Acting Governor Ed Reinecke today issued the following statement in commemoration of the Fourth of July:

"So many great words have been written, recited, spoken about patriotism and our flag on occasions such as the Fourth of July - that to fashion new words is difficult. But perhaps no new words are necessary. The rich language of our flag--"Old Glory", the "Red, White and Blue", the "Star Spangled Banner"--is with us whenever we rededicate ourselves to the ideals for which it stands.

"The American flag is the American people. It is our country, and our history; our victories and our defeats. Our flag is the 13 original Colonies, the 50 states, and the first man on the moon. It is the Revolutionary War, the preservation of the Union, the liberation of Europe.

"Our flag is the emancipation of the blacks and equality for minorities as much as it is the assassination of Abraham Lincoln or John F. Kennedy. It is progress and set-back; often danger and despair. But always, in the end, it is jubilation and hope.

"On the Fourth of July, more than any other day, our flag symbolizes these things. It represents the present and the past. But more than anything else, it represents the future. When we pledge allegiance to that symbol of freedom, we witness hope and promise for the future of our country and for the people who are sharing allegiance with us.

"Our flag is the linen that protects the American dream. It is the document that insures our future. It is the treaty that can bind nations together in a lasting peace.

"Recently we have seen our flag flown in some new places--in Peking and in Moscow. How good it was to see that banner flying courageously in an alien land; bringing a message to the people of the world that no president, no diplomatic treaty can convey.

"We communicate that message every time we pledge ourselves to the principles for which the United States stands--that we are one nation; struggling to be a nation under God; striving for liberty and justice for all."

#398

Acting Governor Ed Reinecke late Monday declared a state of emergency in three northern California counties because of severe drought conditions.

The counties include Glenn, San Benito and Santa Clara. Governor Reinecke's declaration was made immediately after he received the request from the boards of supervisors of three counties.

Governor Reinecke's action clears the way for business and property tax relief for hard-hit growers whose agricultural and livestock losses may run over $8 million in the three counties.

"The drought has caused particularly severe conditions in Glenn, San Benito and Santa Clara counties," Governor Reinecke said, "and the people in these areas must have assistance as soon as possible."

Estimated losses to livestock and agriculture in Glenn County total an estimated $1.5 million, Reinecke said. The drought in Santa Clara County has resulted in nearly a $1 million loss alone to the county's strawberry crop.

San Benito County, which has suffered both winter freeze and spring drought, has losses estimated at more than $5.5 million.

Additional economic aid in the form of Farmers Home Administration loans have been available since April to San Benito County growers under a declaration by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz.

In declaring the state of emergency, Governor Reinecke cited the magnitude of the agricultural losses, which, he noted, "are beyond the control of the services, personnel, equipment and facilities of the affected counties."

Authorizes any publicly owned vehicle operated by a marshal or deputy marshal of the municipal courts to display flashing amber warning lights to the rear while the vehicle is necessarily stopped or stopping upon a roadway for the performance of his duties, or is at the scene of a traffic hazard.

Reason for veto:

"The present practice of restricting the use of amber warning lights to those types of vehicles, which by their construction or necessary operation would, themselves constitute a traffic hazard, has maintained the integrity of this type of warning device. In light of recent studies which have shown that indiscriminate use of flashing lights adds to congestion and confusion, and in consideration of the duties performed by municipal court marshals, the need for such devices does not appear justified.

"Accordingly, I am returning the bill unsigned."

Acting Governor Ed Reinecke today signed legislation repealing penalties for importing females born in China or Japan for sale in California or for the purpose of residing with any other person against her will. The bill by Senator Alfred H. Song (D-LA); SB 522, also eliminates the requirement of a permit from the Commissioner of Immigration for the importation of persons born in either country.

"While these provisions in the Penal Code may never have been actually used, statutes classifying people according to national origin or race have no place in today's legal process," Reinecke said. "This new legislation strikes down archaic statutes enacted over 100 years ago as part of California's oriental exclusion laws."

Immigration today is strictly a federal matter and the so-called "white slavery" laws protect all women without consideration of race or national origin.

Acting Governor Ed Reinecke today warned leaders of California's broadcasting industry that unless they take the initiative in setting the ground rules for the issues of fairness, equal time, counter-advertising, and objectivity in radio and television, the bureaucracy of government will step in and do the job.

