Appointment of Benjamin Hargrave, 51, of Oakland, as deputy director for the new State Department of Human Resources Development was announced today by Governor Ronald Reagan.

Hargrave, a Democrat, is education and training officer for the Economic Opportunity Council of San Francisco. Prior to joining the EOC earlier this year, he spent 22 years with the Oakland Unified School District.

Hargrave will direct the Northern California region of HRD's Job Training and Development Division when the department is activated later this year. His headquarters will be in San Francisco.

The department of HRD, headed by Gilbert L. Sheffield, is a component of the Human Relations Agency. It was created by the Human Resources Development Act of 1968 to consolidate and streamline the services of the State's Department of Employment, Service Center Program, Office of Economic Opportunity and Commission on Aging.

The department is designed to place new emphasis on providing expanded manpower and training services to the hardcore unemployed.

Hargrave, who will join the department immediately, has been active in manpower projects for several years.

He is president of the West Oakland Area Council and a member of the Oakland Manpower Commission. He is an advisory board member for the Educational Opportunities Clearinghouse (PACT) and a member of the advisory committee to the East Bay Skills Center.

In 1966, he was president of the Men of Tomorrow in Oakland.

"His broad range of experience, plus his intimate involvement in community manpower development, gives HRD a vital dimension in its top management," Governor Reagan said.

Hargrave's other activities include membership on the Board of Directors of the NAACP's Oakland branch, the Alameda County Mental Health Association, the Alameda County Negro Leadership Conference, the Oakland Principal's Association and the Northern California Industry-Education Council.

He is a member of the National Advisory Council for Upward Bound.

A veteran of World War II, Hargrave received his Bachelor of Science degree from Springfield College, Springfield, Mass., in 1941, and his Master of Arts degree from San Francisco State College in 1951. He did graduate work at the University of California at Berkeley and at Stanford University.

A native of Wakefield, Virginia, he attended public schools in Westfield, New Jersey.

He taught elementary and junior high school in Oakland between 1946-51. He was named principal of Harbor Homes School there in 1951 and subsequently served as principal of Longfellow School, Golden Gate Elementary and Junior High School and McClymonds and Castlemont High Schools.

He lives at 3468 Calandria Avenue, Oakland, with his wife, Carolease.

Governor Ronald Reagan today named an Imperial County rancher as agricultural representative on the Correctional Industries Commission and reappointed two other members to four year terms.

Ayala, a Republican, succeeds Harry R. Corea, Sr., of Paramount whose term has expired.

Renamed to the commission were A. Kenneth Anderson, 1521 Sixth Street, Los Banos, who will represent the public, and Albert Terrence, 7200 East Firestone Boulevard, Downey, who represents industry.

Anderson, a Democrat, is a retired businessman who is active in Los Banos civic and agricultural affairs.

Terrence, a Republican, is owner of a carpet company. He has a long record of civic service in the Los Angeles area.

The commissioner's position pays $25 per diem plus expenses.

Creative solutions to California's environmental problems will be sought at a conference of more than 1,000 scientists, industrialists, educators and conservationists called by Governor Ronald Reagan November 17 and 18 in Los Angeles.

The "Conference on California's Changing Environment" was called by Governor Reagan today following an organizational meeting of the Citizen's Advisory Commission today in his office.

"We must seek new ways to protect what God has given us and at the same time make certain that every citizen has an opportunity to enjoy and use our natural heritage," the Governor told the organizational meeting.

He also announced the appointments of conference co-chairmen, Robert H. Gerdes of San Francisco, chairman of the executive committee, Pacific Gas and Electric Company, and Lt. General Victor Krulak of San Diego, president of the Copley News Service.

"As California's population continues to grow, the demands of that growth often raise conflicts between preserving what we have and carrying on with the progress that must be made.

What we must achieve is an accomodation so that every segment of our society <sup>in California</sup> can live and work in the best possible environment" the governor said.

William Penn Mott Jr., state director of parks and recreation, has been named state co-ordinator for the environment conference, and Norvell Gillespie of San Francisco, executive vice president of the California Anti-Litter League, will be executive director.

In a joint statement, co-chairmen Gerdes and Lt. General Krulak called on Californians to "be prudent and ever watchful to protect our natural heritage. We must also be realistically alert to the need to expand facilities in both the public and private sectors to serve Californians of this generation and those to follow.

"One of today's greatest challenges," the statement continued, "is to conserve and, where necessary, enhance our precious environment while serving the needs of modern man. We must expand outdoor recreational opportunity, clear our air and clean our waters.

