Dear Mike,

Enclosed is a resume of Eric M. Javits, the Senator's nephew, who is interested in becoming Ambassador to Spain. I had not met him before he came in to see me, but he seems to have some real Spanish credentials including a great many contacts there and -- he says -- a friendship with the King.

I can say that he deserves looking at and I understand that Dick Kennedy, at the State Department, is screening him now.

Best regards.

Sincerely,

Malcolm Baldrige

Thank you for sending the information about the architectural services you have provided for former Presidents. It was very impressive, and I am keeping this information on file for future reference.

Dear Mr. Deaver:

Stu Spencer suggested I write you regarding a presidential library the President may be planning. This past year, I met with Dick Burress at the Hoover Institution to discuss the possible location of the library at Stanford. He indicated that most of the President's past papers are there. They have excellent sites from which to select an appropriate setting and an invitation has been extended to the President. As site selection, master planning, and building design require considerable time, we would recommend an early decision.

Through the years we have provided architectural services for Presidents Eisenhower, Nixon and Ford. We designed the Eisenhower Library in Kansas, and plans for the Nixon Library at San Clemente. We recently completed the California Capitol restoration and the nearly completed Washington, D.C. Convention Center which was originally called the Eisenhower Bicentennial Convention Center.

At your convenience, I would like to meet with you to discuss this subject in much greater detail. I am enclosing some material for your information.

Thank you for your interest.

Dear Sonya:

Thanks for the nice warm letter. It was really great seeing you and the rest of my friends at the class reunion. I, too, am sorry that I didn't have more time. I could have visited for days....getting reacquainted was great.

I decided to send autographed pictures instead of just autographs. Hope you enjoy them.

With best wishes.

Mrs. Sonja Potter

Dear Mike,

I wanted to let you know how great it was to see you, I'm so glad that you were able to make the reunion. It was good to see your folks again too, they looked great. My grandson had a real good time with Blair, I'm glad there was some one his own age to play with.

I am sure sorry that you left so soon, you would not have believed the movies that Kenny Oldfield had. He had taken movies during some of our ludicrous bits at assemblies. Every one thought the ones of Connie and I were funny, but the ones of you and the Burdys, Jerry More and Jimmy Smith really knocked every one out. You would not have believed the laughter, tears rolled down every ones faces.

I talked to Paul Woodman's wife Sarah for an hour last night. We really had to agree that there just wasn't enough time to be together. We are really happy to find each other and do not intend to lose track again.

Paul has already made luncheon and weekend dates with Dick Bowlin & Jerry Moore, and he has written notes to others. I've done the same, I found 20 friends that I don't intend to lose again. We all feel the same, everyone agrees - another reunion in 5 years is a must!

You know, most of the people were in awe of you. All around me they were saying they wanted to say hello, but couldn't get up the nerve.

I was a little awe struck myself, so I'll tell you now, what I wanted to tell you then.

I am very proud of you,

Ponnie and I remember saying in school - "Someday Mike will be in the White House", and damn if you didn't make it, nice going!

I hesitated about writing to you, kept thinking about you proof reading this. Well that's OK, I'm still just me, mistakes and all.

I'm normal to, I brag about you to my friends, it's a nice feeling.

You know, when I was watching the special report on television, I almost died. I thought for sure when you ducked that you had been shot. I can imagine what your parents went through.

Well, God and I are on pretty good terms, and boy! did I do a lot of praying. To this day I keep you in my prayers, you, the President, and Mr. Brady - in that order. I've always been an admirer of M.A. Brady. But you know, years ago when Connie and I were walking to the bus stop. M.R. <sup>then</sup> Reagan was walking into the French Cafe. We finally got up our nerve and went in and ask for his autograph. "PLEASE, GIRL, LET ME EAT MY BREAKFAST" - Well, that took care of that! Boy, were we mad, we still laugh about it, AND this incident couldn't have made me happier, my mother-in-law ask me who I was voting for - "Ronald Reagan" I said - well hell! she hasn't spoke to me since. Some days I get really lucky. <sup>HA</sup>

I felt real proud to give him my vote, and then let down because he got so many votes I figured he really didn't need mine after all. My brain is on "hold" sometimes, isn't the country lucky that I'm not in politics?