Speaking before the 37th annual meeting of the California Broadcasters Association in the Del Monte Hyatt House in Monterey, Reinecke said that broadcasters must "get involved" in government and politics even when proposed legislation does not directly affect their own industry.

"In broadcasting, as in every other American business enterprise, government is playing a larger and larger role. Certain politicians and well-intentioned citizen groups are crying for new laws that will force compliance by your industry. Laws and regulations are not, by themselves bad. However, there is a direction many people would like these laws to take that lead nowhere else but to eventual government control, regulation and monopoly of the broadcasting industry," Reinecke said.

Governor Reinecke noted that one critical area of immediate concern is the issue of license renewal and cited a court decision which placed in jeopardy the long-standing procedure for such renewals in which stations could turn to their record of public service and performance. He warned that/^{through}"causes and class action, coalition groups can challenge license renewals and stations can be denied the right to appeal to their record as an indication of performance.

"As a politician, having fought and won four elections, my currency for each reelection has to be my past record. Broadcasting stations should also have this right to their record, and the question of how well they will perform in the future should be decided by how well they have performed in the past," he said.

He warned of the over-extension of the Doctrine of Equal Time when unknown and non-serious candidates can demand equal time opposite major political figures. He said/^{when}that happens then "this doctrine has been carried too far."

Governor Reinecke said the effect of this doctrine could be seen during the June 6 California primary election which he termed the "equal-time-fear." Some stations, he said, refused to take a vocal position for or against the many propositions either because of standing policy or fear of equal time.

"I am encouraged," he said, "that so many stations have decided that equal time, or no, they recognize the right and the obligation to make their views known in their communities. I hope this right remains forever and that those of you now doing so will continue to exercise that obligation."

Reinecke said there is a need for practical guidelines for the medium of electronic communications---a need which must be met by the broadcasters, "the leaders of your industry, rather than some misguided bureaucratic zealot. What I am talking about is involvement--deep, personal, committed involvement in the affairs of government at all levels.

"It is in this area that you, like all businessmen in this country, have the most to gain through performance and the most to lose through

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR ED REINECKE
Remarks before
California Broadcasters Association
July 13, 1972
Monterey, California

It has become politically fashionable these days to lambast the broadcasting industry for any assortment of ills and errors; from bias to sensationalism, from lack of objectivity to lack of meaningful involvement. So today, I am happy to report, will be no exception.

Not because I have a significant bone to pick with your industry, but because I seldom get the opportunity to confront such a great number of you at one time. Everyday, people in your business avail themselves of people in my business to "do with what thou wilt." It's not often that I have the privilege of capturing you on the other side of the microphone for a half hour to give you my version of today's news.

Broadcast journalism is being put to the test today in the way newspapers were put to the test in the days of John Peter Zenger. Neither the tests nor the issues are the same, however the significance of the search for guidelines and book of ethics by this new form of mass communications is.

The older questions of sedition, liable, slander have generally been resolved, and newspapers can plot a long history of significant development from the pamphleteering of Thomas Paine to the publishing of the Pentagon Papers by the New York Times.

Broadcasting has not had time yet to develop a similar history. Tremendous strides have been made in the few years that radio and television have been serving us, but, as we rely on the airwaves to bring us more substance and less entertainment, questions arise that even Marshal McLuen, the high priest of the electronic media, cannot answer. We call Milton Berle, a very great man and a significant entertainer in his own right, the "Father of Television," when what we really need today is a Benjamin Franklin.

I feel the emergence of such leadership is close at hand, and as we grapple with the issues of fairness, equal time, counter-advertising, objectivity and all the rest, we will see established a basic set of ground rules to which we will be able to ascribe. But such leadership must rise from the ranks of the industry itself. For if it does not, if the men of broadcasting demure or delay, the men of government will most assuredly step in to fill the void.

We are seeing this take place today. In broadcasting, as in every other American business enterprise, government is playing a larger and larger role. Certain politicians and well-intentioned citizen groups are crying for new laws that will force compliance by your industry. Laws and regulations are not, in themselves, bad. However, there is a direction many people would like these laws to take that lead nowhere else but to eventual government control, regulation and monopoly of the broadcasting industry.

Government already holds a powerful sword over broadcasting which is being raised high and can cut with either edge. One edge would slash additional rights from you as private owners and operators, leading to further federal control. The other could cut a path toward increased creativity, added public benefit and greater community service. It will depend on you as much as it will depend on government with which edge this sword will fall.