"We must also provide housing, schools, waterways, transportation, and industry to meet the needs of our growing state and to build a healthy economy.

"The task Governor Reagan has assigned this conference is to consider ways and means to reach both objectives. I am confident that we Californians have the intellectual, spiritual and economic capacity to provide for growth and at the same time wisely use and conserve the state's natural and human resources for the future."

The conference, scheduled for the Ambassador Hotel, is expected to draw interest as an exemplary venture towards finding answers to civilization's most crucial dichotomy, according to representatives now structuring the two-day event. Users and non-users of natural resources--those who benefit from the environment as consumers, those who turn to natural resources for industrial progress and providing for the needs of civilization--will be probing side by side for the means to insure quality

The food, beverage, container and petroleum industries were commended today by Governor Ronald Reagan for increasing their anti-litter activities in California.

In marking the observance of August as National Litter Month, the governor announced he has received pledges from a number of companies doing business in the state to step-up their efforts to help solve the litter problem.

The governor recently pointed out to some 40 companies that litter costs the state more than $50 million a year.

He asked firms to search for new approaches to help stop the spread of litter, and to incorporate anti-litter messages in product advertising.

Response to the appeal has been gratifying, the governor said.

The brewing industry, for example, has used a variety of techniques to fight litter. They range from placement of anti-litter slogans on delivery trucks and packages and financial assistance to such organizations as the California Anti-Litter League and Los Angeles Beautiful to development of plastic instead of cardboard packaging.

Several oil companies reported to the governor they had prepared special material for advertisements, produced motion pictures on the problem and worked with conservation organizations to develop new projects.

Another new anti-litter project is being conducted to reclaim all-aluminum beverage cans.

"These activities indicate a commitment by industry to do its part to help keep California clean," the governor said.

"And these companies have assured me they will continue to be extremely active in the fight against litter in the years ahead."

"I am delighted the legislature has responded to my continued requests for a strong BCDC bill.

"San Francisco Bay is one of the most important resources that California possesses. But we were in very real danger of destroying this priceless natural asset.

"This bill will save the bay. It is, I believe, a milestone in our continuing efforts to preserve 'the quality of life'---not only for this generation but also for those who will follow us.

"And it is an example of creative partnership through which we can preserve the irreplaceable. We can be proud of the fact that while we have taken action to preserve something that belongs to all of us, we have also protected the rights of private property owners.

"We have accomplished this without imposing the stifling controls of a regional government on the cities and counties that surround the bay.

"I am particularly pleased that the co-authors have included the extension of the California Land Conservation Act of 1965 to bay lands. This will insure vitally needed open space.

"I have only one regret--and that is that the legislature chose to exempt two cities from BCDC control, although I am confident they will cooperate fully with the commission to protect the bay.

"We have a strong bill. It demonstrates that the private sector and the government can work in harmony to preserve what nature has given without taking away the rights of the individual.

"I want to extend my thanks to the co-authors, to BCDC Chairman Mel Lane and to the many key officials in the administration for their efforts in putting this together."

RELEASE: Immediate

#452

Governor Ronald Reagan today issued the following statement in support of National Water Week, August 10 - 16, 1969.

"The story of water development in California has a 200-year history of written record, and a future unparalleled by any other area in our nation.

"California has been blessed with an abundance of water--enough, in fact, to fill the foreseeable requirements of our people through the first quarter of the 21st century. But, that abundance is not always in the right place at the right time. Man has had to provide the means of putting our greatest natural resource to wise and productive use.

"We are accomplishing this in California, today, through implementation of a statewide water plan which incorporates the finest capabilities of all sectors. Federal, state and local levels of government have joined with local and private utilities in California to provide soundly planned and dependable water service to all residents of this state.

"The American Water Works Association has designated the week of August 10 - 16, 1969, as a national effort to focus attention on the job being done by water utilities in the United States and Canada.

"I urge every citizen of California to join me in daily recognition of our state's dependence on water and on the vital role it continues to play in our growth. Proper planning and wise management of one of our most valuable resources is essential to the good life we seek for the generations of today and tomorrow."

SB 1319 - Petris

Provides that affidavits required for classification of vessels as documented vessels eligible for assessment at one percent of full cash value for purposes of property taxation shall be filed with the assessor between the lien date and 5 p.m. on April 1.

REASON FOR VETO: Governor Reagan said, "This bill would chapter out provisions of AB 1840 (Chapter 369, Statutes of 1969) requiring affidavits for the homeowner's property tax exemption be filed by April 15 instead of March 15."

