Dear Mr. President,

My name is Paul Wolboldt. I am a Staff Sergeant in the Air Force at Zweibrucken Air Base. I recently read that you are making a trip to Germany in May. Sir, I would like to ask you if you could find it in your very busy schedule to come and visit us here for a day. Even a few hours. Perhaps you could speak to the NCOs and junior enlisted for a minutes at say the NCO Club. We are a small base but we are doing big things and we would like to show them to you. We are very proud to serve you and the country. We're glad to have you as our Commander.

If you can not fit us into your schedule I will understand. But may I trouble you a moment more? Could I please have two pictures of you? One would be for my work-center in Crypto Maintenance and the other would be for my two sons, Matthew and David, and my wife Eileen. Oh, by the way you and Mrs. Reagan are welcome in my home anytime. Stay the course. Thank you for listening, Sir.

Sincerely,

Paul M Wolboldt

Dear President Reagan,

Dwight Eisenhower often walked the thirty yards from Allied Forces Headquarters at Norfolk House, St James' Square, to the Reform Club, during those important days in 1944 when Operation Overlord was being planned and implemented.

I believe that he, and many other good Americans, joined forces with members of the Reform Club to exhaust our then stocks of vintage port, good brandies, and clarets.

I understand that you may mark the Fortieth Anniversary of the end of the Second World War in Europe by making a State Visit to West Germany, and perhaps you and Nancy would care to stop over in England, in a private or formal capacity, to share a glass or two of our current vintage ports and brandies with members of the Club and some of our American friends.

The type of function might take the form of a formal dinner, with you and your wife as our Guests of Honour or, alternatively, you might prefer if we hold a "Gala Ball", with dancing to 1940's music. In either case, we will pick a date that suits your convenience.

You may recall that I first invited you to dine with us immediately prior to your standing for Presidential Office for the first time. You then replied that you would be happy to accept if and when circumstances allowed. I am hoping that this will now be the case as a function of this type at the Reform Club would seem to be an appropriate way to recognise the sacrifices made by those American and British warriors who worked in Allied Forces Headquarters in St James', and relaxed at the Reform Club prior to going to Europe, some of them never to return.

I look forward to hearing from you and do hope you will be able to accept.

Kindest regards.

Dear Mr. Ryan,

I am writing to acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 22nd addressed to Mr. Llambias.

There appear to be two ways of interpreting your letter, namely :

1. there is a reasonably good chance that you will be able to incorporate a dinner with the Economics and Current Affairs Group of the Reform Club within the President's schedule for one of his future trips, or
2. you are telling us in a very polite and courteous way that it will be impossible for the President to spend time with us.

I hope you do not mind me being so direct in seeking clarification, but Mr. Llambias would not like to raise the hopes and expectations of important members of the Reform Club should your letter not, in reality mean there is a reasonable chance that President Reagan will be able to spend time with members of the Group.

Your good wishes are reciprocated.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr. Ryan,

Thank you for your letter of 12th March.

Whilst it is disappointing to learn that the President and Mrs. Reagan will be unable to dine with us at the Reform Club, I fully understand the heavy commitments their itinerary must impose upon them.

However, I would appreciate it if you could let me know whether the actual concept of dining with the Economics and Current Affairs Group of the Reform Club appeals to the President, and if so, would be grateful if you could let me have dates of any planned forthcoming Presidential visits to the U.K. so that I can make appropriate arrangements well in advance.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Dear President Reagan, ^{dinner invitation while in Germany} ^{FIR-16 Jan. 30}
We have heard on the news of your upcoming visit to Germany and would like to extend an invitation for dinner. My husband is a Captain in the Air Force, based at Ramstein AB and we have been overseas nearly 4 years, enjoying the opportunity to travel and experience another culture. We have a daughter who is 4 and a son, 13 months.