One critical area of immediate concern is the issue of license renewal. A court decision last year has placed in jeopardy the long-standing procedure for license renewal, throwing open the accepted practice of granting stations renewed licenses if they demonstrate an acceptable record of public service and performance.

In this day of fascination with causes and class action, coalition groups can challenge license renewals, and stations can be denied the right to appeal to their record as an indication of performance. As a politician, having fought and won four elections, my currency for each reelection has to be my past record. Broadcasting stations should also have this right to their record, and the question of how well they will perform in the future should be decided by how well they have performed in the past.

There is a great need for an orderly process in the procedure for license renewal; such a process as that proposed by Congressman Joel Broyhill of Virginia which would extend the licensing period up to five years and reaffirm the long-standing policy of renewing the licenses of those stations which have demonstrated a significant effort to serve the people and live up to the regulations of the Communications Act.

The "Access Rule" is another issue that must be settled soon and one which can lead to either increased government control of what is dispensed over the air waves or practical guidelines for the industry itself. The Access Rule, which is no more than an extension of the Equal Time Doctrine from politics to products, essentially requires companies who advertise a product to provide a platform for anyone who wants to make a statement against that product. This "Counter-advertising" as it has been called and sanctioned by the FCC, grants unrestricted privilege for the presentation of opposing viewpoints challenging an advertiser's claim. They would not have to pay for air time and would have no selling obligation.

The evils of counter-advertising were spelled out in a recent editorial in the Sacramento Union which warned, "The New Populist-federal coalition, if not checked, will spark bureaucratic decisions which seriously will curtail broadcasters' freedom of expression and, ultimately, will cause advertisers to abandon the commercial broadcasting medium - just as the cigarette industry did."

I think what we are seeing here is the over-extension of a necessary principal into something that is unnecessary and, in the end, stands to remove advertising as a source of support and turn the control room over to government.

The Doctrine of Equal Time is necessary and, I am sure, one that we all support. When there are two or more sides on major issues of broad public interest, all sides should be heard. But when an unknown nonserious candidate is able to demand equal time opposite major political figures, then this doctrine has been carried too far.

California Broadcasters Association

On issues, too, many radio and TV executives have been scared to the top of their antennas because of the fear that airing their views on a legitimate issue will bring shouts of protest from non-legitimate groups and people.

We saw the equal-time-fear-response just this spring during the primary campaign. Many ballot propositions faced California voters on June 6, and many of them - such as Proposition 9 - were both complex and confusing. The need was apparent that complete information had to be presented to the voters by all the media - not just through straight news but in editorial opinion.

While most leading broadcasting stations took a vocal position for or against the more serious propositions, all too many refused either because of standing policy or fear of equal time. I am encouraged that so many stations have decided that equal time or no, they recognize the right and the obligation to make their views known in their communities. I hope this right remains forever and that those of you now doing so will continue to exercise that obligation.

There is a need for practical guidelines for the medium of electronic communications - a need which must be met by you, the leaders of your industry, rather than some misguided bureaucratic zealot. What I am talking about is involvement - deep, personal, committed involvement in the affairs of government at all levels. It is in this area that you, like all businessmen in this country, have the most to gain through performance and the most to lose through inactivity. By involvement, I do not mean the airing of a public service message or 30 second editorial 10 times a day and then whisking your hands clean as if the community will automatically spring into action because you have alerted them to some pressing need. I'm talking about getting up from your mics and going out from behind your studio cameras to take part in the process of government rather than standing back to comment on it.

It takes a lot more than dictating a letter or writing a check. Progress doesn't come that cheap. It takes a commitment and a desire to sacrifice. It takes an awareness of how good it can be in the future, as much as how good you thought it was in the past.

But most of all it takes time - time to get involved in government and politics. And that, I am afraid, is one commodity that our work-oriented businessmen are least prepared to give.

John Connally said that, "One of the greatest weaknesses of businessmen is that they don't want to get involved in politics. They spend 15 hours a day in their businesses but they won't spend 10 minutes a week working on the thing that is most important to them - governmental relations. This is why businessmen don't have the wallop they had in the past."

Connally says that businessmen do not have the "wallop" they had in the past. So what does it take to regain some of that wallop?

Well, it takes a lot more than a flurry of activity whenever an issue or piece of legislation comes up that directly involves the broadcasting industry. Everyone expects that.

