialists, bankers, accountants and representatives of chambers of commerce and government agencies.

Note:

The Board of the Fund has decided that its shareholdings in its investment company subsidiaries should be treated as committed programme expenditure, in accordance with the requirement to establish them, rather than consolidated in the accounts. It is pleased that individuals of such high standing, with so wide a range of commercial experience, have agreed, with representatives of the parent Board to serve as directors of its two investment companies.

IFI Programmes

Business Enterprise

Cumulative
Programme Budget to
30 September 1988

UK£14.656m	IR£16.829m

The Business Enterprise programme, comprising four main elements, is administered on behalf of the Board, in the North by the Department of Economic Development, and by the Local Enterprise Development Unit; in the South with the assistance of the Central Development Unit of the Department of Finance.

The Programme has been designed to create conditions in which business initiative can be developed to stimulate enterprise, self-employment and job creation opportunities.

It also aims to encourage established businesses to widen their horizons and to seek new market opportunities for their products. The programme has effectively harnessed a partnership between the public and private sectors as contributors to economically viable, and socially beneficial projects.

At the end of September 1988, 48 projects had been approved in Northern Ireland and £3.5 million offered in respect of them. The total cost of these projects will be over £12 million, the Fund's contribution being approximately 30%. The public and the private sectors will contribute 50% and 20% respectively, thereby fulfilling the Fund's principle of securing maximum leverage.

Almost two thirds of the money committed to date has gone to the more needy areas of Northern Ireland: some £1 million to West and North Belfast, over £500,000 to Derry, £160,000 to Strabane, £170,000 to Omagh and £145,000 to Newry and Warrenpoint.

Workspace accommodation

By the provision of workspace accommodation, the programme has helped to establish facilities for small businesses providing almost 1,500 new job opportunities. This should increase to 3,000 with the completion of the network of local enterprise agencies.

Revolving Business Development Funds

The Revolving Business Development Funds are directed towards assisting small local businesses which would not otherwise attract start-up funds. Sixteen funds have been approved. The revolving nature of these funds enables the capital to be 'recycled' in future years. The maximum loan available in any one case is £2,000.

Local Business Development Teams

Under this element each of the local enterprise agencies will be enabled to employ a development officer. Their role will be to increase the 'outreach' work of the enterprise agencies opening up additional opportunities for local economic development. Fourteen development officer posts have been approved to date.

Community Enterprise

A budget of £500,000 has been made available to encourage experimentation and develop new community economic development initiatives.

Strabane Industrial Properties Ltd: successful enough to require more workspace accommodation (right).

Enterprise awareness Under this element £400,000 has been set aside to fund a set of inter-related initiatives to raise the level of awareness of the scope for business and enterprise in Northern Ireland. These include a Small Business Competition; four projects aimed at introducing business and enterprise to schools and colleges; and an Enterprise Awareness Campaign which was launched at the end of September.

Working Capital Scheme In addition, small businesses are supported by a recently introduced working capital scheme. A budget of £600,000 has been set aside to assist towards the working capital needs of concerns not eligible for such help from other sources, with maximum support in any one case limited to £15,000. To date three projects have been appraised for support. A substantial number of other applications are currently being examined.

County Enterprise Fund Companies In the South, County Enterprise Fund Companies have been established in each of the six border counties to administer revolving business development funds, to develop workspace facilities, and to encourage community-based economic projects.

The first of these companies began operation in August 1988 and they have had a very positive response from the private sector, both in terms of financial support, and the commitment of volunteers to serve on their Boards. The level of applications received so far confirms the need for this type of local business development fund in support of newly established enterprises.

Business Incubator Units The provision of special business incubator units attached to Regional Technical Colleges in the South has been undertaken at three locations. The main objective of the units is to encourage the development of entrepreneurs within the third-level system and promote greater links between local industries and the education system.

It also aims to facilitate small business start-ups and assist the development of existing small firms, particularly those engaged in high-technology activities which would benefit from the research facilities available.

The facilities in the units will be available to industrialists and academics from both sides of the border, thereby encouraging the development of cross-border links.