^{Sincerely,} We miss being near family and friends but have made many close friends here. At times, life in the military is frustrating but we feel strongly about serving our country. We share the same concerns that all military families do. The erosion of benefits is an important issue. When we see friends with the same credentials making double the salaries in civilian employment, we sometimes feel foolish for staying in. But it is our choice that we are here and we hope the government can make it possible for experienced men and women to make the military a career. That includes maintaining the benefits which make our nomadic lifestyle more bearable.

I do hope that we can share our home with you and Mrs. Reagan if she accompanies you. Germany is a shoppers paradise and many a wife has helped support the German economy.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ellen Corrie

Dear Mr. Deaver,

In a personal letter to the President of the United States of America I have expressed the desire to present him with a symbolical key on the occasion of his speech to the German youth at Hambach Castle. The key shows the bond of our two countries, an emblem of youth, and the castle as landmark of my hometown Heidelberg.

I am well aware that this is an unusual desire.

For years I strive with all my heart to cultivate the German-American friendship, especially in the young generation. Chaotic leftists and anti-American demonstrations of protest which occasionally happen, must not be permitted to convey the impression that German youth as a whole is sceptical or suspicious against our closest ally, the United States of America. That impression would be wrong and most unfortunate. The vast majority of our people, the young generation included, own up to America and her ideals of freedom, for which she stands up all over the world.

Sometimes a symbol can express more than words can do in this sober world of ours. For this reason I would like to present that key to the President of the United States of America as a significant symbol. I wish that by his speech to the German youth at Hambach Castle, President Reagan opens their hearts and that his ideas are open mindedly taken in by the young people of our country. I am certain that this symbol will be understood by everybody. Your Excellency, to realize my idea I have asked an artist to elaborate according to my political conceptions a suggestion for such a key. Enclosed please find a copy of his drawing. The realization of my idea in the form of a complete artistic cast

I have entrusted to a caster. The key will be approximately 30 inches high and be made of aluminium, a material of the future. The emblem on this key shows both countries, USA and Germany, blended in a circle. On the stalk of the key is the emblem of the Junge Union and the year 1985, in the key-bit are the contours of Heidelberg Castle, well known in the United States too.

I should be very glad to be granted the possibility to present this key to the American President on the occasion of his speech to the German youth at Hambach Castle. The key can be submitted two or three weeks prior to the date of the speech to the American and German security agencies for inspection. I should be much obliged if I could establish personal contact with you in the near future.

Sincerely yours

Dear Mr. President,

During your visit to the Federal Republic of Germany in May this year you will speak to the German youth at Hambach Castle. I am grateful that you will take the opportunity to address the younger generation which will be responsible for our country in the future.

Today I would like to approach you with a personal request, trusting to find your sympathy and consent:

First of all, please permit me to introduce myself:

I am 34 years old, since four years deputy chairman of the Junge Union Baden-Württemberg, the largest German youth organization. Following my studies of jurisprudence, with international law as point of main effort, and subsequent to my several years at the Max-Planck-Institut for Comperative Public Law and International Law in Heidelberg, I have been working since five years as personal expert adviser to the President of the Landtag of Baden-Württemberg. On the occasion of the European election on June 17, 1984, as a candidate for the Christian Democratic Union, I have engaged myself in several hundred meetings for the idea of a united Europe and the relationship with the United States of America. For our future it is of great and fateful importance to cultivate these relations between our two countries. The United States of America and the Federal Republic of Germany do not only stand side by side as reliable confederates in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in defence of the communist threat. Moreover we are linked in the common acknowledgement to the worth and principles of democracy, freedom, and justice. The desire for peace and freedom is the root of our lasting friendship. As a politician of the young generation I consider it to be my foremost duty, to firmly establish the friendship based on these principles in the heads and especially in the hearts of our young people.

I do wish, Mr. President, that your speech to the German youth will open the hearts of the young people in our country. For this purpose I would like to present you with a symbolical key, showing the bond of our two countries, an emblem of youth, and the castle as landmark of my hometown Heidelberg.

Mr. President, I should be very pleased if at Hambach Castle, acting for all those young people in my country, I could hand over this key to you.