When I was serving in Congress from 1965 to 1969, we always knew that businessmen would be on hand whenever a bill was pending directly affecting them. And we knew that representatives from the broadcasting industry would be very visible when an issue such as fairness, or advertising or licensing was being heard.

But where was everybody - where were you! - when we were talking about education, space, defense spending, welfare, foreign aid, consumer rights and the other critical issues? If you wanted your lawmakers to listen to you when legislation affecting broadcasting was on the docket, where were you when they needed your opinions on the space shuttle or the SST?

There are many things I think you can do to become involved in the governmental process. One of them, as I mentioned earlier, is to establish a definite editorial policy and take a stance on all critical issues, expressing that position and offering equal time for legitimate response. I don't see why every radio and television station in California cannot seek to fulfill this need in their communities.

Another thing is to take concerted action in the affairs of your community, whether local, state or national. Biting editorial comment by itself is a cop out. It shoves the burden of responsibility back on the shoulders of the citizens. The communities in this state that stand to enjoy a better quality of life are those in which the men and women of broadcasting are taking part in total community development.

There is also a serious need to establish rapport with the people you have sent to Sacramento to serve you. Howard Smiley is doing an admirable job for you in Sacramento but he can't do it alone. I am grateful everytime he calls me up to say that so-and-so is here and would like to have lunch with me. Not so much because I enjoy a free lunch, but because I enjoy getting together with you more often than we usually have a chance to do.

You know one of the maxims of politics is that whenever a politician is in town and has a little time he should make it a point to drop by and see the local newspaper editors and radio and TV managers. Well it works the other way too. Whenever you're in town, drop by and see us!

As I see it, businessmen, particularly those of you in the business of broadcasting, can do one of two things: You can remain aloof from the action of politics and government, bearing down as you do under the press of increased restrictions, regulations and mounting negative public opinion. Or you can become involved. You can win back some of the wallop. You can become part of the solution, instead of remaining part of the problem.

Acting Governor Ed Reinecke today signed legislation creating a state Solid Waste Management Board within the State Resources Agency and requiring that board to adopt a state policy for solid waste management and the State Solid Waste Resource Recovery Program by January 1, 1975.

In a signing ceremony with the author, Senator John Nejedly (R-Walnut Creek), Governor Reinecke said, "This bill is another important piece of legislative action to improve the environment of California.

"This significant legislation will permit work to begin in the state to manage solid waste materials. It reflects the desire of this administration and the legislature to work constantly toward improvement of the quality of life in California.

"I commend Senator Nejedly for leading the effort to obtain this legislation clearly defining state policy concerning solid waste management."

The bill, SB 5, known as the Solid Waste Management and Resource Recovery Act of 1972, establishes the Solid Waste Management Board within the State Resources Agency consisting of seven voting members as well as the state directors of Public Health, Agriculture and the chief of the Division of Mines and Geology of the Department of Conservation, as non-voting members.

Also created is the State Solid Waste Management and Resource Recovery Advisory Council consisting of 25 members appointed by the governor, which will be charged with preparing and recommending to the board, by July 1, 1974, the State Solid Waste Resource Recovery Program.

Acting Governor Ed Reinecke made the following statements regarding the McGovern nomination:

"Mc Govern's toughest job now will be to convince the American people that his platform can be endorsed by others besides those with extreme liberal ideologies. One thing he has failed to comprehend - that policies and presidents are not made by splintered factions from either extreme. They are made by the great majority of people who share a common middle ground and belief that the history of America is not as pock marked with sin and fault as Mc Govern might have us think.

"Policy and presidents are made by the working man, the businessman, the hard hat, the house wife, the young, the great body of minorities. These are the people of America who will decide the future. These are the people who will determine who our next president will be.

"Senator Mc Govern apparently has not reserved space for these people in his new party.

"I think the two issues that will hurt Mc Govern most will be his stance on Vietnam, his plans for redistribution of the nation's wealth.

"The American people do not relish the thought of their president 'begging' on his hands and knees for a cup of kindness from Hanoi or any other declared or undeclared enemy. And they do not condone amnesty for the draft dodgers who fled the scene of battle and left the fighting, bleeding and the dying to their more courageous peers.

"And the American people don't take kindly to any massive redistribute-the-wealth scheme. They have worked hard for what they have and feel they are overtaxed already. They realize, too, that any great increase in the tax for business is an increase in their own taxes - that business is only a 'collector,' not a 'payer' of taxes.