At Dundalk the building was completed in September 1988; units at Sligo will be complete by January 1989 and at Letterkenny by March 1989.

Small Business Task Force

The Small Business Task Force located in Carrick-on-Shannon, Co. Leitrim, became operational in April with a budget of £500,000 for a period of three years. The team, which mirrors the work of the northern local business development officers, consists of four people with expertise in finance, production and marketing.

The primary objective of the Task Force is to assist local enterprise groups, existing companies and industrial interests in the border counties in the development of action plans and ultimately in the development of worthwhile job creation opportunities.

A number of projects with individual companies and industrial sectors have been undertaken including a major evaluation of the footwear industry.

The Task Force is acting as conduit for the Canadian Executive Service Organisation (CESO) in conjunction with the County Development teams and the IDA. The consultancy services of CESO are also being used in Northern Ireland.

Irish Goods Joint Marketing

The programme also includes a joint overseas marketing and sales promotion element for Irish goods. The first such project was undertaken during the year when a joint Derry-Galway venture organised a successful trade fair in Boston to show products from their respective cities.

For particulars of projects supported under this Programme, see Appendix 2.

Aidan Fitzpatrick: Manager of expanding Glenwood Enterprises.

Tourism

Cumulative
Programme Budget to
30 September 1988

UK£13.532m	IR£15.332m

The tourism programme comprises four schemes, and is administered on behalf of the Board by the Department of Economic Development, the Northern Ireland Tourist Board and Bord Failte Eireann.

Each scheme has been successful in attracting substantial private investment for tourism facilities. The programme has also influenced the overall direction and scale of tourism development in Northern Ireland and in the border counties of the South.

Projects approved to date are expected to generate more than 1,200 permanent jobs within tourism and the service industry, as well as 1,400 temporary jobs in construction. Private investment has been stimulated at twice the level of Fund assistance. Such new investment and job creation provides an immediate local economic benefit.

Furthermore, local economies will derive lasting benefit from increased tourism revenues generated by assisted projects and the multiplier effects which these create in economically disadvantaged areas.

Accommodation Amenities Development Scheme

The scheme encourages the provision of additional facilities and amenities at existing hotels and other registered accommodation, directed particularly at projects which help to extend the traditional tourism season and attract conference business. The level of assistance available is subject to a limit of 50% of the total cost of the project.

To date 23 projects have been approved for projects ranging from conference and leisure facilities at hotels like the Killyhevlin, Enniskillen, and the Nuremore, Carrickmacross, to helping provide a Viking longship and boat house at the Share Centre, Lisnaskea, a holiday complex primarily for the disabled.

Tourism Amenities Development Scheme

This scheme encourages the private sector to invest in new tourism amenities which will attract visitors to Northern Ireland and the border counties in the South. Eligible amenities include angling facilities, waterways development, sailing/marina development, equestrian facilities, cultural/folk entertainment, archaeology/heritage. The emphasis of this scheme is on revenue-generating products which have a significant potential for job creation. The level of financial assistance available is limited to 50%.

Approval has been given to 54 projects including the establishment of a butterfly house at Seaforde, an open farm at Dundonald, a marina at Carlingford and the Makemie Meeting House, Ramelton, Co. Donegal.

New Hotel Scheme
(Northern Ireland only)

This scheme is designed to stimulate the private sector to build new hotels in specified areas where there is a particular shortage of hotel accommodation. The level of assistance is limited to 30%. The Fund has offered assistance for the development of an 84-bedroom budget hotel, costing £2 million, in central Belfast. Currently undergoing appraisal are new hotel projects for Rostrevor, Co. Down, the city of Derry, and Ballycastle, Co. Antrim.

Joint Marketing Scheme

Under this scheme tour operators are offered assistance in new market areas in the United States and Canada and Continental Europe where the Fund hopes to generate renewed interest in both parts of Ireland as a tourist destination. Additionally, the scheme provides assistance for the promotion of Ireland as a destination for special interest holidays.

