SUMMARY: Meeting with anti-pornography coalition organized by Father Morton Hill, S.J., Morality in Media. See attached list on event of evening before.

This is a high-powered coalition. In attendance were Cardinal Crowell, Pat Robertson, Richard Viguerie, and other religious and pro-family leaders.

Attorneys and other experts produced evidence that Justice Department policy is to not prosecute Federal anti-pornography offenses unless they involve child pornography. Their urgent request was to meet with President Reagan and get him to agree to meet with them to agree to direct the Justice Department to change its policy. They want the Justice Department to inform the FBI, the Post Office, and the U.S. Customs that they are prepared now to fully enforce all the Federal anti-obscenity statutes. Assistant Attorney-General for Legal Policy Jonathan Rose was surprised at some of the documentation they produced and expressed a willingness to work with them to resolve legal questions prior to any subsequent meetings for them with the President or other Administration officials.

Very constructive meeting.

PLACE: Room 330 - OEOB

PROJECT OFFICER: Morton C. Blackwell

NUMBER OF GUESTS:

ADMINISTRATION PARTICIPANTS:

SUMMARY:

Discussed new draft of Presidential statement on Indian Policy.

The policy group agreed to recommend a study commission composed of tribal leaders, business leaders and free market economists to come up with innovative, non-governmental solutions to Indian economic development problems. It was agreed that the Indian oriented Federal bureaucracy has built in biases against non-governmental solutions to Indian problems and thus would probably be incapable of recommending the legislative and policy changes required to create a private economic infra-structure needed on Indian reservations.

SUMMARY: Appeared live on ABC Network's Good Morning America. Appeared opposite John Lofton and William Rusher on topic of conservative criticism of Reagan Administration. I emphasized that the problems of half a century of almost total liberal Democratic control of the White House or the Congress or both could not be reversed overnight. I suggested that the tax measure now being considered was much smaller in magnitude than the Reagan tax cuts enacted into law last year.

I noted it is much easier to criticize than to praise and that public misconceptions would be less if the media, including conservative media, would run some feature stories on this Administration's success in dramatically lowering the high inflation rate President Reagan inherited from President Carter.

DATE: July 18, 1982 TIME: 3:00 P.M.

PLACE: Paul Weyrich's office

PROJECT OFFICER:

NUMBER OF GUESTS: approximately 8
(Attach list)

ADMINISTRATION PARTICIPANTS: Morton C. Blackwell

SUMMARY:

Meeting with Paul Weyrich, Connie Marshner, Phil Crane, and conservative union leaders affiliated with the Industrial Society of Skilled Trades led by Henry Shickling and Joe Dennebeck. These are strong Reagan supporters who urged Administration action on school prayer, right to life, right to keep and bear arms and pro-family issues. They also want to change a National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) ruling which prevents them from recognition as unions separate from CIO production unions such as United Auto Workers and United Rubber Workers.

During the campaign the President agreed to appoint one of them to NLRB. Lee Hamilton of the N.A.M. says they represent about 50,000 workers in Midwestern and Midatlantic states. Bob Bonitati estimates their membership at 500.

After consulting with Bonitati I checked with White House Personnel and found that Joe Dennebeck's resume has not been received for consideration for any position. I notified Dennebeck of this and he admitted none had been sent. He said he would draft one and submit it. There is no NLRB vacancy until December of 1982.