"The fact that McGovern's nomination was less than unanimous demonstrates the great schism within the ranks of life-long and stalwart Democrat party members who feel their views, their beliefs have been neglected.

"Senator Mc Govern has a long tough fight ahead of him. Not just to try to get the party together once again, but to convince enough people that he is more than a pied piper with one tune.

"I agree with one of the network newsmen who said from the floor last night that, 'Nothing short of a major miracle will get Mc Govern the presidency.'

"But didn't we say the same thing just a few months ago about the nomination? The Republicans, too, have a long, tough fight ahead of them."

Acting Governor Ed Reinecke today announced that he would seek immediate legislation to improve facilities at the San Onofre Bluffs State Beach in northern San Diego County "a year ahead of schedule."

Reinecke's statement was made shortly after John Ehrlichman, special advisor to President Nixon on domestic affairs, announced today that the General Services Administration in Washington had agreed to pay half of the estimated $350,000 for construction of water and sewage facilities at the state beach.

"I am extremely pleased that the federal government has joined California in upgrading needed facilities at what I consider to be one of Southern California's most valuable recreational beaches," Reinecke said.

"This new addition to the state park system offers 3.5 miles of unspoiled beach. It is ideal for swimming, fishing, sunbathing or just plain strolling.

"The cost to the state of $175,000 for improving its facilities is a bargain, indeed."

The park had been part of the U.S. Marine Corps' installation at Camp Pendleton since 1942. Prior to that it was privately owned by the Rancho Santa Margarita y los Flores. It was opened to the public by the California Department of Parks and Recreation on April 3, 1971, after President Nixon was instrumental in having the Marine Corps turn the beach over to the state for public use on a $1 a year lease.

Acting Governor Ed Reinecke said today that without the massive reforms of welfare and Medi-Cal sought and achieved by Governor Reagan, the state would have had no cash balance with which to begin the new fiscal year.

He credited the unprecedented success of these reforms, along with continued efficiencies and economies in the running of state government, an improved economy and the enactment of income tax withholding, with enabling the state to finish fiscal 1971-72 (ending June 30) some $256 million in the black.

"This contrasts sharply," he said, "with the months before Governor Reagan took office when the state was spending a million dollars a day more than it was taking in.

"Without the cash balance now on hand and the firm prospect of continued savings in the future, the kind of massive homeowner tax relief and increased assistance to low wealth school districts which the governor has proposed to the legislature would simply not be possible," he said.

"I hope that the legislature will accomplish this task in the days immediately ahead to end the increasingly unfair and inequitable burden on California's homeowners---working men and women who need and deserve the guaranteed property tax relief this program will provide," Reinecke added.

RELEASE: Immediate

Acting Governor Ed Reinecke today announced that he has intentionally allowed a bill to become law without his signature.

The bill, SB 1452 (Moscone D-SF), puts Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 72 on the November ballot which would permit school district bonds to be issued on approval of a simple majority, rather than two-thirds, of all votes cast for bonds to repair, reconstruct or replace school buildings in compliance with the Field Act. Without this bill, the Amendment would not go on the ballot until June of 1974.

"I decided not to sign this bill because my signature could be interpreted as approving something to which I am definitely opposed. However, I am in favor of allowing the people to decide this issue as soon as possible," Reinecke said.

"A veto would delay a decision on the critical issue of bonds to finance repairs for schools that may be damaged in earthquakes until 1974."

The Field Act sets minimum earthquake safety standards for schools which must be met by school districts by 1975. Reinecke said that waiting until 1974 to resolve this issue would seriously hamper attempts to meet the requirements of the act six months later making it impossible to bring them up to specification and causing them to be abandoned.

Reinecke doubted that the amendment would pass.

"Any reduction of the two-thirds voting requirement can perpetuate the problem of rising property taxes," Reinecke said. "The two thirds vote requirement should not be modified for any type of bond issue at a time when increasing property taxes are a serious problem. In all probability, any decrease in the vote requirement will result in more bonds being voted, and the resulting lien upon property can only mean higher taxes."

Article 4, Section 10 (a) of the California Constitution provides that a bill presented to the governor that is not returned after 12 days becomes a statute. Midnight Wednesday, July 20, was the last day.

SB 499 - Alquist

Permits academic and nonacademic employees of state colleges to inspect their personnel file. The employee is also given the right to review and comment upon any derogatory information entered in his file.

