NATIONAL DAY OF RECOGNITION FOR MOHANDAS K. GANDHI, 1988

- - - - -

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

The message of Mohandas Gandhi, Indian disciple of nonviolent resistance to tyranny and injustice, was that no society based on the denial of basic liberties can endure. Four decades ago, he died a victim of hatred -- but before his death and after, and across the oceans and continents, he gave enduring witness to all who seek, often in desperate and unequal contests, to secure the inherent rights that belong to every human being without exception. Today freedom and the desire for human rights and democracy are on the march everywhere, and Gandhi's example and inspiration offer us good reason to observe a day of recognition for this giant of the 20th century.

The sole force at Gandhi's disposal was that of nonviolent persuasion -- the force of right. He understood the ideas of many of America's thinkers, such as Emerson and Thoreau. He demonstrated the power of those ideas and created a legacy that was to offer courage and hope to America's civil rights movement and many other Americans from that day to this.

Though today's United States differs in countless respects from the India of the 1930's and 1940's, nevertheless we continue to feel a kinship for many of the ideas Mohandas Gandhi represented, such as the reconciliation he championed in the search for freedom and justice. May our observance of this day in his honor be suffused with a like and lasting spirit.

The Congress, by Senate Joint Resolution 169, has designated October 2, 1988, as a "National Day of Recognition for Mohandas K. Gandhi" and authorized and requested the President to issue a proclamation in observance of this day.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RONALD REAGAN, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim October 2, 1988, as a National Day of Recognition for Mohandas K. Gandhi. I urge the people of the United States to observe this day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this day of _____, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and eighty-eight, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and thirteenth.

A NATIONAL DAY OF RECOGNITION FOR

MOHANDAS K. GANDHI, 1988

- - - - -

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

A PROCLAMATION

Today we celebrate the life of a man whose works have reached across the boundaries of oceans and whose efforts have transcended cultures as different as those of India and America. Mohandas K. Gandhi spent his entire life as a tireless champion of human rights. The same inspiration drawn by millions in India over the course of Gandhi's life is drawn today by those struggling to achieve basic human rights throughout the world in sometimes desperate and unequal contests.

The sole force at Gandhi's disposal was that of non-violent persuasion: in short, the force of right. He was relentless in the use of this non-violence force. By his espousal of civil disobedience, he demonstrated the power of some of the America's greatest thinkers on his own thought. He understood clearly the message of Ralph Waldo Emerson and Henry David Thoreau. Yet he returned to America far more than he took, for his own work provided inspiration and courage to the leaders of our civil rights movement.

Gandhi's basic message was simple: no society which is built upon the denial of basic freedoms and liberties can endure.

Gandhi tirelessly demanded an end to double standards of personal and civic morality. He understood as few others have understood that political actions are enduring only if undertaken by men and women of the highest integrity. He set forth a standard which has rarely been met, but which stands ready to expose all hypocrisy.

Even though the India of the 1930's and 1940's is a very different place existing under different circumstances than the United States of the 1980's, we feel akin to Gandhi. The ideas he represented so brilliantly are close to so many of our own most cherished ideas. Gandhi, himself deeply devout and at a time of great communal tensions, demanded total religious toleration. In doing so, he proclaimed the simple fact that truly religious individuals may work together in harmony to achieve social justice.

I find it therefore entirely appropriate that we set aside this day as a tribute to Mohandas K. Gandhi. The Congress, by Senate Joint Resolution 169, has designated October 2, 1988, as A National Day of Recognition for Mohandas K. Gandhi and has authorized and requested the President to issue a proclamation in observance of this day.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RONALD REAGAN, President of the United States, do hereby proclaim October 2, 1988, as A National Day of Recognition for Mohandas K. Gandhi. I call upon the people of the United States to observe such day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Enrolled Bill S. 425 - Relief of Sukhjit Kuldip Singh Saund
Sponsor - Sen. Moynihan (D) New York

Last Day for Action

October 8, 1988 - Saturday

Purpose

To permit Sukhjit Kuldip Singh Saund to obtain permanent resident status in the United States.

Agency Recommendations

Office of Management and Budget

Approval

Immigration and Naturalization Service
Department of State

No objection
No objection
(Informally)

Discussion

Sukhjit Kuldip Singh Saund is a 64-year old native and citizen of India currently in the United States on a visitor's visa that expired in February 1988. Mrs. Saund was found to be ineligible for a special immigrant visa -- available to foreign citizens with at least 15 years of U.S. Government employment abroad -- despite her 21 years of service in the commissary in the American embassy in New Delhi. The Senate Judiciary Committee report on the enrolled bill indicates that Mrs. Saund's employment with the company that managed the commissary was not considered to be "U.S. Government service" for purposes of the immigration laws. Consequently, she is subject to deportation.

Mrs. Saund, a widow, who resides with her niece and niece's husband in Santa Monica, California, has two sisters who became lawful permanent U.S. residents during the last several years. While she has three sisters residing in India, and one in Canada, Mrs. Saund desires to live in California with her niece. The Immigration and Naturalization Service advised informally, that absent this legislation, Mrs. Saund would not currently be eligible to obtain permanent resident status.

S. 425, which passed both Houses by voice vote, provides that Sukhjit Kuldip Singh Saund shall be considered to have been lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence as of the date of enactment of this bill and upon payment of the required visa fee.
