Plans to assure that Californians have an opportunity to vote on Governor Reagan's tax limitation program next November moved ahead today when Attorney General Evelle Younger filed with the Secretary of State those documents necessary to enable signature gathering to begin on initiative petitions.

The attorney general's action was the result of a request by Dr. Norman Topping, chairman of Californians for Lower Taxes, who had previously filed a copy of the initiative constitutional amendment with the attorney general's office.

The documents include titling for the initiative and a 100-word summary of its major provisions, including a statement of the financial impact of the plan on the state.

Dr. Topping said petitions are now expected to be printed, mailed and in the hands of those citizens who will conduct the signature gathering campaign by early next week. Some 520,806 valid signatures on petitions will be required for the initiative to qualify.

In a parallel move, the legal language of a constitutional amendment--embodying the governor's proposal--has been introduced in the legislature. If the legislature, itself, chooses to place this constitutional amendment on the November ballot, circulation of the initiative petitions will be halted.

Here is the titling, and text of the 100-word summary, of the initiative:

TAX AND EXPENDITURE LIMITATIONS

"Initiative Constitutional Amendment. Limits state expenditures; restricts use of defined surplus revenue to tax reductions, refunds, or emergencies. Eliminates personal income tax for lower income persons; reduces others' 1973 or 1974 tax up to 20 percent, from surplus, and subsequent year rates 7½ percent. Requires two-thirds legislative vote for new or changed state taxes. Limits local property tax rates except school districts'. Requires state funding of new programs mandated to local governments. Provides for tax and expenditure limit adjustments when functions transferred. Contains special indebtedness obligation provisions. Allows local tax rate and expenditure limit increases upon voter approval. If the proposed initiative is adopted undefined additional financing from state sources in the approximate amount of five hundred sixty eight thousand dollars ($568,000) on a one-time basis and two hundred thirty six thousand dollars ($236,000) annually thereafter will be required for state administrative costs."

At the request of Mayor John Reading of Oakland, Governor Ronald Reagan has invited representatives of those governmental entities affected by the recent killing freeze of several million eucalyptus trees in the East Bay hills to a meeting in the governor's office Wednesday, April 4.

The meeting is being held after several weeks of cooperative efforts between state agencies and those local governments which are directly affected.

The purpose of the meeting will be to develop a joint plan between the state and these local governmental agencies aimed at reducing the potential fire hazard caused by the dead trees and forest underbrush.

Those invited to the meeting include Mayor Reading of Oakland; Warren Widener, mayor of Berkeley; Alfred Dias, chairman, Board of Supervisors, Contra Costa County; Joseph Bort, chairman, Board of Supervisors, Alameda County; John Harnett, manager, East Bay Municipal Utilities District; Richard Trudeau, manager, East Bay Regional Park District; Richard H. Bartke, mayor of El Cerrito; and William H. Hildebrand, assistant director, Civil Defense, Alameda County.

Also joining the governor will be members of the governor's staff and leaders from the departments of state government which will be participating in the effort.

Governor Ronald Reagan and East Bay officials today announced the development of a joint state-local plan aimed at significantly reducing in the months ahead the fire danger caused by a recent killing freeze of eucalyptus trees in the hills east of Oakland.

Final details of the long range plan, worked out after several weeks of close cooperation between local government in the affected areas and various state agencies and departments, were concurred in today at a meeting in the governor's office which was held at the request of Mayor John Reading of Oakland.

Governor Reagan said the plan is designed to make the best, most effective use of both local and state resources in order to realistically alleviate the potential fire hazard to public and private property in the East Bay hills, as a consequence of the freeze.

Here are the basic outlines of the ongoing, joint local-state project

1) Governor Reagan will immediately declare a state of emergency throughout the affected area.

2) The governor also will ask the President to declare the threatened portions of the East Bay hills a disaster area. If this is granted, local residents can apply for federal help, including low-interest loans, to assist them in clearing their property of potential fire hazards such as dead trees, brush, debris, and fallen bark from the trees.

3) Those state and local governmental agencies affected will establish a joint operations center to coordinate fire prevention activities and to insure an immediate, maximum response in order to control and suppress any fires which might occur.

4) The California Division of Forestry will increase its fire fighting capability throughout the hazard area to back up other governmental agencies.