Sincerely yours

I am 34 years old, since four years deputy chairman of the Junge Union Baden-Württemberg, the largest German youth organization. Following my studies of jurisprudence, with international law as point of main effort, and subsequent to my several years at the Max-Planck-Institut for Comperative Public Law and International Law in Heidelberg, I have been working since five years as personal expert adviser to the President of the Landtag of Baden-Württemberg. On the occasion of the European election on June 17, 1984, as a candidate for the Christian Democratic Union, I have engaged myself in several hundred meetings for the idea of a united Europe and the relationship with the United States of America. For our future it is of great and fateful importance to cultivate these relations between our two countries. The United States of America and the Federal Republic of Germany do not only stand side by side as reliable confederates in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in defence of the communist threat. Moreover we are linked in the common acknowledgement to the worth and principles of democracy, freedom, and justice. The desire for peace and freedom is the root of our lasting friendship. As a politician of the young generation I consider it to be my foremost duty, to firmly establish the friendship based on these principles in the heads and especially in the hearts of our young people.

I do wish, Mr. President, that your speech to the German youth will open the hearts of the young people in our country. For this purpose I would like to present you with a symbolical key, showing the bond of our two countries, an emblem of youth, and the castle as landmark of my hometown Heidelberg.

Mr. President, I should be very pleased if at Hambach Castle, acting for all those young people in my country, I could hand over this key to you.

Sincerely yours

Dear Mr. Sultanik:

I have been asked to reply to your letter of March 22 to President Reagan concerning the President's upcoming visit to the Federal Republic of Germany. The President is certainly keenly aware of the symbolic dimension imposed on his trip by the coincidence of the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II. In our preparations for the commemoration of this anniversary, he has stressed his personal determination to ensure that the crimes of the Third Reich shall not be forgotten and that conditions which made them possible shall never return again.

As the President noted at his press conference on March 21, the best way to achieve this goal is to look to the future. Commemoration of the Holocaust should be not only a matter for Germany, but for all mankind. The President has elected to speak before the European Parliament in Strasbourg on May 8 in order to underline to all of Europe the American commitment to maintaining conditions which will make it impossible for dictatorship and intolerance to find sustenance in any of the democratic nations of Europe.

Similarly, the state visit to Germany will make clear that while we do not forget the past, the United States views defense of our common democratic alliance as essential to preservation of human liberties in the Federal Republic. In so doing, the President will not ignore any of the atrocities committed by the Third Reich. He will not pass up the need to remind Germany -- and the world -- that human beings everywhere must view the Holocaust as a brutal lesson of the depths to which mankind can descend.

This by no means implies the the President or his German hosts seek to ignore those who lost their lives or the hideous excesses of the totalitarian Nazi regime, of which Dachau is a nightmarish example. The holocaust remains part of the consciousness of all responsible persons in Germany and it is a subject the President has discussed with Chancellor Helmut Kohl on numerous occasions. It is a burden which the Federal Republic recognizes it will continue to bear even as it looks to its future.

But the end of World War II has other associations for the German people in addition to the historical obligations it imposes. It was a time of defeat, humiliation, despair, and loss of hope. Its commemoration in Germany must necessarily be a somber and reflective occasion which focuses on each individual and his conscience. The United States is proud of its role in helping to create conditions in the Federal Republic which make unthinkable a return to the excesses of the Third Reich. The President believes that we should take satisfaction in this historic accomplishment and should entrust to our German allies the responsibility for observing this historic date as they see best.

With best wishes.

Sincerely,

WHITE HOUSE CEREMONY HONORS NAZIS' VICTIMS: As President Reagan watches, Kaiman Sultanik, left, and Sigmund Strochlitz light candles, one for each million of the six million Jews killed in the Holocaust. Page A21.

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP) — Congress and President Reagan led the nation today in commemorating the six million Jews who were victims of the Nazi Holocaust nearly four decades ago.

As politicians and onlookers sat quietly at a simple ceremony under the Capitol dome, survivors of the Holocaust lit six candles, one for each million killed in the attempt by Nazi Germany before and during World War II to exterminate the Jews.