Sell Mike, I'd better sign off, but I'd like to say again how great
it was to see you.

Just take care, and keep your reflexes fast. Say hello to Bill for me if you think of it, the paper is just not the same now.

I know that you are busy, so I don't expect an answer to this letter. But a sheet of paper with 3 autographs sure wouldn't hurt
my feelings. Yours, President Redgate and Mr. Brady. If you tell Connie I ask, I'll send you a dead skunk in the mail. The autographs would be in good company, I've been dragging people for years. One way or the other - I'll understand.

God Bless you and yours.

Dear Yue-Kong:

Thank you for your letter of June 22nd, inviting Mrs. Reagan to sponsor the launching of one of your large vessels.

I hope you will understand that, given the far distant dates involved, plus the considerable travel time, it will be difficult for us to make any sort of firm commitment in response to your generous offer.

You may also be aware that we are at something of a cross-roads with the People's Republic of China at this point. We hope very much that our relations with them will continue to prosper. If and when a Presidential trip to the People's Republic of China eventuates, an event such as you propose could well be part of the itinerary.

I am very appreciative of your offer and regret that I cannot respond more positively or specifically at this time.

Sincerely,

Michael K. Deaver

MEMORANDUM FOR MICHAEL K. DEEVER

FROM: WILLIAM P. CLARK WPC

SUBJECT: Invitation to Mrs. Reagan to Launch a Ship

The invitation from Sir Yue-Kong Pao is an intriguing one, but it is highly problematic that the First Lady would be in a position to accept it. We would not recommend that she make a special trip to Shanghai to launch a ship, and at this point, we are not at all certain that the President will be making a trip to China next year.

I thus suggest that you turn the invitation aside. If and when the President does travel to the People's Republic, an event of this sort might well be worked into a visit, but, as you are well aware, it is difficult to make a commitment of this sort for dates so far in the future.

Attached is a suggested response to Yue-Kong Pao.

Dear Mike,

It has been quite some time since I wrote last and I am sorry also to have missed the pleasure of seeing you during my last short visit to Washington, D.C. on May 4.

As you may know, my Group has started to order new ships in China and six dry cargo vessels in the 27,000 to 36,000 deadweight-ton range have been built or are being built for us by the Jiangnan Shipyard and Hudong Shipyard in Shanghai. I do not know if I could have the pleasure of extending an invitation to Mrs. Nancy Reagan to be Sponsor at the Launching Ceremony of one of these vessels scheduled to take place either at the end of March or mid April, 1983 and would be very grateful if you could assist in conveying the idea to the President and the First Lady for their reaction. Her acceptance would of course not only be a great honour for me and my Group, I am also convinced that at a time when Sino-American relations are at a cross-road, the presence of a lady of her position at a primarily social occasion like this in China will contribute immeasurably toward the goodwill and friendship between the people of the two countries.

If the dates mentioned do not fit conveniently into the First Lady's personal schedule, then I am fully prepared to offer the next vessel which is due for launching in the early part of July, 1983.

For your information, the first vessel in the series was sponsored recently by Mrs. Imelda Marcos of the Philippines, the second will be sponsored by Mrs. Dulce Figueiredo of Brazil in August, the third by Mrs. Margaret Thatcher of Britain in September, and the fourth by Mrs. Masayoshi Ohira, widow of the late Prime Minister of Japan in January, 1983. The vessels first mentioned above are the last two in the series.

Dear Bill:

Regarding your note about Jerry DeMontmorency's project: As you may know the Senate Finance Committee just passed a package of tax measures as part of the process to complete work on an acceptable FY 1983 budget. The package does not include any provisions altering current law which allows the commercial energy tax credit through 1985. The Administration supports the Senate Finance Committee package. Thus, if there are no changes as the legislation moves forward, the energy tax credits should remain available for the "wind farm" owners.