5) The state will establish a fire prevention headquarters base in the fire hazard area and assign Ecology Corps crews, with full equipment, to cut about 12 miles of fuel breaks through the hills to make sure that any fires which might occur in the future can be quickly and safely contained and suppressed.

6) Local entities will continue their organization of volunteer efforts at the local level to reduce potential fire dangers in the area, particularly on private property.

7) The state will detail National Guard units and equipment, plus hauling equipment from other departments of state government such as Public Works and the Division of Forestry, to augment the work of local agencies and volunteers in transporting away debris, brush and other ground fuel which have been gathered on both public and private property.

8) Local governmental agencies will enforce all fire prevention ordinances within their own jurisdictions.

9) The state will implement strong fire prevention regulations on all state-owned property within the fire hazard area.

10) Local agencies already have assigned the overall project top priority, including the commitment to make the maximum use of local resources in dealing with the problem, provision of additional water supply for fire suppression, and the control of access to critical hazard areas.

Governor Reagan stressed that the joint local-state effort will reduce the potential fire hazard in the area of the dead eucalyptus trees to a level below that which has existed in previous years.

Fire prevention experts have noted that much of the fire danger in such areas results from forest underbrush and debris, and the plan calls for the removal of this type of material in the future.

It is for this reason that the removal of such ignitable material is such a key part of the joint local-state effort.

Joining Mayor Reading and the governor at the meeting were: Warren Widener, mayor of Berkeley; Warren Boggess, member, Board of Supervisors, Contra Costa County; Loren Enoch, County Administrative Officer, Alameda County; John Harnett, manager, East Bay Municipal Utilities District; Richard Trudeau, manager, East Bay Regional Park District; Richard Brown, City Manager, El Cerrito; William H. Hildebrand, assistant director, Civil Defense, Alameda County; Gary A. Tate, East Bay Regional Park District; Robert Kearney, fire chief, City of Berkeley; Ray B. Hunter, director, State Department of Conservation; Ross Dunwoody, State Division of Forestry; Herbert Temple, director, Office of Emergency Services, State of California; Robert Vickers, deputy director, Office of Emergency Services, State of California; Ford B. Ford, deputy secretary, Resources Agency, State of California; Edwin Messe III, Executive Assistant, Governor's Office; Herbert Ellingwood, Legal Affairs Secretary, Governor's Office; and Assemblyman Ken Meade, Oakland.

Pacific Palisades---Governor Ronald Reagan today literally took his revolutionary plan to limit and reduce state taxes directly to the people.

In an unprecedented effort to insure that Californians have an opportunity to vote on the plan at a special statewide election later this year, Governor Reagan carried the first voter petition house to house through a Pacific Palisades neighborhood---ringing doorbells and gathering signatures.

Never before in California's history has any governor personally led a petition drive aimed at countering legislative inaction in order to give the people--the taxpayers--the right to limit, indeed even reduce, the amount of money the state can take from their earnings in taxes.

Last month, Governor Reagan submitted the proposed constitutional amendment to the legislature, but certain legislative leaders have made it clear they have no intention of letting the people vote on the issue. The governor has said that if the legislature decides to let the election take place, he will halt the petition campaign.

In officially opening the signature gathering effort today, Governor Reagan noted that a grass roots petition drive by citizens will be moved into full swing starting next week across the state. The goal will be to collect some 800,000 signatures by the first week in June to insure that the plan qualifies for the ballot. Only in this way can the people be sure of voting on it at a special statewide election November 6. Some 520,000 valid signatures are required for the measure to qualify for the election. The petition drive will be headed by Dr. Norman Topping, President Emeritus of the University of Southern California, who is chairman of a statewide citizens group called Californians for Lower Taxes, sponsor of the initiative.

The governor's initiative constitutional amendment, if approved by the voters in November, will:

--Provide a 20 percent rebate on 1973 state income taxes, by returning most of the state's current $852 million one-time surplus to the people. (The governor also is urging the legislature to statutorily defer a one-cent increase in the state sales tax from June 1 until next January. This also would be funded out of the one-time surplus which was made possible, in large part, by the huge savings from welfare and Medi-Cal reforms sponsored by the governor.)

--Slash income taxes $7\frac{1}{2}$ percent, on an on-going basis, beginning January 1, 1974, and thereafter. (This will be possible because of the savings the state will continue to make in the years ahead from the welfare and Medi-Cal reforms).