A similar ceremony, led by the President, was held at the White House. President Reagan said the tragedy of the Holocaust never should be forgotten because "the things that bring us together here are still possible in the world today."

Senator Ted Stevens, Republican of Alaska, told the gathering at the Capitol that the commemoration was being held to "demand that history not repeat itself."

"All generations must know of those horrors," he said. "If they do not know, they will not learn the lessons history of-

"Today we join together with firm resolve that this nation will not remain indifferent to human misery and suffering wherever we may find it."

'Testify to the Holocaust'

The Speaker of the House, Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, said, "We must testify to the Holocaust in order to reaffirm our insistent belief in the sacredness of human life and the strength of values."

Mr. O'Neill said Americans mourned those who died in the Holocaust but added, "We also mourn man, who is capable of destroying others and all that gives life meaning."

The United States is the only nation other than Israel that marks the Holocaust with national ceremonies.

The two-part ceremony at the White House and at the Capitol is part of a week-long commemoration that also includes memorial ceremonies in the capitals of more than 40 states and special shows on public television.

This is the second such official memorial service since Congress established the United States Holocaust Memorial Council in 1980 and charged it with organizing memorial events to help Americans remember the systematic attempt by Nazi Germany to exterminate Jews.

The council said the Public Broadcasting Service was providing its stations with films on the Holocaust. Exhibits of 21 photographic posters depicting life before, during and after the Holocaust will be displayed in the lobbies of nine Federal departments and one Federal office.

In addition, some 17,000 public, school and college libraries have been notified of the event so that they can display posters and books about the Holocaust.

Elie Wiesel, chairman of the council, said, "It is hoped that remembrance of the Holocaust will serve to prevent genocide against any people anywhere."

Dear Mr. President:

I am writing as Vice-President of the World Jewish Congress and as a member of the United States Holocaust Memorial Council, and as a concentration camp survivor, to appeal to you to visit a concentration camp site during your next visit to Europe, to mark the fortieth anniversary of Victory Day and of the defeat of Nazi Germany. I cannot possibly describe how much your visit would mean to the free world, to the Jews, and especially to the survivors. Your reluctance to make such a visit would be taken as insensitivity to the agony of freedom loving people the world over, and especially the Jewish people.

Dear Mr. President, how can we teach our young people the horrors of the Holocaust when the leader of the greatest democracy in the world seems prepared to forget it?

Dear Mr. President, I have heard that you are unwilling to mark the Victory Day anniversary by visiting a concentration camp site in Germany or Austria, because you do not want to hurt them by reminding them of the past. This would seem to suggest that nothing has changed, and that today's Germans and Austrians are no better than their Nazi predecessors.

However, to circumvent these difficulties, may I suggest that while in Europe you visit the Natzweiler-Struthof concentration camp, in Alsace, on the French side of the border. The World Jewish Congress will be holding its formal commemoration of the end of World War II in Strasbourg, at the seat of the European Parliament, from May 16 through May 19. As part of this commemoration, there will be a solemn memorial at Struthof attended by Jewish leaders and dignitaries from around the world.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: DONALD T. REGAN
FROM: PAT BUCHANAN PJB
SUBJECT: GOVERNOR CUOMO HOLOCAUST LETTER

In attached letter, Mario Cuomo is attempting to capitalize on President's remarks re: Holocaust and German visit. May be raised in New York. Suggested response if asked:

- A) Holocaust one of the great moral obscenities of all time
- B) Should never be forgotten
- C) President has commemorated it almost every year in Washington, D.C.; intends to do so again this year.

Reason he will not visit Dachau this year -- President wants the emphasis and focus of this trip to be -- not the crimes of the Nazis -- but the end of hostilities between German and American peoples, the beginning of peace, the building of permanent friendship and alliance between United States and a democratic Germany.

Other point President was making: Young Germans, most of whom were not even born when Holocaust took place, should not be forced to bear the guilt of the crimes of Hitler's Reich.