Accordingly, I am returning the bill unsigned.

Governor Ronald Reagan announced today he will lead a state task force to Detroit on October 21, to inspect the automobile industry's smog testing and research laboratories.

Purpose of the visit, he said, will be to learn about the progress being made against air pollution caused by the internal combustion engine.

The task force will be comprised of legislators, representatives of the State Air Resources Board and others directly concerned with air pollution, including representatives of the California State Chamber of Commerce.

"The people of California--and the nation--are greatly concerned about their environment and what can be done to insure present and future generations a clean, healthful atmosphere in which to live," Governor Reagan said.

"This administration shares that concern. It is my intention to do everything we can to eliminate smog and air pollution."

Governor Reagan expressed his appreciation to the automobile industry for opening their test and research facilities to the task force and commended them for the progress they and others in the automotive and petroleum industries have made up to this time.

"Despite the achievements and the millions of dollars invested to reduce automotive emissions and comply with the stringent air pollution requirements called for in the Clean Air Act of 1968," the governor said, "much more remains to be done."

"While the emission standards required by next year are stringent--in fact, the toughest in the nation--the requirements that must be met by 1974 are even more demanding."

"This means the auto industry will have to spend even more time and money to comply with those strict but absolutely necessary requirements. Time is running out. The people of California feel this and the industry knows it."

"I look forward to my meeting with the industry and I pledge them our cooperation and continued assistance in helping them meet our California requirements."

"We have a mandate by the people for clean air in California. With common purpose and common dedication we will meet that demand as we move ahead on all fronts to clean, protect and preserve our environment," the governor added.

He and his wife Edna live at 2630 Crescent Drive, Visalia. They have two sons.

Judge Coakley, elected six times to the bench in Mariposa County, is a former deputy attorney general of California with a long career of civic service and service to the legal profession in Mariposa County and in San Francisco.

Governor Ronald Reagan today challenged Assembly Democrat leaders to stop playing politics and instead pledge themselves to constructive and positive thinking that will lead to meaningful tax reform in California.

"I am disappointed Assembly Democratic leaders are continuing to play politics with tax reform. I wish instead they would shoulder their responsibility and give constructive and positive leadership.

"Their past actions have proven that they have had no intention of seeking to improve our tax structure and their dismal attempt to gather headlines and disrupt the legislative process is further evidence of their very regrettable lack of responsibility.

"This administration and the Republican leaders in the legislature have pledged to the people of California that they will receive tax reform. The subject will continue to receive intensive study so that the voters can pass on the results of this work next year---the earliest possible time for tax reform.

"The tax reform proposals now before Congress also will have an impact on what California does. The proposed federal tax reforms are of such a magnitude that it would be very difficult to change California's tax structure without taking the federal changes into full account.

"So I would hope that those Democrats in the Assembly who truly want tax reform inform their leaders that partisanship on this vital issue will accomplish nothing and indeed does a great disservice to the people of this state."

Governor Ronald Reagan today appointed a fact-finding commission to look into a dispute involving the Southern California Rapid Transit District and the Amalgamated Transit Union, Division 1277.

Creation of the fact-finding commission came after district officials and union negotiators reached a stalemate in attempts to work out a new contract for members of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

Creation of the commission assures the continuation of service with a strike for at least 60 days.

The district operates busses over a 2300-mile network and carries nearly 700,000 daily passengers.

Commission members are Morris Myers of San Francisco; Melvin Lennard of San Francisco and Adolph Koven of San Francisco, all experienced attorneys and arbitrators.

The commission is set up under a section of the Rapid Transit District Law (Public Utilities Code, Section 30756) that calls on the governor to appoint a fact-finding commission when district and union negotiators fail to agree.

The parties have been negotiating for several weeks.

The dispute revolves around wages, pensions, health and welfare benefits and other issues.

Two months ago, the governor appointed a fact-finding commission which successfully settled a dispute between the transit drivers and the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

Governor Ronald Reagan said today the 1969 legislature produced some of the most significant and far-reaching legislation in the state's history---measures "that will have a beneficial impact upon the lives of Californians who will not even be born until the 21st Century."

In a statement evaluating the 1969 session, the governor praised the efforts of the Republican leadership in the Senate and Assembly for steering key parts of his administration's program into law despite the lack of a firm working majority.

"However, I would be less than candid if I expressed total satisfaction with the 1969 legislative accomplishments.