--Exempt any individual earning less than $4 thousand per year, and any family (husband and wife) with a joint income of less than $8 thousand per year, from having to pay any state income tax whatsoever in the years to come.

--Limit and gradually reduce the percentage of the people's earnings (total state personal income) which state government can take in itself over the next 15 years. This will reduce the state's present tax share of about 8.75 percent of total personal income in California down to about 7.15 percent in 1989. This represents a 20 percent reduction in the share of the people's earnings the state will be taking in taxes over the next 15 years and will amount to a cumulative savings to the taxpayers of about $118 billion---money which otherwise will be siphoned off by state government. In fact, during the same 15 year period, if the plan is approved by the voters, the cumulative savings in taxes to the average family of four in California will total $17,756.

While requiring that the state must gradually take a smaller and smaller share of the state's total personal income in taxes each year, the constitutional tax limit will nevertheless enable the state budget to double in ten years or actually triple in 15 years to $27.4 billion in 1989, in order to not only keep pace with population growth and inflation, but also to provide the state with additional revenues to innovate any programs to meet possible needs. While the state will need a cumulative increase in revenues of about 118 percent to keep up with growth and inflation, the state budget can increase by nearly 200 percent under the tax limit, providing substantial fiscal leeway is created and expanded state programs are justified.

On the other hand, if the state fails to impose a limit on the revenues it can take in taxes in the years ahead, California's total state budget will be five times larger in 1989 than it is today---or $47.1 billion 15 years from now. This will mean that the percentage of total state personal income which the state is taking from the people in taxes will be 12.25 percent, or more than five percent above what will be taken by the state if the limit is approved, by 1989. In other words, the tax limitation will assure that the people will be able to keep for themselves, to spend as they wish, five cents more on the average dollar earned by 1989.

Again, the cumulative savings to the taxpayers over the next 15 years, if the limit is in effect, is projected to total $118 billion-- money the taxpayers can put back in their pockets to spend as they wish.

--Set maximum local property tax rates, by incorporating provisions relating to this which were passed by the legislature last year in SB 90, the school finance-property tax measure sponsored by Governor Reagan.

--Provide safeguards against shifting costs from the state to local governments. This means that if the state should mandate a program on local government, the state will have to provide the revenues to pay for it.

Governor Reagan noted that today, government--federal, state and local--is keeping nearly 45 cents of the average dollar earned by the people for itself. Before 1930, government was taking only about 15 cents. Only 20 years later, in 1950, that 15 cents had doubled to 30 cents.

In only the next 15 years, projections show that government's share of the people's income will have increased to almost 54 cents on the dollar---more than half of the people's earnings.

"If we as Americans allow that trend to continue, it is only a matter of time before we'll have nothing of our earnings to spend for ourselves. The spectre of such utter dependence on government should be frightening to every citizen who values our traditional values of self-reliance and our productive free enterprise way of life.

"I am convinced that California has an unparalleled opportunity to show the way to the rest of the nation---the way to reverse the trend we have been a witness to.

"This initiative can help to make that possible," the governor said.

INITIATIVE MEASURE TO BE SUBMITTED DIRECTLY TO THE ELECTORS

The Attorney General has prepared a title and summary of the chief purposes and points of the proposed measure, as follows:

TAX AND EXPENDITURE LIMITATIONS. Initiative Constitutional Amendment. Limits State expenditures; restricts use of defined surplus revenue to tax reductions, refunds, or emergencies. Provides for tax and expenditure limit adjustments when functions transferred. Contains special indebtedness obligation provisions. Allows local tax rate and expenditure limit increases upon voter approval. If the proposed initiative is adopted undefined additional financing from State sources in the approximate amount of Five Hundred Sixty Eight Thousand dollars ($568,000) on a one-time basis and Two Hundred Thirty Six Thousand dollars ($236,000) annually thereafter will be required for State administrative costs.

(3) The Legislature shall minimize accumulations within the Tax Surplus Fund by making periodic tax refunds or reductions as permitted by this Article.

(b) On the effective date of this Article, the Controller shall determine the amount of surplus in the General Fund as of the end of fiscal year 1972-73 and shall designate such portion of the surplus as is necessary and available to effect the refund of subdivision (b) (1) hereof.