Five separate projects have been assisted promoting tourism to both parts of Ireland from the United States in the 1988 season. In a unique first joint venture by the two tourism agencies, direct mail exercises aimed at North America and Continental Europe are being undertaken to promote a variety of special interest holidays in Ireland, North and South.

For particulars of projects supported under this programme see Appendix 3.

Urban Development

Cumulative Programme Budget to 30 September 1988

UK£11.000m	IR£12.451m

Because of the different administrative structures which exist north and south, the Urban Development programme has been shaped in slightly different ways to meet the needs of each area.

In the North, the programme is administered on behalf of the Board by the Department of the Environment, and in the South, by the County Councils, whose work is co-ordinated by the Irish Department of the Environment.

In the North, the programme extends to the district towns (except Belfast and Londonderry) and provides assistance for urban regeneration on a basis similar to that already provided by the Department of the Environment since 1983 in the cities of Belfast and Londonderry.

The commercial centres of the smaller towns have suffered not only from terrorism but competition from suburban shopping centres. The regeneration of the historic and commercial centres of the 24 district towns is important because of the contribution they make to the recovery of the local economy and the building of confidence in the local community.

In Northern Ireland's divided society the town centres can also perform a crucial community-building role since they provide common ground in which both traditions can do business, seek employment or recreation or go shopping. The regeneration of the town centres is contributing, at local level, to a sense of civic pride which can transcend political and religious divisions.

In the North, applications were invited in July 1987, and the scheme had already attracted 467 applications by March 1988, by which time it was heavily over-subscribed. No more applications were accepted.

By the end of September 1988, 138 applicants had received offers of grants totalling £2.435m. These alone will result in a total investment of over £7m.

It is anticipated that, when all applications received up to March 1988 have been appraised, a total of over 250 projects throughout Northern Ireland will be assisted, with a total value of about £18m. A large proportion of these will be in disadvantaged areas.

Modern bakery development at Sloan Street, Dungannon.

Old Bushmills distillery, Coleraine: conversion to apartments and wine bar.

Market Street, Limavady: renovated and extended bakery premises.

In total about 1,000 permanent jobs and over 600 man-years of construction industry work are anticipated. Further spin-off benefits in employment are expected.

In September 1988, an additional £3.5m was made available for this programme. Priority will now be focused on projects in disadvantaged areas, and projects which will have a significant impact in the town centres. Applications from the smaller towns may now also be considered. The scheme has been reopened for applications until 28 February 1989.

In the South, the Urban Development programme covers 12 border towns where resources will be concentrated on specific projects carried out by the local authority. This will stimulate economic recovery by improving the urban environment.

In this case IR£1.80m has been allocated among the 12 towns.

The grant in each case will represent 50% of the cost of the project, with the balance to be met by the local authority. Work in most cases will be completed by June 1989.

For particulars of projects supported under this Programme, see Appendix 4.

Agriculture and Fisheries

Cumulative Programme Budget to 30 September 1988

UK£4.329m	IR£4.873m

This programme is administered on behalf of the Board by the Department of Agriculture in the North, and by Teagasc and the Department of the Marine in the South.

It is designed primarily to assist innovative projects which fall outside existing Government and EC support schemes and which will provide on-farm alternatives to traditional farming enterprises.

Farm Diversification Scheme

A farm diversification scheme with a total budget of £1.6 million (£1.1m in the North and £0.5m in the South) encourages farmers and producers to launch new non-traditional farming enterprises through the offer of 30% grants towards the cost of animals and facilities.

The scheme directly addresses the promotion of economic development in rural areas where job opportunities are limited. It will assist in maintaining existing jobs by raising the incomes of small farmers and thus help to counter rural depopulation.

National Fishery Training Centre, Greencastle, Co. Donegal.

The development of alternative enterprises is important for the future of farming and rural prosperity in the region in view of the constraints on production and profitability in traditional farming resulting from changes in the EC Common Agricultural Policy.

In Northern Ireland, 273 offers of grant, with a total value of £892,000 have already been accepted; and in the South there have been 224 acceptances, involving grants of some £570,000. In each case, the grant is limited to 30% of the cost.