"I am disappointed that we failed to reach agreement on several major issues, including a comprehensive tax reform program that would have provided a long-range solution to the critical problem of school financing and made our tax structure more equitable.

"And I believe the people of California were disappointed and dismayed by the partisan obstructionism that left the state without a budget for the first three days of this fiscal year.

"But the positive and constructive progress we made in other areas will mark this session of the legislature as one of the most significant in the state's history.

"I am particularly pleased with the progress we achieved in conservation, consumer protection and in strengthening our criminal laws.

"Some of the anti-pollution and conservation measures which I requested and which the legislature passed are tremendous milestones in solving some of the most urgent problems facing our state---the triple menace of air and water pollution and the uncoordinated and uncontrolled developments that have threatened to mar the priceless scenic, natural environment of California.

"Several of these measures implement programs of environmental protection that will have a beneficial impact upon the lives of Californians who will not even be born until the 21st Century," the governor said.

Three major environmental programs deserve special note:

The California Water Quality Improvement Act of 1969 (coauthored by Assemblyman Carley V. Porter, D-Compton and Senator Gordon Cologne, R-Indio) was an administration bill drafted by a task force of experts and represents the first complete revision of California's water pollution laws in 20 years. It includes tough provisions for violations and greatly improves the administration of water quality control laws.

The legislature also approved another pioneering air pollution control program as part of the continuing follow-up to the massive Air Quality Act of last year. This measure (AB 988 by Assemblyman Robert Beverly, R-Manhattan Beach) places strict limitations on air pollution from jet aircraft beginning Jan. 1, 1971. It is the first program in the nation controlling jet emissions.

In addition, "California took a tremendous stride toward protecting and preserving its priceless esthetic environment when the legislature passed the bill (AB 2057 - Knox) extending permanently the life of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission," the governor said.

"I asked for a strong BCDC bill and we have one. It will preserve San Francisco Bay without imposing the stifling bureaucratic controls of a full-scale regional government.

"I also am pleased that we finally broke the legislative bottleneck which for a number of years prevented the passage of stronger laws against obscenity and drunk driving.

"The passage of SB 62 and SB 63 (by Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ventura County) culminates a long battle by this administration and by Republican legislators to keep pornographic materials out of the hands of our children," Governor Reagan said.

(The Lagomarsino measures were the first anti-pornography bills to secure passage in eight years and were approved a few weeks after the Republicans gained a narrow, one-vote margin in both houses of the legislature.)

"Equally important to the safety and well-being of our citizens is the 'presumptive limits' bill of Assembly Majority Leader Craig Biddle (R-Riverside).

"This legislation--which establishes a point at which a motorist may be presumed to be under the influence of alcohol--will be a tremendous tool for law enforcement officers attempting to deal with the drinking driver who insists on endangering not only his own life, but the lives of innocent persons," Governor Reagan said.

"Legislation dealing with campus disturbances also was passed, giving administrators and law enforcement officials added tools to deal with disruptions.

"For the second straight year, the administration sought and received legislative permission to reorganize the Executive Branch of government, eliminating unnecessary boards and commissions and streamlining outdated concepts of government.

"I also would like to congratulate Republican lawmakers for their leadership in enacting important new legislation to protect the interest of the consumer."

As examples, Governor Reagan cited AB 77 by Assembly Speaker Robert Monagan which permits a recipient of unsolicited merchandise in the mail to keep such merchandise as a gift and AB 1763-64 which strengthens the consumer laws to protect citizens against being billed for merchandise charged to unsolicited or stolen credit cards.

"The list of other important legislation passed this year covers many other subjects of vital concern---ranging from health care to rapid transit," Governor Reagan said.

"The legislature responded favorably to my request for bills strengthening laws against drug abuse, to protect the Medi-Cal program against fiscal abuses, to provide more flexibility in the planning and financing of rapid transit systems, to create an Office of Transportation Planning, and to improve health and alcoholism rehabilitation programs.

"One of the most significant measures approved was my request to give the state's taxpayers a 10 percent rebate on their income tax next year.

"Instead of spending this one-time fiscal windfall to establish programs that would cost even more in years to come, we are returning the unexpected surplus to those who paid it---a move I hope we can repeat as we continue efforts to reduce the cost of government.

"Yet even while practicing an economy drive, this administration in 1969 provided more money for education and more new funds for the public schools than ever before---without increasing taxes."

Governor Reagan pledged that his administration would continue to seek a comprehensive tax reform program. "This administration has taken the lead for two years in seeking to overhaul our outmoded tax structure and will continue those efforts."

