MEMORANDUM FOR MR. WILLIAM P. CLARK
THE WHITE HOUSE

SUBJECT: Visit of Italian Prime Minister Craxi

Attached is a suggested text for the President's departure statement.

for Bannon-McKerley
Charles Hill
Executive Secretary

Attachment:
Suggested Statement

DEPARTURE STATEMENT

Prime Minister Craxi visits Washington as the leader of one of America's closest allies. Italy has, in recent years, taken its rightful place among the principal nations of the Western Alliance. We admire Italy for its many contributions, and have been impressed by the dynamic and statesmanlike leadership provided by the new Italian Government in its short time in office. We are particularly pleased by this opportunity to deepen our consultations and broaden our cooperation with our trusted Italian friends.

Italy has played a crucial role in the NATO effort to correct the imbalance in nuclear forces in Europe. Prime Minister Craxi and I reviewed the INF negotiations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union in Geneva where we seek an equitable, verifiable agreement. We still seek an agreement by the end of the year. If an agreement is not reached in time, we agreed that NATO would deploy U.S. missiles on schedule beginning at the end of this year, as decided in 1979. We remain committed to continuing negotiations even after the beginning of deployments -- indeed, negotiations have been going on for two years while the Soviets have been deploying far greater numbers of systems.

In addition to our discussion of INF, the Prime Minister and I reviewed developments in other arms control fields. The U.S. and Italy share a common approach to the Conference on Disarmament in Europe, where we will be working to reduce the risk of surprise attack in Europe by improving observation and understanding of military forces and activities. We are also working together in the MBFR talks in Vienna to achieve parity in ground forces in Central Europe.

I expressed to the Prime Minister our appreciation for the very positive contribution Italy is making to Mediterranean security and to the search for peace in the Middle East. Italy was among the first nations to step forward to provide forces in the Sinai to help implement the historic agreement reached between Egypt and Israel at Camp David. Italian and American soldiers now are standing shoulder to shoulder in Lebanon where our two nations are bearing the difficult burdens of peacekeeping. We are cooperating not only in keeping the peace, but in making peace as well. The Prime Minister and I had a chance to review our common efforts to promote genuine political reconciliation within Lebanon and to work toward the restoration of Lebanese sovereignty throughout that troubled nation.

We reviewed the outlook for the global economy and exchanged views on our respective efforts to deal with common economic difficulties. I expressed our understanding of the dimensions of the economic problems Italy presently faces and our support for the tough, but essential measures the Italian Government is taking to restore balanced and non-inflationary growth. I explained that the U.S. economy had turned the corner, and expressed the hope that our own strong recovery would help Italy lift itself out of its present recession.

I have been especially impressed by Prime Minister Craxi's commitment to an effective attack on organized crime and narcotics trafficking. Quite obviously we share a crucial interest in efforts to control the international traffic in narcotics. Accordingly, the Prime Minister and I have directed our officials to intensify cooperation in the fight against narcotics production and smuggling.

Prime Minister Craxi comes to our shores as an especially welcome guest. In international affairs, where the element of personal trust is so essential, such meetings as this are invaluable. I am delighted to say that the Prime Minister and I have laid the basis today for continuing the open, cooperative and mutually-helpful relationship which has been traditional between our two governments and their leaders.

Thank you.

Columbus Day, 1983

Proclamation 5089. September 6, 1983

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

It is fitting that Americans honor those individuals who have altered the course of history in this country by exhibiting great moral character and courage—men and women who have contributed to the development of personal liberties we enjoy today. Thus, it is especially appropriate that I urge all Americans to honor one of those individuals, Christopher Columbus.

Columbus was a bold and adventurous navigator who left Europe in 1492 in search of new lands and first recorded the sighting of the North American continent. In this sense he personifies the courage and vision so many explorers exhibited during this period. Yet he is more than this. He represents a spirit, the spirit of the Renaissance which contributed to the development of America. Along with Galileo, Copernicus, and others, Columbus symbolizes a quest for knowledge, a willingness and fortitude to go beyond what is accepted as truth in the name of progress. Columbus did not fall off the face of the earth; rather, through daring, risk, and innovation, he discovered new horizons.

Since Columbus discovered America, numerous families have exhibited that same courage and fortitude in setting sail across the seas to become American citizens. By taking that step into the new and unknown, those same families created an opportunity to realize increased prosperity and greater freedom here in these United States. The accomplishments and contributions of Christopher Columbus provide an example of the rewards that can come from taking initiatives. Today Americans have the opportunity and freedom to make accomplishments and contributions of their own and to enjoy the feelings of accomplishment which follow.

Of course Columbus Day is a day of special importance to Americans of Italian heritage. It is a day when all Americans should join in recognizing the great contributions of Italian-Americans to this country's cultural, scientific, athletic and commercial achievements, and religious vitality.

In tribute to the achievement of Columbus, the Congress of the United States, by joint resolution approved April 30, 1934 (48 Stat. 657), as modified by the Act of June 28, 1968 (82 Stat. 250), has authorized and requested the President to issue a proclamation designating the second Monday in October of each year as Columbus Day.

Now, Therefore, I, Ronald Reagan, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Monday, October 10, 1983, as Columbus Day. I invite the people of this Nation to observe that day in schools, churches and other suitable places with appropriate ceremonies in honor of this great explorer. I also direct that the flag of the United States be displayed on all public buildings on the appointed day in memory of Christopher Columbus.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 6th day of Sept., in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and eighty-three, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and eighth.

NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

John,

I am lunching with the Italians and may not return here prior to the 3 p.m. meeting. Eagleburger's office asks -- pleads -- that we not send his paper back by LDX.
I will hard-carry it,
after the fact if necessary. Thank you.

Don,
Please prepare a short note to Larry. It looks reasonable to me. J
Did Blair give you the sensitive file?