Over two-thirds of acceptance are for projects involving the breeding of non-thoroughbred horses, underlining the considerable development potential of the horse industry North and South. Other activities include the breeding of rabbits, goats, deer and game fowl. A small number of projects in Northern Ireland are for the establishment of organic farms.

Marine Research Vessel

Funds totalling £1.1 million have been provided to purchase, refurbish and fit-out with scientific equipment a marine research vessel which will be operated by the Department of Agriculture for Northern Ireland, which will also meet the running costs. The 'Lough Foyle' will be used for fisheries research in collaboration with the Irish Department of the Marine, mainly in the Irish Sea.

The research programme is designed to effect a significant improvement in the management of fish stocks leading, in the longer term, to higher sustainable yields for the fishing industries North and South. Studies of the marine environment in the Irish Sea will also provide benefits through enhanced management of a common resource. The 'Lough Foyle' made its first operational voyage in October 1988.

Fishery Training Vessel

IR£110,000 has also been allocated towards the fitting out of a training vessel, the Lough Swilly, at the National Fishery Training Centre at Greencastle, Co. Donegal, where training facilities are provided for fishermen from both parts of Ireland.

River Management Improvement Scheme

A River Management Improvement Scheme, with a budget of £600,000, is designed to improve angling facilities in the border areas. Improvements on rivers in the Foyle catchment area are under way and further improvements in other waters including the Lough Erne and Lough Melvin catchments, will be completed before the start of the 1989 season. Investigations are also being made into the scope for enhancing other angling facilities which would provide commercial or tourist benefits.

The Fund also considers applications for assistance which do not fall tidily within any of the other elements of the programme.

Rural Action Project

Among projects of this nature already approved by the Fund is a proposal from the Rural Action Project for an action research programme to examine the potential for extending the activities of small, part-time farmers in South Armagh and West Fermanagh into non-traditional enterprises, including co-operative processing and marketing. A grant of £229,000 has been offered for the project which will be supervised by the Department of Agriculture for Northern Ireland. Some 70 small, part-time farmers will participate in this initiative.

South Armagh Farming Enterprises

The Fund has also assisted by grant and loan, totalling £600,000, a major project undertaken by South Armagh Farming Enterprises (SAFE). The project provides for the extension of SAFE's mushroom production operations. These involve training and the provision of finance to farmers entering the mushroom industry, and the collective marketing of the product to supermarket chains under the quality 'Snowcap' brand. It is estimated that this project will produce around 100 full-time jobs and 200 part-time jobs.

Science and Technology

Cumulative Programme Budget to 30 September 1988

UK£7.182m	IR£8.050m
------------------	------------------

The Science and Technology programme is administered on behalf of the Board, in the North by the Department of Economic Development and in the South by Eolas. It operates four schemes:

The Innovation Support Scheme

The Innovation Support Scheme makes assistance available for innovative research and product development in universities and research associations in Northern Ireland.

The Technological Facilities Scheme

The Technological Facilities Scheme provides support for investment in facilities essential to the development of the economic and industrial base and applies in Northern Ireland only.

The Technological Co-operation Scheme

The Technological Co-operation Scheme encourages co-operative cross-border research and product development involving organisations working together North and South.

QUESTOR: The first chemistry-based centre of its kind in Europe.

The Technology-based Economic Development Scheme

The Technology-based Economic Development Scheme in the border regions offers assistance to stimulate technology-based development in these areas, North and South, encouraging initiatives by research and educational bodies to strengthen local technological infrastructure.

In each case financial support is normally limited to 50% of the total project cost. The Fund expects a return on this investment through royalty, licence fee or other means on products or services developed from the projects.

The emphasis of this programme is on practical applied research, likely to lead to tangible economic and commercial benefits within the reasonably near future, with corresponding prospects for the generation of new employment.

It aims also to encourage significant, cross-border co-operation in scientific research and product development.