(1) The surplus so designated shall be utilized for a refund by means of a credit of 20% of personal income taxes for the calendar year 1973, excluding taxes on capital gains on assets held for more than one year, items of tax preference, estates and trusts, or in such lesser percentage as the Director of the Department of Finance shall certify is available for such refund. Single individuals whose adjusted gross income is less than $4,000.00 and married couples and heads of households whose adjusted gross income is less than $8,000.00 shall bear no personal income tax. If this Article is effective on or before December 31, 1973, then this paragraph shall apply to the 1973 taxable year. If this Article becomes effective after December 31, 1973, then this Section shall apply to the 1974 taxable year.

(2) If, prior to the effective date of this Article, a statute is enacted providing the refund as set forth in subdivision (b) (1) of this Section, such statute shall be deemed compliance with the requirements of this subdivision (b) to the extent such refund is provided.

(3) The Legislature shall, by statute, implement the tax refund required by subdivision (b) (1) as to application to non-resident and fiscal year taxpayers and as to credits in computing liability.

(4) State Tax Revenue for purposes of computing the State Tax Revenue Limit as here defined shall not be reduced by refunds made pursuant to this subdivision (b).

SECTION 3. Appropriation Limit.

No appropriation shall cause an expenditure during any fiscal year of State Tax Revenues for that fiscal year in excess of the State Tax Revenue Limit for that fiscal year, other than for tax refunds or, pursuant to Section 6 of this Article, for Emergency Situations. Subject only to such exceptions, any such expenditure in excess of the State Tax Revenue Limit is prohibited. The Legislature shall, prior to any other appropriation, first make provision for the payment of the principal and interest on the indebtedness of the State.

SECTION 4. State Tax Adjustments; Personal Income Tax Reduction.

(a) The imposition of any new tax or the change in the rate or base of any tax by the Legislature shall be by statute passed by roll-call vote entered in the journal, two-thirds of the membership of each house concurring, except for tax refunds or reductions by appropriations specifically declared to be out of the Tax Surplus Fund which shall be by statute passed by a vote of the majority of the membership of each house.

(b) For 1974 and thereafter, the State personal income tax liability of taxpayers shall be determined at rates no higher than those in effect on January 1, 1973, less a credit of 7½%. Single individuals whose adjusted gross income is less than $4,000.00 and married couples and heads of households whose adjusted gross income is less than $8,000.00 shall bear no State personal income tax. The Legislature shall, by statute, implement the tax reduction required by this Section as to application to non-resident and fiscal year taxpayers and as to credits in computing liability. The provisions of this subdivision (b) may be modified by statute passed by roll-call vote entered in the journal, two-thirds of the membership of each house concurring. If this Article becomes effective after December 31, 1973, then this subdivision shall apply to 1975 and thereafter instead of 1974 and thereafter.

SECTION 5. State Tax Revenue Limit Adjustment by Election.

The State Tax Revenue Limit may be increased or decreased by a designated dollar amount by a majority vote of the people at a Statewide election approving a measure placed on the ballot by the Legislature by a roll-call vote entered into the journal, two-thirds of the membership of each house concurring, or placed on the ballot as an initiative statute pursuant to Article IV of this Constitution. A measure so approved shall take effect the day after the election, unless the measure provides otherwise.

SECTION 6. Emergency Fund and Emergency Appropriations.

(a) A Special Emergency Fund of not more than 0.2% of the State Personal Income shall be established and maintained by the Legislature. Money appropriated to the Special Emergency Fund shall be from State Tax Revenues and shall be subject to the State Tax Revenue Limit.

(b) Upon the Governor's declaration of an Emergency Situation and the exhaustion of such emergency funds as may be available from the Federal Government, the Legislature may make appropriations to meet the Emergency Situation from the Special Emergency Fund or, if that fund is exhausted, either from the Tax Surplus Fund or from State Tax Revenues derived from a specific tax increase or a specific new tax designated for the Emergency Situation and enacted in accordance with Section 4 of this Article. Any tax so enacted shall remain in effect no longer than two years, unless its continuation is approved by a majority of the votes cast for and against its continuance at a Statewide election.

SECTION 7. Local Taxes.

(a) The Maximum Property Tax Rates of each Local Entity are set at the rates levied for the fiscal year 1971-72 or for the fiscal year 1972-73, whichever is the higher. The Maximum Property Tax Rates for a Local Entity created after the effective date of this Article shall be established by the electorate of the Local Entity at the time of its creation.