He noted that the impact of the pending federal tax reform bill in Washington would have to be considered in putting the tax reform program together for California.

A preliminary report shows that more than 10,000 employees either signed up as new savers or increased the size of previous allotments.

The response was so great in five units--Department of Motor Vehicles, Franchise Tax Board, Board of Equalization, Department of General Services and the California Highway Patrol--that they will be awarded the U. S. Treasury Department's highest unit citation, the Minute Man Flag.

Presentations will be made in September during formal ceremonies to be held in Sacramento.

Governor Reagan complimented James A. Moe, State Director of Public Works, who served as state employee campaign chairman, and his volunteer staff for their outstanding contributions and accomplishments.

The governor also noted that California met the challenge offered earlier in the campaign by Governor Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania.

Governor Reagan today granted Arizona's request for the extradition of Winnie Ruth Judd. The Governor stated:

"After a thorough evaluation of all legal and factual matters in this case, it is my conclusion that there is no basis on which to refuse to honor the requisition of the Governor of Arizona.

"Under the U. S. Constitution and the laws of California, it is my duty to grant requests by Governors of sister states for the extradition of fugitives. These constitutional and statutory requirements are based on the right of a sister state to bring a person to trial who has committed a crime within its borders and to see that whatever sentence rendered after conviction is fulfilled.

"There are certain legal defenses to extradition, none of which have been raised in this case. Evidence of Mrs. Judd's rehabilitation was presented at an extradition hearing before my Legal Affairs Secretary Herbert E. Ellingwood. However, the proper forum in which to consider matters such as Mrs. Judd's rehabilitation, her mental condition, and questions of parole is Arizona, the state in which the crime was committed and where Mrs. Judd was convicted and sentenced."

Governor Ronald Reagan today made the following statement:

"Today I have, with some reluctance, signed into law Assembly Bill 606 authored by Assemblyman Victor Veysey. The bill is necessary to implement the supplementary financing for schools that I recommended last January. My reluctance to sign this bill is based upon the fact that the measure commits one-time surpluses to continuing programs. In this context, I must warn the school districts of California that at least a portion of the increased level of state support contained in this bill will not, in all probability, be available in 1970-71. School district budgets should be planned accordingly.

"This year, I broke past precedent and requested $105 million in additional school aid in my budget as presented to the legislature in February. To that amount, which we included because we knew we could continue to finance it in coming years, we were able to add $15 million due to the federal cancellation of the freeze on aid to families with dependent children, bringing the total additional sum available on a continuing basis to $120 million.

"Additionally, I agreed to make available any surplus as of June 30, 1969 not anticipated in our May 26th estimates. These additional funds, which will result from a combination of additional revenue and savings from our intensive economy program, will not be available for the schools again in 1970-71.

"Since these funds are non-recurring, I urged the legislature to commit these one-time funds for one-time purposes such as construction or restoration of reserves. However, they saw fit to use some of these funds to increase the regular support formulas.

"Therefore, today I must make the same plea to the school districts of California--to commit, to the extent possible, these one-time funds to one-time purposes. If these funds are expended for continuing programs requiring additional personnel, salary increases, or the like, districts will face the need of curtailing the regular expenditures in the 1970-71 fiscal year. Unfortunately, such curtailment will just create more pressure on the already overburdened property taxpayer and I believe that we must be completely candid in warning districts of the fiscal realities they will face in 1970-71.

"I realize the lateness of the hour for school districts struggling against deadlines for preparation of their budgets. This has long been a problem, and I have asked my recently-established Educational Reform Commission to recommend better procedures to allow school districts more time and earlier information as to available state funds for the preparation of their annual budgets.

"Finally, as I sign this measure, I am compelled to point out that my tax reform and school finance proposal would vastly improve the whole complex subject of paying for our schools. My proposal would abolish basic aid and equalization aid and provide 80% of the total cost of our schools in state funds distributed strictly on the basis of enrollment.

"Passage of the tax reform proposals would give to our schools not only the bulk of their necessary funds, with provision for increases based on inflation, but it would give the schools the regular, early knowledge they need to prepare their budgets without the annual wait to see if the legislature is or is not going to give additional school funds. Finally, tax reform would give our hard pressed residential real estate taxpayers their first real guaranteed tax releif in a generation of steadily rising taxes on homes."