Approved projects in the North include:

A Chair of Information Technology and a Garment and Textile Technology Centre

A Chair of Information Technology and a Garment and Textile Technology Centre both at Magee College, Derry. These are new initiatives in an area where there is limited technological infrastructure. The effective application of information technology can do much to offset the disadvantages of location and create jobs in an area of high unemployment. The Garment and Textile Technology Centre will provide support to the garment industry, a major employer in the area.

Medical Electronics Projects

Medical Electronics Projects at the University of Ulster. The Fund is supporting the development of a portable monitor for patients for which there is a market in the ambulance service. It is also supporting the development of a non-invasive monitor for use in hospitals. This type of monitor provides complete diagnostic information within minutes of the test.

These projects will be undertaken by the Bio-engineering Centre at the University of Ulster, which has demonstrated its potential to generate new business in a sector recognised as economically important for Northern Ireland.

The Centre for Environmental Process and Analytical Chemistry (QUESTOR)

The Centre for Environmental Process and Analytical Chemistry (QUESTOR) at Queen's University, Belfast, is based on a model developed by the US National Science Foundation. The Centre, the first such chemistry-based centre in Europe, will develop as a co-operative venture between the University and local industry and will undertake environmental research directed specifically at the needs of industry.

Assay Kits and Process Engineering Design Centre.

Assay Kits and Process Engineering Design Centre. These joint North/South projects bring together complementary expertise in their respective fields, to provide marketable products and services available to industry throughout Ireland.

Antrim Technology Park Software Centre

Antrim Technology Park Software Centre. The Antrim Technology Park has been a successful venture providing an attractive environment for high technology industry. This new building is designed to support the development of computer software or applications.

Micro-computer technologies to benefit business.

Support has also been given to a number of projects aimed at helping local technology-based industry in southern border counties to achieve the technological competence needed to compete successfully.

Specifically, in the Louth/Cavan/Monaghan region, furniture manufacturers and mechanical engineering companies will benefit from a technology transfer scheme to introduce new micro-computer technologies into their businesses. This project, initially involving ten companies, is based at Dundalk Regional Technical College.

Similarly, a Tool Industry Research Centre, at the Sligo Regional Technical College, will provide technological and marketing support for 60 small toolmaking companies, each employing less than 40 people. Technology audits in Southern border counties will be conducted by Eolas and involve small firms in counties Cavan, Donegal, Leitrim, Monaghan and Sligo. The audits will assess the status of technology related to products and resources in the participating companies, and make appropriate recommendations.

For particulars of the projects supported under this Programme, see Appendix 6.

Wider Horizons

Cumulative
Programme Budget to
30 September 1988

UK£6.500m	IR£7.250m

The Wider Horizons programme is administered on behalf of the Board in the North by the Department of Economic Development and in the South by FAS (the Training and Employment Authority) and the Youth Exchange Bureau.

In developing the programme, the Fund has tried to ensure that all Wider Horizons projects incorporate the following elements:

- * Vocational preparation and training and/or substantive work experience not readily available in Ireland.
- * A strong emphasis on reconciliation through cross-cultural experiences.
- * The maximum possible leverage for Fund expenditure.
- * The likelihood of attracting alternative funding after cessation of Fund assistance.

The Wider Horizons programme operates at four levels — management, skilled workers, young people and students.

Management Projects

At the management level, projects have been initiated in export marketing in Canada and the United States, and in food product development and technology licensing in the United States.

In May 1988, as part of a senior management development project, a group of hotel and catering managers undertook a programme of study at Cornell University, and carried out an analysis of state-of-the-art approaches in American hotels and restaurants. In November the results of their findings were presented at a conference entitled 'Action Tourism: The American Influence'.

Skilled Workers Projects

In the skilled workers category, the aim has been to make contact with centres of excellence overseas in which young people from Ireland can learn new ideas and skills to be applied at home.

In this context two groups of skilled workers from the hotel industry are at present completing one year placements abroad — one in Belgium and France, the other in the United States. A third group will be going to Denmark to learn how to make small sailing boats while two other groups will be leaving for Italy — one to gain experience in the ceramics industry, the other to learn new ideas in fashion and design.