Dear Mr. President:

I write to you as an American, a Governor and a member of the United States Holocaust Memorial Council.

Mr. President, I am afraid that your explanation on Thursday evening for not visiting Dachau may suggest an insensitivity that is not appropriate to your high office. Your remarks can be seen as an affront to the memory of the victims of the Holocaust and an insult to the survivors. One would hope that your remarks were inadvertent and that you will correct them.

It is difficult to believe that you intended the obvious impact of the words to the effect that there are "very few alive that remember even the war, and certainly none of them who were adults and participating in any way," while the United States government has deportation proceedings pending against scores of Nazi war criminals, the French government is preparing to try Klaus Barbie and an active international search continues for the infamous Dr. Mengele.

Your comments about "a guilt feeling that's been imposed upon" the German people only serves to aid the cause of those who have spent the years since 1945 attempting to expunge the memory of the Holocaust and to deny its reality.

Many of the survivors record in their memoirs that what gave them the courage to survive amidst the bestial and inhumane conditions of the extermination camps was their desire to bear witness. They wanted to be able to record these atrocities, not prompted by hate or a desire for vengeance, but as a warning to the world of the legacy of centuries of anti-Semitism. Your comments I'm afraid, have made it more difficult to explain to young people the necessity of remembering the events and meaning of the Holocaust. Those who counsel forgetting the Holocaust and its lessons expose humanity to a very serious danger.

I urge you, most sincerely, to reconsider the words you chose last week, and restate your position at your earliest possible opportunity.

Respectfully,

Mario Cuomo

Dear Governor Cuomo:

On behalf of the President, I thank you for your letter concerning the President's trip to Germany later this spring, and the decision not to visit Dachau. We reviewed carefully with the German Government the possibility of a visit to Dachau in planning the President's itinerary.

The President intends that the focus of this trip should be the ending of hostilities between the German and American peoples, the continuous peace that followed and the building of permanent friendship and alliance between the United States and a democratic Germany. While the President recognizes the Holocaust as one of the great moral obscenities of all times, and feels very strongly that its horrors should never be forgotten, its remembrance is not the purpose of this year's trip to Germany. Time and time again, the President has taken part in ceremonies remembering the Holocaust and, undoubtedly, will take frequent opportunity to do so in the future.

Again, thank you for bringing your concerns to the President's attention. If I can be of any further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Andrew H. Card, Jr.

Dear Mr. President:

I write to you as an American, a Governor and a member of the United States Holocaust Memorial Council.

Mr. President, I am afraid that your explanation on Thursday evening for not visiting Dachau may suggest an insensitivity that is not appropriate to your high office. Your remarks can be seen as an affront to the memory of the victims of the Holocaust and an insult to the survivors. One would hope that your remarks were inadvertent and that you will correct them.

It is difficult to believe that you intended the obvious impact of the words to the effect that there are "very few alive that remember even the war, and certainly none of them who were adults and participating in any way," while the United States government has deportation proceedings pending against scores of Nazi war criminals, the French government is preparing to try Klaus Barbie and an active international search continues for the infamous Dr. Mengele.

Your comments about "a guilt feeling that's been imposed upon" the German people only serves to aid the cause of those who have spent the years since 1945 attempting to expunge the memory of the Holocaust and to deny its reality.

Many of the survivors record in their memoirs that what gave them the courage to survive amidst the bestial and inhumane conditions of the extermination camps was their desire to bear witness. They wanted to be able to record these atrocities, not prompted by hate or a desire for vengeance, but as a warning to the world of the legacy of centuries of anti-Semitism. Your comments I'm afraid, have made it more difficult to explain to young people the necessity of remembering the events and meaning of the Holocaust. Those who counsel forgetting the Holocaust and its lessons expose humanity to a very serious danger.

I urge you, most sincerely, to reconsider the words you chose last week, and restate your position at your earliest possible opportunity.

Respectfully,

Mario M. Cuomo
Governor