Governor Ronald Reagan announced today he has signed the following bills:

AB 201 - Barnes (Chapter 751)	Provides, with specified exception, that agencies contracting with the Public Employees' Retirement System do so on the basis of entire compensation of local members rather than be limited to specified amount of compensation. The bill provides that prior service benefits for local safety and local miscellaneous members shall be based on final compensation. It further provides for payment of $500 lump sum death benefit to members of all contracting agencies, rather than to only those which have elected to be subject to provisions.
AB 245 - Barnes (Chapter 752)	Clarifies application of 1968 cost-of-living amendments to the Public Employees' Retirement Law to allowances of persons retired under a terminated public agency contract or under a local system terminated by a public agency's contract to participate in the system by providing for cost-of-living adjustment of all such allowances except those under a contract terminated before enactment of the legislation.
AB 287 - Barnes (Chapter 753)	Provides for reduction of retirement allowances and contribution rates of local safety members covered under Social Security whose allowance is determined on the basis of 2 percent of final compensation upon retirement at age 50. The bill applies the maximum for such allowances and similar allowances for patrol members to the total allowance payable to the member for all service to all employers rather than to service of a single employer and prescribes the manner of computing allowance for service to each employer where the maximum applies.
AB 396 - Moorhead (Chapter 754)	Includes libraries and parks adjacent to school sites within the definition of "recreation center" in the statutes authorizing school districts to jointly participate with other public authorities in projects for purposes of community recreation.

AB 606 - Veysey (Chapter 784)	Provides additional allocations of state funds for school support purposes.

AB 1020 - Hayes (Chapter 757)	Provides that in cases where preparation of plans and specifications for construction, alteration, improvement, or repair of buildings or structures is subject to architectural licensing law, each city or county which requires a building permit for such work shall also require, as a condition precedent to issuance of a permit, a signed statement that the person who prepared the plans or specifications is registered or certified under architectural licensing law, or otherwise licensed so to do.
AB 1072 - Hayes (Chapter 758)	Authorizes the Department of Harbors and Watercraft to accept an undertaking or bond in the amount of the fair market value of the vessel in absence of the regularly required supporting evidence of ownership upon application for registration or transfer of a vessel, conditioned to protect the department and its employees, subsequent purchasers, or persons acquiring a security interest in the vessel or successors in interest of any of these persons from loss or damage from any defect or undisclosed claim in the ownership of the vessel.
AB 1077 - Briggs (Chapter 759)	Prohibits specified activities by a manufacturer, winegrower, manufacturer's agent, rectifier, distiller, bottler, importer, or wholesaler, or any officer, director, or agent of such person, with regard to off-sale general licenses and premises.
AB 1136 - Beverly (Chapter 760) URGENCY	Imposes a 5 percent penalty, with minimum of $5 and a maximum of $1,000, for underpayment of corporate taxes, applicable to returns with a due date on or after the effective date of the bill.
AB 1166 - Murphy (Chapter 761)	Makes the installers of mobilehomes on mobilehome lots and installers of certain mobilehome accessories and structures subject to the Contractors License Law.
AB 1176 - Knox (Chapter 762)	Establishes procedures for counties and cities which have a general plan to acquire easements in property, either in perpetuity or for a term of not less than 20 years, to restrict such property to open-space purposes for the benefit of the public.
AB 1214 - Chappie (Chapter 763)	Establishes closer scrutiny by the Department of Real Estate of "land projects" (otherwise termed promotional subdivisions), which are defined in the bill in relationship to size, proximity to urban areas, methods of sale and manner of financing offsite improvements. The bill authorizes the Real Estate Commissioner to deny the issuance of a public report for such projects if reasonable assurance of completion of those offsite improvements does not bear a reasonable relationship to the value of those lots.

AB 1250 - Biddle

AB 550 - Bagley

Redefines "cigarette" in the California Cigarette Tax Law. The bill also prohibits the State Board of Equalization from issuing a wholesaler's license to a wholesaler, rather than to a distributor, whose license has been revoked or suspended unless specified conditions are met.

REASON FOR VETO : Governor Reagan said, "This measure redefines 'cigarette' in the California Cigarette Tax Law to exempt cigarettes that are rolled in tobacco (little cigars) from the cigarette tax."

"It should be noted that while these small cigars are not included in the federal cigarette tax definition of 'cigarette,' they are taxed by federal law under another provision. Conforming the California definition of 'cigarette' to the federal definition achieves, therefore, a very different tax result. While these items would be totally exempt from any kind of California tobacco tax, they would still be subject to a federal tobacco tax."

It is estimated that the adoption of this bill will result in an annual General Fund loss of $28,000 and a loss of $12,000 to local government.