(b) To permit adjustment of the Maximum Property Tax Rates set in subdivision (a) of this Section, the Legislature shall enact statutes, within the general intent of this Article, to permit:

(1) Maximum Property Tax Rates to be increased or decreased to reflect cost variations due to cost-of-living or population changes not offset by assessed valuation changes or to allow for other special circumstances creating hardship for individual Local Entities.

(2) Maximum Property Tax Rates to be increased or decreased when authorized by the electorate of the Local Entity, or if there is no electorate, then as provided by the Legislature.

(3) Maximum Property Tax Rates to be increased by a four-fifths vote of the governing board of a Local Entity, to secure revenue to defray the costs of an Emergency Situation affecting the Local Entity, but any such increase shall remain in effect no longer than two years, unless its continuation is approved by the Local Entity's electorate.

(c) All property taxable by Local Entities and School Districts, except personal property specially classified for the purpose of assessment and taxation pursuant to the provisions of Section 14 of Article XIII of this Constitution, shall be assessed at a uniform percentage of full value established by the Legislature. If that percentage is any figure other than twenty-five, the maximum rates prescribed in subdivisions (a) and (b) of this Section shall be converted into new maximums by multiplying them by twenty-five and dividing them by the new assessment percentage. Full value, as used herein, means fair market value or such other standard of value as is required or authorized under this Constitution.

(d) No Local Entity or School District shall impose, levy or collect any tax upon or measured by income, or any part thereof, except as authorized by the Legislature by a statute passed by a roll-call vote entered in the journal, two-thirds of the membership of each house concurring. This subdivision (d) shall not be construed to prohibit the imposition, levy or collection of any otherwise authorized license tax upon a business measured by or according to gross receipts.

SECTION 8. Protection of Local Entities and School Districts from State-Imposed Costs.

(a) After the effective date of this Article, no new program, or increase in level of service under an existing program, shall be mandated to Local Entities or School Districts by the State until an appropriation has been made to pay the Local Entities or School Districts the costs of the mandated program or service, but no appropriation for payments to Local Entities or School Districts shall be required if such program or increase in level of service under a program is determined by the Legislature to be applicable generally to private entities or individuals, as well as to Local Entities or School Districts.

(b) The Legislature shall enact statutes to establish procedures for implementing this Section consistent with the following principles and directives:

(1) The performance of functions or services not required to be performed prior to a mandate to the Local Entity or School District shall be considered a new program or increase in level of service.

(2) The increased workload under an existing program, the implementation of statutes existing at the effective date of this Article or the definition of a new crime or change in the definition of an existing crime by statute shall not be considered a mandated new program or a mandated increase in level of service.

SECTION 9. Maintenance of Local Property Tax Relief.

(a) If the State reduces local property tax relief by decreasing the specific unit amount, rate or percentage established by statute for payments made under formula to Local Entities or School Districts from that in effect upon the effective date of this Article, the State Tax Revenue Limit shall be decreased by an amount equivalent to the decrease in payments to Local Entities or School Districts.

(b) The adjustment to the State Tax Revenue Limit required by this Section shall be made in the first fiscal year of the decrease of payment described in subdivision (a) of this Section. Such adjustment shall remain in effect for each subsequent fiscal year.

SECTION 10. Adjustments for Program and Cost Transfers.

To maintain a balance between the tax burden and the cost of specific government programs at the State and local level, and to further accomplish the purposes of this Article, the Legislature shall enact statutes consistent with the following principles and directives:

(a) If the Legislature enacts a specific property tax relief measure funded by State Tax Revenues or if, by order of any court, the costs of a program are transferred from Local Entities or School Districts to the State, the State Tax Revenue Limit may be increased, providing the Maximum Property Tax Rates of affected Local Entities or the then existing tax rates of affected School Districts are commensurately decreased.

(b) If the costs of a program are transferred from the State or Local Entities or School Districts to the Federal Government, the State Revenue Limit or the Maximum Tax Rates of affected Local Entities or the then existing tax rates of affected School Districts shall be commensurately decreased.

(c) If the costs of a program are transferred to or imposed on existing or newly created Local Entities by Federal Law or the order of any court, the Maximum Property Tax Rates of affected Local Entities may be commensurately increased, pursuant to such specific conditions of State approval in each case as the Legislature may impose.