REASON FOR VETO:

"I am vetoing this bill at the request of the State College Trustees and the Chancellor. They do not argue against the intent of SB 499 which requires open personnel files; but have very serious problems with the approach which this legislation would impose.

"This bill touches on a particularly sensitive area with respect to the records for academic personnel because of the traditional peer judgment process and the widespread use of faculty committees in the appointment, retention and tenure process. I share the Trustees' concern that the willingness of faculty members to render objective and meaningful evaluations of their fellows could be impaired by the requirement that personnel files be open on each campus.

"The Trustees currently have authority in this area, and I believe these provisions should not be mandated upon them. The Trustees employ about 25,000 people, and I think these types of changes should be part of a positive, total, personnel management program adopted by the Trustees. Each state University or college campus has changing needs as they mature. This bill would deprive the system of the flexibility required for effective personnel practices.

"Accordingly, I am returning the bill unsigned."

Governor Ronald Reagan today accepted a $420,000 federal grant from the National Science Foundation to provide training for unemployed veterans and aerospace workers to become science and math teachers in intercity secondary schools.

The presentation was made by Dr. H. Guyford Stever, director of the National Science Foundation.

The Urban Science Intern Teaching Program is designed to help solve a shortage of science and math teachers in schools located in disadvantaged areas. It encompasses a special curriculum to train unemployed aerospace workers and veterans who have academic degrees.

The special curriculum was designed by the department of science and mathematics at the California State University, Fullerton, under the direction of Dr. George C. Turner, chairman of the department, and Dr. Don Shields, CSU, Fullerton, president.

"This program will alleviate some of the unemployment problems of aerospace workers and veterans," Governor Reagan said. "It will also provide quality teachers of science and math in our intercity schools, create an opportunity for new careers and improve cooperative community relations with our institutions of higher learning," he added.

Governor Reagan also praised Lieutenant Governor Ed Reinecke for his efforts and leadership in bringing this program to California.

The ceremony was also attended by four interns who will be involved in the program---Mrs. Anne B. Hanratty, an Anaheim mother of three with a Ph.D in Chemistry; Willie A. Bailey, Fullerton, a former Lockheed mathematician; Harry Kempt, an ex-nuclear physicist from Arcadia and 29-year-old veteran Charles H. Noyes, Jr., Los Angeles, who has a degree in mechanical engineering.

Governor Ronald Reagan today made the following statement:

"At this moment the Senate Finance Committee is scheduled to be discussing the bipartisan property tax relief bill which the Assembly Speaker and I have submitted to the legislature."

"The hopes of literally millions of Californians---especially our overtaxed homeowners who for too long have had to shoulder an unfair tax burden---are riding on a successful outcome in this committee. Passage also will help assure that, once and for all, no youngster attending public school will be deprived of an adequate basic education simply because his parents happen to live in a poor school district.

"By pulling together, on this extremely critical issue, the Assembly leadership, legislators of both parties and this administration have been able to compromise on a responsible, positive program which can accomplish these long sought goals while guaranteeing a permanent halt in the spiraling property tax burden we all have suffered in recent years

"I want to emphasize that the property tax relief this program offers is permanent. The controls are tightly drawn so that the level of the property tax will be in the hands of the local voter---directly---at the ballot box. This is why the homeowner relief we have proposed is guaranteed, both now and in the years to come.

"The members of the Senate Finance Committee hold the key as to whether or not the people of California will, in fact, receive the kind of property tax relief they so desperately want and deserve.

"For too many years Sacramento has promised, but not delivered. Today, the Senate Finance Committee can help us deliver---and make good our promise of genuine, lasting tax relief. The people who sent us here to do that have waited long enough. They are weary of waiting.

"The members of the committee can---and I trust will---help us end that long wait---TODAY."

Governor Ronald Reagan today made the following statement pertaining to the announcement that North American Rockwell had been awarded a $2.6 billion contract to construct the space shuttle:

"I am thoroughly delighted that North American Rockwell has been the successful bidder on the space shuttle and will be the prime contractor. I have been informed that the project will mean an estimated 25,000 jobs for California. This will provide another big boost to California's steadily improving economy.

"I also want to extend my congratulations and appreciation to Lieutenant Governor Ed Reinecke who led the California Space Shuttle Task Force. Ed spearheaded the drive to raise approximately $100,000 from the private sector to fund the task force's promotional efforts on behalf of California. In addition he made numerous trips to Washington to present California's case before NASA officials.