"Accordingly, I am returning the bill unsigned."

AB 1725 - Quimby

Adds transportation of wheelchair or litter patients, or both, in nonemergency vehicles, and the transportation of persons in emergency vehicles, to exceptions to the authority granted by the Public Utilities Code to charter party carriers.

REASON FOR VETO: Governor Reagan said:
"The position of those who provide nonemergency transportation services was not heard when this bill was before the legislature, nor was the potential fiscal impact of the measure fully examined. I believe that the matter of regulation of nonemergency transportation services deserves more intensive study by the legislature."

"Accordingly, I am returning the bill unsigned."

A bill that makes it tougher for unethical land promoters to bilk the public was signed into law today by Governor Ronald Reagan.

In signing the measure, AB-1214, Governor Reagan called it "an excellent example of how private enterprise can cooperate with government to protect our citizens from dubious land speculators and at the same time not hamper the promotional activities of legitimate subdividers."

The new law allows the Real Estate Commissioner to prevent the sale of subdivisions in remote areas when promised improvements appear to be financially infeasible. It also requires subdividers of large projects away from population centers to report the names of all defaulting purchasers to the Real Estate Commissioner.

And, it allows buyers of lots to withdraw from signed sales contracts within two days after they receive the Commissioner's public report on the subdivision.

The legislation grew out of a series of meetings conducted by a special advisory committee organized by Burton E. Smith, State Real Estate Commissioner.

The committee included representatives of the office of the Attorney General, the State Department of Real Estate, the California Real Estate Association, the California Home Builders Council and major subdividers of remote lands.

"The growth and healthy development of this state is influenced to a great extent by the success or failure of real estate promotions," Governor Reagan said. "This law should make it possible to achieve this growth and at the same time provide safeguards for the buyer."

The bill was authored by Assemblymen Eugene Chappie (R-Cool) and L. E. Townsend, (D-Gardena).

California has moved up from 11th to 2nd place among the states in the total number of persons rehabilitated into gainful employment during the course of the Reagan administration.

A telegram from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to Governor Reagan showed that 14,450 handicapped persons were restored to productive lives during the past fiscal year through the efforts of the State Department of Rehabilitation.

This is nearly 10,000 more than the number rehabilitated during the last full fiscal year of the previous state administration (1965-66)

During the past year alone, rehabilitations increased 39 percent in California, or by some 4,000 over the previous fiscal year. During the same one-year period, California moved up from third to second among the states and now trails only Pennsylvania.

Over the past three years, however, California has increased rehabilitations of its handicapped by 219 percent, while Pennsylvania's rate of increase for the same period has climbed only 34 percent.

The top five states in rehabilitations last year were: Pennsylvania, 16,544; California 14,450; Illinois, 13,410; Texas, 11,861; New York, 10,250.

Governor Reagan noted that during his 1966 gubernatorial campaign he pledged to see to it that in the future the state's rehabilitation program must produce much greater results, commensurate with the taxpayer dollars spent for its support. "At that time, California was among the first in the dollars spent for rehabilitation programs, but far down the list of major states in terms of results," the governor said.

The wire to the governor from HEW Social and Rehabilitation Service Administrator Mary E. Switzer said:

"I am pleased to inform you that California now ranks second in the nation in the number of disabled people rehabilitated to more productive lives.

"Final figures for fiscal year 1969 show that 14,450 disabled people were rehabilitated in your state, out of a total of 241,390.

"Heartiest congratulations to you, and to your director, Robert E. Howard, Department of Rehabilitation and his dedicated staff.

"Your continued strong support, and the support of your state legislature, will enable us to expand our cooperative program to increase services to the disabled people of California and to pursue our national goal of helping every handicapped citizen achieve his fullest potential."

Governor Reagan also commended Howard and his staff on the "achievement" which, he said, "has attracted nationwide attention and will now, more than ever, serve as an example to other states of how to make rehabilitation programs work, how to get the most from every dollar spent."

From an economic standpoint, the governor pointed out, the 14,450 disabled persons who were able to go to work last year as the result of vocational rehabilitation services will earn more than $66 million annually. "In slightly over three years these rehabilitants will have returned the cost of their rehabilitation through the income taxes they pay and the savings in public assistance funds and institutional costs," he said.

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced the appointment of Winfred (Win) W. Adams, his former cabinet secretary and for the past seven months interim executive assistant to Lt. Governor Ed Reinecke, as assistant to the governor, to take charge of establishing an administration management evaluation system.