See you soon.

Dear Mike:

You may be getting a note soon from Jerry DeMontmorency of Tehachapi. He and I, and his cousin, Harry, went to school together at AV. Jerry is now in, among other things, real estate. He is also a tireless worker for the Republican cause.

Jerry will be writing you about the investment tax credit for wind energy producers. He was instrumental in obtaining land for most of the folks involved in the "wind farm" operation now underway in Oak Creek Pass. I believe we talked about this deal, and you may have seen stories we did in the paper.

The machines are on-line now, and seem to be working well. Power is being sold to SoCalEdison. The only problems, so far, are machines unable to stand up to our "gentle zephyrs."

There IS a problem with the tax credit. Jerry says he believes this thing can be a success if the guys can have the tax credits through about 1985. They have undertaken substantial investments believing they would receive the credits.

To me, this is a good example of how government can help develop innovate new energy sources without creating a bureaucracy to get in the way (and eat up tax dollars for years to come!)

If there's anything you can do... (hom many times a day do you hear THAT?)

Sincerely,

Dear Mike,

A lot has happened since we last talked! Congratulations on your part in the excellent choice of George Schultz to replace Al Haig as Secretary of State. I'm sure that he will add a lot of new perspective to the job. His experience as an international businessman should be of great benefit.

Mike, I visited with Nancy Reynolds at some length the other night and wanted to pass on to you my reaction to her conversation with you relative to setting up an informal "rap group." I think that, if such a group were comprised of people that you could trust implicitly not to leak to the press, engage in self engrandizing conversation, and who are willing to be totally frank in their conversations with you, a lot could be gained. Too often, people with whom you come in contact have other axes to grind of primary importance on their mind in their conversations. They, for legitimate and proper reasons, feel compelled to tell you what you and the President should do because of how it affects their own self interest. There is nothing wrong with that. What we're talking about, of course, is a group of people who could be more objective in their analysis of what is going on around Washington and the country; the political, press and national reaction to such matters and do so with a perspective of neutrality and with the singular objective to help the President. The composition of such a group must include people you feel totally comfortable with thus enabling you both to be as open as possible so that a constructive result could ensue.

July 19, 1982

In addition to your gaining insight and perspective from such a group, I'm sure that if these people had a better vision of the White House vantage point on certain decisions they might be in a position to help move public opinion through their contacts with the press. Often times, I'm sure you know, Nancy and I and others are called for our background reaction to things that are going on in the White House. With added insight such a group might prove to be useful with the press by careful use of apparently unbiased but nonetheless knowledgeable and reliable perspective that would enure to your benefit.

Mike, I'd be pleased to discuss this in greater detail with you if you have any interest in pursuing it further. I would be more than pleased to participate in such a group. You know of my interest in the President's success as well as your own. Any way that I can help you both would be my pleasure.

She said that in trying to <sup>be</sup> amusing, I'd been rude-that I had said in effect, that the only reason I was glad Deaver had come to town was that it helped my own job. Gave me something to criticize.

I guess that's what I did say, ~~but~~ I was trying to

Michael,

Just a note to say how much I enjoyed renewing our High School friendship at the class reunion. I'm glad that for Bundy and I had a chance to see and talk to you in your room.

I conveyed to my mother, who now lives in Sunnyvale with my sister, that I had seen you and your parents and she said she still has clear recollections of your parents.

I'm sorry we didn't have more time to talk but I do realize that your schedule was very busy to say the least. It's difficult for me to imagine being in such a position as yours where there is little or

I didn't realize how very important school friendships could be until our class reunion and it will certainly go down as a milestone in my life. I can't remember having more fun with a nicer group of people. It was interesting to hear of the different paths we've all taken.

The impact of our class reunion will carry on for quite some time I'm sure. So far I've gotten a nice note from Richard Beecher and from that I called him and we've arranged to have lunch.