Young People's Projects

The projects in the young people's category have mainly been oriented towards helping the disadvantaged young from inner city and suburban areas.

The Wider Horizons programme has co-operated with a number of community workshops, North and South, specialising in the provision of vocational preparation and training for the disadvantaged.

A group drawn from five of these workshops in Derry, Limerick and Ennis, spent three months in the Danish Production Schools. A second group, from Belfast and Dublin, spent six weeks on work placement in Toronto, while a third, also drawn from different parts of Belfast and Dublin, took part in a three-month vocational training course in Paris.

The results of these initial ventures are at present being analysed by the Wider Horizons programme team with a view to disseminating the experience to the countrywide networks of community workshops, North and South.

The programme team now take the view that the 'wider horizons experience' should become, henceforth, a normal part of the programme of these institutions, and in this context a number of seminars have been organised with the relevant policy and decision-makers.

Another concern of the Wider Horizons programme in relation to disadvantaged young people has been in the training of community youth leaders. It is planned to organise a year-long training project with placements abroad for 36 community youth leaders selected from inner city, suburban and rural areas.

The project, which is being operated in conjunction with the major youth organisations, North and South, will be based on a community development model, which, it is hoped, will be of significance to both parts of the country.

Light engineering skills training in a Londonderry youth project.

Girls from Limerick, Derry and Ennis meet in a furniture factory.

Student Study Projects In the fourth category of the Wider Horizons programme which is oriented towards students, a major emphasis is being placed on college/industry link schemes.

Special attention is being paid to the implications of the Single European Market for both educational systems, North and South, and, with this in view, two groups of business studies students are preparing to spend a two month training and work experience placement in various member states of the European Community. Two other groups have completed three month periods of vocation preparation abroad — one in Colorado, the other in Bavaria.

In addition to these group projects, about 20 university students have been assisted in finding work placements abroad related to their studies.

In general the expectation of the Wider Horizons programme is to establish through its own pilot projects, and through other projects which it helps to sponsor, a number of broad innovative models which can be applied to the four categories described above. This will imply a considerable scaling-up of projects in the immediate future. Thus it is hoped that the 'wider horizons experience' will be disseminated widely throughout the various vocational preparation and training networks in both parts of Ireland so that it becomes a normal part of the programme of all young people.

At 30 September 1988, 29 projects had been chosen for support under the Programme.

For particulars of projects under this Programme, see Appendix 7.

New Programmes

As recorded in the Chairman's Introduction, the Board reviewed its policies and priorities in September 1988. The results will fall outside the period under review. It is appropriate, nonetheless, to summarise here the decisions taken.

Some areas, particularly of Northern Ireland, are more seriously disadvantaged than others. Analysis of the preceding programme reports, and the ensuing appendices, will demonstrate that a very large proportion of the Fund's expenditure has already gone to these areas. However, in order to give greater emphasis to this priority, the Board, in consultation with the British and Irish governments, resolved first, to sharpen the focus of its existing programmes in relation to such areas; second, to allocate a further UK£3m to a specific Community Economic Regeneration initiative directed exclusively at these areas; and third, to set aside a further UK£3m for other projects located in these areas.

The Board sought from governments, and received, advice as to the definition of such areas. It has adopted a formula which reflects primarily unemployment rates, but also incorporates, to a lesser extent, other measurements of deprivation. It is the intention of the Board to invest not less than 50% of its resources in such areas.

The Board also decided to initiate an experimental Community Relations programme, both cross-community and cross-border, with an initial budget of £1 million.

Finally, at the instance of the British and Irish governments, the Board has undertaken to consider a limited number of major initiatives of symbolic importance — 'flagship projects' — such as proposals for the development of Navan Fort/Eamhain Macha; and for the reopening of the Ballinamore-Ballyconnell Canal; and will be assessing these in the light of the resources available, and of cost-benefit and other appraisals commissioned after the end of the year under review.

For particulars see Appendix 8.

Report of the Auditors to the Board

We have audited the financial statements set out on pages 38 to 43 in accordance with approved Auditing Standards and have obtained all the information and explanations we considered necessary.