"And I must mention that unlike Senator McGovern, who opposes the space shuttle, President Nixon has been in the forefront of this effort to maintain America's leadership in space exploration---which will provide thousands of jobs for Californians."

Governor Ronald Reagan today directed the State Air Resources Board (ARB) to schedule a hearing in August in the Riverside-Los Angeles area on the feasibility of converting all vehicles in the South Coast Air Basin to gaseous fuels within the next four years.

The ARB will report its findings to the governor by August 31, 1972. Governor Reagan also directed Frank Walton, secretary of the Business and Transportation Agency, and Norman B. Livermore, Jr., secretary of the Resources Agency, to report by August 31 on the feasibility of converting all state vehicles in the basin to gaseous fuels.

"Although I am confident that existing local and state air pollution control programs in the south basin will improve air quality in time, I believe the problem is serious enough to warrant taking additional steps now," Governor Reagan said. "I know the problems are difficult, that they touch everyone in the basin, but I also know we can win this fight."

The governor today met with the task force he appointed in June to study a proposal presented to him by a delegation headed by Riverside Mayor Ben Lewis calling for the governor to declare a state of emergency because of smog conditions and to order the conversion of all vehicles in the basin to gaseous fuels by 1976.

Governor Reagan said he has received a formal opinion from State Attorney General Evelle Younger informing him that the Riverside proposal exceeds his legal authority. However, Governor Reagan said the smog problem is of such concern that in addition to the August hearing on the Riverside proposal, he has taken the following actions:

--Directed the ARB to determine by December 31 of this year whether the present program of requiring exhaust control devices on 1955-65 automobiles as they are resold can be accelerated, or even expanded to include all such automobiles in the basin whether or not they are resold;

--Directed the ARB and the State Department of Motor Vehicles to extend crankcase and exhaust smog control device requirements to the eastern portions of Riverside and San Bernardino counties;

--Directed his task force on periodic vehicle inspection to speed up the submittal of its report on the costs, benefits and methods of vehicle inspection to October 1, instead of November 31;

--Directed the ARB by September 15 to design and propose new research projects on controlling oxides of nitrogen from non-vehicular sources, and on controlling hydrocarbons which are emitted into the air from the fuel tanks and carburetors of pre-1970 vehicles. He directed the ARB to fund the new research project on losses from the carburetors and fuel tanks, and called upon Secretaries Walton and Livermore to seek legislative authority to fund the research on oxides of nitrogen from the California Environmental Protection Program authorized by the 1970 legislature;

--Directed the State Department of Public Health to take immediate steps to develop and propose, by August 31, an environmental health surveillance system with emphasis on the health problems in the eastern portion of the basin.

Governor Reagan also reported that the state this month established an air pollution monitoring station in Riverside to improve the collection of air quality data in the area.

The governor encouraged the basin's local agencies to continue to improve basinwide planning for traffic management, public transportation and land use as a means of further reducing air pollution.

These would include promotion of car pools through public information programs, and incentives such as preferred parking spaces and reduced parking fees for car pools; improve traffic flow on city streets to minimize stop and go traffic; and continue efforts to improve air quality measurement in the Riverside area to establish more accurately the pollutant concentrations and trends.

Members of the governor's task force are John Maga, executive officer of the ARB, chairman; Harold W. Sullivan, former commissioner of the California Highway Patrol and presently a member of the ARB; Frederick B. Hodges, M.D., director of the State Department of Public Health; John M. Heslep, Ph.D., deputy director of the public health department in charge of environmental health and consumer protection; and George A. Hill, assistant state highway engineer.

Human Relations Agency Secretary Dr. Earl W. Brian today announced Governor Reagan has signed a bill to provide funds so that the State Personnel Board can adjust the salaries of state correctional officers to reflect updated salary inequity data.

The bill, SB 104, by Senator H. L. Richardson (R-Arcadia) augments the salary increase fund up to $5 million for officers and employees working in correctional institutions throughout the state. "This correction of inequity of pay for similar jobs has been long needed," stated Dr. Brian.

"The governor approved the augmentation because a recent study by the State Personnel Board staff indicated that a larger inequity increase was justified to reach closer balance with comparable employees," Dr. Brian said.

Senator Richardson, who spearheaded the bill through the legislature indicated that the pay raise would be effective as soon as it is approved by the Federal Pay Board in Washington. The amount of the raise is designed so that it will be effective July 1, 1972, providing federal concurrence is received.