The appointment is effective September 1. Adams' salary will be $22,050 per year.

Adams, 51, returns to the governor's staff after leaving the cabinet post last January to serve temporarily as Reinecke's top aide during the newly appointed lieutenant governor's transition to state government.

"Now that the transition period has successfully been completed," Governor Reagan said, "I have asked Win to return to head up a comprehensive management evaluation project relating to administration programs and policy, as recommended by the cabinet after several months of intensive study. The project is intended to provide the cabinet with an even better grasp of how effective our management procedures are in relation to administrative costs, and where further improvements may be made.

"With his keen understanding of the workings of the executive branch, and of the people who make it work, I am sure that Win's important new responsibilities will further strengthen our efforts to assure that every taxpayer dollar over which we have control is used both wisely and sparingly," the governor said.

Adams, who served as cabinet secretary to the governor for 16 months, joined the administration in 1966 and was a member of the interim government prior to his appointment in January, 1967, as assistant secretary of the State Resources Agency. He was promoted to cabinet secretary in September, 1967.

Governor Reagan noted that during his assignment in Reinecke's office Adams "has continued to be a key administration advisor on major governmental and political matters while, at the same time, furnishing the lieutenant governor with a valuable insight into state government."

Adams also played a key role in both the formulation and establishment of a new administration office of intergovernmental management, headed by the lieutenant governor.

Prior to joining state service, Adams worked for four years as campaign director for the Republican State Central Committee. He also was director of the "Cal-Plan" to elect Republican legislators.

He previously had served as district supervisor for the Census Bureau in the U. S. Department of Commerce.

He is married and lives in Sacramento.

State Finance Director Caspar W. Weinberger said today he is "appalled by the lack of knowledge" displayed by Thomas T. Jordan, General Manager of the California State Employees' Assn., regarding preparation of next year's budget.

"If Mr. Jordan had taken the time to determine the facts instead of displaying his ignorance by trying to frighten people, he would have known that his charge that 25,000 students would be turned away from state colleges next year was false and ridiculous," Weinberger said.

"Since the state colleges determine their priorities in the preparation of their budget, it would be inconceivable that they would recommend eliminating 25,000 students," Weinberger said.

The finance director said that every agency of state government was allocated funds based on the current year's budget and told to assign their highest priorities within that amount. They also were told to submit supplemental lists of high priority programs. In this manner, the preparation of next year's budget can be based on overall statewide priorities.

"I would hope that Mr. Jordan is not suggesting that economy in government is not necessary and I further hope that he is not advocating new taxes and a return to the old theory of spend, spend, spend.

"If he is, he is in obvious opposition to Governor Reagan's insistence that the cost of government be reduced and that taxes be lowered.

"Mr. Jordan should know, if he/doesn't, that the governor has given higher education the highest priority of any item in the budget and that higher education has received the highest percentage of increase in the state's history during the Reagan administration.

"Furthermore, Mr. Jordan's unsupported claim that the quality of services provided by state government has been eroded is not borne out by the fact that just today the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced California ranks among the top two states in the number of persons rehabilitated into gainful employment--a significant step upwards from the 11th place ranking California had before this administration took office.

"It is very regrettable that Mr. Jordan has, by his outlandish claims, chastised the state employees he is supposed to represent because the vast majority of state workers are serving the public with greater devotion and efficiency than at any time in the past," Weinberger said.

#483

"One of the strengths of this nation has been the helping hand that one neighbor extends to another in time of disaster. When Hurricane Camille devastated large sections of the Gulf Coast and left thousands without homes or possessions, the American Red Cross moved in to provide emergency assistance. While every American cannot personally lend a hand to these disaster victims, he can assist those who are on the scene. The Red Cross is asking for $6 million to assist victims of Camille. I urge all Californians to lend a helping hand by contributing to the relief of these sufferers through their local Red Cross Chapters."

Governor Ronald Reagan today signed two bills which will provide property tax relief to homeowners and veterans who have been excluded from refunds.

The measures, AB-1726 by Assemblyman John Quimby (D-Rialto), and AB-2349 by Assemblyman R. E. Johnson (R-Chico), extend the deadline for filing for a $750 reduction in home assessments until September 1.

The Quimby bill also allows persons who qualify for the 1968-69 tax rebate but did not file for the $750 property tax exemption to now do so.

Qualified veterans who had filed for the exemption but were told by local assessors that they were ineligible now automatically become eligible for the $750 under the Johnson bill.