In our opinion proper books of account have been kept by the Fund and the financial statements, which are in agreement therewith, give a true and fair view of the resources of the Fund at 30 September 1988 and of its income, expenditure and allocations for the year then ended.

Notes to the Financial Statements

for the year to 30 September 1988

- 1. Authority The Agreement between the Governments of Ireland and of the United Kingdom to establish the International Fund for Ireland was signed on 18 September 1986. Notifications of acceptance were exchanged on 1 December 1986 and orders giving effect to the agreement in the domestic law of the United Kingdom and of Ireland became operational on 12 December 1986. The previous financial statements of the Fund covered the period from 12 December 1986 to 30 September 1987.
- 2. Article 3 Article 3 of the Agreement to establish the Fund provides that approximately three-quarters of the resources of the Fund should be spent in Northern Ireland.
- 3. Accounting Policies A summary of the more important accounting policies adopted by the Fund is set out below:
- (a) Committed Expenditure
The income and expenditure account incorporates commitments of funds made to each expenditure programme, which, while remaining outstanding, are included in the balance sheet under liabilities. Grants paid, together with expenses incurred directly on the administration of grant programmes, are charged against the provisions for committed expenditure.
- (b) Currencies
The Fund's transactions are effected in the currencies of each part of Ireland. The financial statements are presented in both currencies, each representing an aggregation of all of the transactions for the year in both parts of Ireland translated at the respective exchange rates at the year end. Differences arising on the restatement, to the year end exchange rate, of assets and liabilities at the start of the financial year are charged against the Fund balance.
- (c) Interest Income
The income and expenditure account includes interest credited to the bank deposit accounts during the year together with interest accrued, but not actually credited, at the year end.
- (d) Investment Companies
Funds allocated and paid to the Fund's investment companies by way of investment in their share capital are treated as part of its programme expenditure, and no amount is shown in the balance sheet in respect of the investment in them. Summary details of the trading results and financial position of each investment company are included at note 8.

A more detailed analysis of the Fund's commitments and disbursements is included at page 44.

The disbursements made during the year include administration costs of UK£719,000/IR£843,000 payable to the agencies operating various programmes. Actual costs incurred by the agencies may be charged up to a maximum of 5% of total programme funding (10% in the case of the Urban Development Programme and the Farm Diversification Scheme) over the period of the programme's operation.

At 30 September 1988 the Fund had approved total project grants and investments of UK£26,579,000 (IR£31,174,000), which are detailed on pages 45 to 76.

8. Investment companies

The Fund's shareholdings in each of its investment company subsidiaries have been included as committed expenditure and not reflected as subsidiaries in the balance sheet (note 3 (d)). The issued share capital held by the Fund is UK£5,000,000 and IR£5,000,000 for IFI (Northern) Investments Limited and IFI (Southern) Investments Limited respectively.

A summary of the separate operating results of each company for the period to 30 September 1988 is as follows:

	IFI (Northern) Investments Limited UK£'000	IFI (Southern) Investments Limited IR£'000
Operating Results before Tax	15	95
Taxation	6	—
Profit after Tax	9	95

No taxation charge is reflected in the accounts of IFI (Southern) Investments Limited as a result of its tax exempt status.

The financial position of the companies at 30 September 1988 is summarised:

	IFI (Northern) Investments Limited UK£'000	IFI (Southern) Investments Limited IR£'000
Tangible Fixed Assets	34	36

Note:

The above totals of "Committed Expenditure" and "Amounts Disbursed" are the cumulative totals from the accounts of the Fund to date, and are expressed at the exchange rates that applied in each year. Accordingly, within each expenditure programme the totals are not directly comparable as a result of exchange differences.

"Project Approvals" represents the totals of offers of assistance approved by the Fund up to 30 September 1988 against each expenditure programme. These "Project Approvals" are listed in detail in the Appendices on pages 45 to 76. The project approvals shown for the investment companies represent the investments actually made by the companies themselves, rather than the Fund's disbursements for the subscription to their share capital.
