MEMORANDUM FOR THE HONORABLE WILLIAM P. CLARK
NATIONAL SECURITY ADVISOR TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: U.S. Commission to Egypt on Agriculture

A couple of months ago A.I.D. received a request from the Government of Egypt to assess opportunities for growth in the agricultural sector of Egypt. A.I.D., with the Department of Agriculture, assembled a distinguished team of leading U.S. agriculturists, economists, etc.

The team is now in Egypt and will be introduced to the Egyptian government on March 2, 1982.

The Egyptian government has become especially excited about the team and the possible impact of the visit. Accordingly, the Egyptian government has asked if this team could be designated as a Presidential Mission to conduct the study to the Opportunities for Growth in the Agricultural Sector of the Republic of Egypt.

This team is like a Presidential Task Force under the Cancun Initiative. However, our Ambassador to Egypt believes that our special relationship with Egypt requires that this team not be designated as part of the larger group of Task Forces. Accordingly, the team will in every way be like a Presidential Task Force except it will be called a Presidential Mission.

The team is headed by Dr. E. T. York, former Chancellor of the State University system in Florida and Vice Chairman of BIFAD, a board that advises A.I.D. He is well known to me.

I ask that the White House announce this Mission by Tuesday, March 2, 1982, so that the announcement can be used when the Mission is introduced to the Egyptian government. We have attached a proposed press release on the matter. Also, enclosed is a full list of the Mission members, although we suggest that only Dr. York's name be used in the press release.

Call Mort Allin right now. Give him a "heads-up" that we would like for the announcement to be made this afternoon and that an announcement will be over soon.

Tell him you and I have talked and I approve.

If for some reason, they can't do it today, ask that it be done tomorrow. Actually it isn't so important that it be reported here--only that it be announced (or even posted) so that it can be given play in Cairo.

Once it is resolved with Mort, notify AID.

Many thanks

PRESIDENT SENDS AGRICULTURE MISSION TO EGYPT

President Reagan announced today he is sending a 16-member team to Egypt to assess that country's opportunities for growth in its agricultural sector. The President's Mission consists of leading U.S. experts in the fields of agriculture science, economics, education, engineering, and marketing and information.

The study was discussed during Egyptian President Mubarak's visit to the United States in early February. President Mubarak, at that time, expressed his intentions to emphasize the need for economic reform and progress in Egypt and to undertake necessary measures towards that end.

Dr?

President Reagan's Agriculture Mission will be led by Mr. E.T. York, Vice Chairman of the Board for International Food and Agricultural Development. The mission will work closely with the Egyptian Ministry of Agriculture in a joint effort to assess the constraints to increasing agricultural productivity. The team will make recommendations for policy changes and for planning, implementing, managing and coordinating programs in agricultural sector.

Over the past decade, Egypt's agricultural growth has been at a rate of only 1.5% a year while the population growth has been nearly 3% a year. The obvious concern of the Egyptian Government is that it will not be able to meet its domestic food requirements.

The United States, through the Agency for International Development, has already provided the Government of Egypt with approximately $420 million for agricultural projects. The emphasis to date has been on agricultural research and rehabilitation of Egypt's irrigation system.

Prior studies have shown Egypt has the potential to increase its wheat production by 50%, its corn production by 70%, its rice production by 30%, and its tomato production by over 100%.

An earlier evaluation of Egypt's research and extension systems concluded that the dissemination of research findings to farmers are hampered by inadequate extension mechanisms. The President's Mission, in conjunction with the Ministry of Agriculture, will seek ways of improving the research and extension systems, providing appropriate training for extension personnel, and assuring that appropriate extension service material and equipment are made available.

Strongly Effected
Future funding of Egypt's agricultural sector will be determined by the mission's findings and by the development priorities and economic policies adopted by the Mubarak government.

NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

March 2, 1982

TO: MORT ALLIN

Mort--

Bud McFarlane would like this announcement to be made this afternoon. It's not so important that it be reported here -- only that it be announced or even posted so that it can be given play in Cairo.

The text is based on a draft prepared by AID and edited by the NSC staff.

Many thanks.

DRAFT PRESS RELEASE

President Reagan announced today that he is designating a team of agricultural experts as a Presidential Mission to assist Egypt in achieving growth in its agricultural sector.

The need for this study was discussed during Egyptian President Mubarak's visit to the U.S. in early February and the team arrived in Egypt earlier this week.

The two governments have agreed that the potential impact of this team's work may be substantial. As a result of the importance now placed in the work of the team, an official request has been made to the U.S. by the Egyptian government, through the Ministry of Agriculture of Egypt, to designate this team as a U.S. Presidential Mission to Egypt.

The Presidential Mission is led by Dr. E. T. York, Vice Chairman of the Board for International Food and Agriculture Development, and consists of leading U.S. experts in the fields of agriculture science, economics, educational, engineering, marketing and information. The mission will work closely with their colleagues in the Egyptian Ministry of Agriculture and other Egyptian government agencies in a joint effort to assess the constraints to increasing agricultural productivity. The team will make recommendations for policy changes and for planning, implementing, managing and coordinating programs in the agricultural sector.

Over the past decade, Egypt's agricultural growth has fallen behind population growth. The obvious concern of the Egyptian government is that it will not be able to meet its domestic food requirements. The U.S. has already provided $420 million dollars for agricultural projects. The emphasis has been on agricultural research and rehabilitation of Egypt's irrigation system. Prior studies have shown that the potential to increase its wheat production by 50%, its corn by 70%, its rice production by 30%, and its tomato production by 100%, exists.

Future funding of Egypt's agricultural sector will be affected by the mission's findings and by the development priorities and economic policies adopted by the Egyptian government.
