MEMORANDUM FOR WILLIAM P. CLARK

FROM: CARNES LORD CL

SUBJECT: Public Affairs Strategy for Versailles Summit

Charlie Wick has forwarded to you an ICA paper proposing a public affairs campaign connected with the Versailles Summit (Tab II). The paper outlines a number of concrete steps to prepare European opinion for the meeting. It strikes me as a reasonable and useful exercise.

How to handle it bureaucratically is another matter. I do not believe it appropriate for the memorandum to come to you directly; the SIG on Versailles would seem a better forum to consider it. I have drafted a response from you to Wick at Tab I to this effect.

Norm Bailey concurs. NB

Dear Bill:

Enclosed is the public affairs strategy paper for the Versailles Summit which we recommended at the April 28 SIG meeting on Versailles.

It provides an overview of public opinion in the Summit countries on issues which will arise at Versailles and suggests specific public affairs actions to position the USG for this conference.

Sincerely,

Charles Z. Wick
Director

The Honorable
Judge William P. Clark

A PUBLIC AFFAIRS CAMPAIGN FOR THE VERSAILLES SUMMIT

Summary

This paper proposes a public affairs campaign for the Versailles Summit. It describes the economic setting and the public opinion climate in the Summit countries on the major issues. U.S. public posture regarding the issues is recommended. Specific public affairs actions are suggested.

The Public Opinion Setting

At the Ottawa Summit a year ago, the newness of many of the participants, including President Reagan, and the willingness of West European leaders and publics to adopt a wait-and-see attitude toward U.S. economic policies made for a relatively harmonious and productive meeting. The Versailles Summit promises to take place in a quite different atmosphere characterized by severe economic dislocations, widespread public discontent and deeply-rooted scepticism about U.S. economic policies.

April USICA surveys show:

-- Large majorities in the six Summit countries consider their country's economic health to be "fairly" or "very" poor. The proportion holding this pessimistic view about doubled in Japan and Canada and increased substantially in France and West Germany since a year ago;

-- About one-half in Canada and one-third in the other countries believe the economic situation will become worse in the coming year; an increase over pessimistic expectations a year ago in France, Canada and Japan, but a decline in West Germany and Italy;

-- Unemployment is named most often in the four West European countries as a major problem with inflation mentioned next most frequently.