(d) If the costs of a program are transferred between existing or newly created Local Entities or School Districts, the Maximum Property Tax Rates or the then existing tax rates of each shall be commensurately adjusted.

(e) If Federal taxes are reduced on condition that the State increase expenditures by an amount equivalent to the Federal reduction, the State Tax Revenue Limit may be increased by such amount.

(f) The adjustments required by this Section of the State Tax Revenue Limit, the Maximum Property Tax Rates or the then existing tax rates in the case of School Districts shall be made in the first fiscal year of transfer or operation. Such adjustment shall remain in effect for each subsequent fiscal year.

SECTION 11. Economic Estimates Commission.

(a) There shall be an Economic Estimates Commission consisting of the State Controller; the Director of the Department of Finance or an appointee of the Governor as designated by him; and a designee appointed by the Legislature who is not a member of the Legislature, selected in a manner provided by the Joint Rules of the Legislature. The Commission shall act by a vote of two-thirds of its membership. The Commission Chairman shall be designated by the Governor. The Commission shall utilize the resources of existing State agencies in carrying out its duties.

(b) The Commission shall determine and publish, prior to April 1 of each year, the State Tax Revenue Limit for the following fiscal year by making and publishing all necessary estimates and calculations as provided in this Article. If this Amendment is not effective prior to April 1, 1974, the Commission shall determine the State Tax Revenue Limit for fiscal year 1974-75 as soon after enactment as it can act. If it does not act prior to July 1, 1974, the State Tax Revenue Limit for fiscal year 1974-75 shall be the amount of the State Tax Revenue as here defined for fiscal year 1973-74. The Commission shall also determine and publish such estimates of the State Tax Revenue Limit as are necessary for the orderly and proper development of State budgets. If the Commission does not act to determine the State Tax Revenue Limit before July 1 of a fiscal year, the State Tax Revenue Limit for that fiscal year shall remain the same as for the previous fiscal year.

SECTION 12. Computation of State Tax Revenue Limit.

(a) The State Tax Revenue Limit for a fiscal year shall be computed as the dollar sum of

(1) the greater of the following:

(i) The dollar amount derived by multiplying together the State Tax Revenue Limit Income Quotient for the specified fiscal year and the State Personal Income for the calendar year in which the specified fiscal year commences; or

(ii) The dollar amount derived by multiplying together the State Tax Revenue Limit Population-Inflation Quotient, the State Population for the calendar year in which the specified fiscal year commences and the Consumer Price Index; plus

(2) the dollar amount increase or decrease to the State Tax Revenue Limit authorized for that fiscal year pursuant to Sections 5, 9 and 10 of this Article.

(b) Beginning with the fiscal year 1989-90, or with a fiscal year in which the State Tax Revenue Limit Income Quotient is no greater than 0.0700, the Legislature, by statute passed by roll-call vote entered in the journal, two-thirds of the membership of each house concurring, may terminate further reduction in the State Tax Revenue Limit Income Quotient. Thereafter, the State Tax Revenue Limit Income Quotient shall be maintained at the level reached in the fiscal year in which such statute is enacted; however, annual reductions may be reinstated by statute passed by roll-call vote, two-thirds of the membership of each house concurring.

(c) If the statistical series used to determine the Consumer Price Index, State Personal Income and State Population, as defined in Section 16 of this Article, are recomputed by or succeeded by new series reported by the United States Department of Commerce or the United States Department of Labor or a successor agency of the United States Government, the State Tax Revenue Limit Income Quotient or State Tax Revenue Limit Population-Inflation Quotient shall be re-derived in accordance with the recomputation or new series, and the re-derived quotient shall be used in computing the State Tax Revenue Limit for the fiscal year succeeding the fiscal year in which the quotient was re-derived.

SECTION 13. Bonds and Pensions.

(a) Nothing in Section 3 or in any other provision of this Article shall limit the taxes levied or otherwise to be levied or appropriations made for the payment or discharge of any indebtedness of the State and the interest thereon heretofore or hereafter authorized by vote of the electors, or State notes or other securities issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes, and all bonds or other indebtedness of the State shall be payable from taxes of any kind or character which may be levied by the State without limitation of rate or amount.

(b) Nothing herein contained shall limit any indebtedness or liability of Local Entities or School Districts which has been duly authorized by a vote of the electors thereof. All taxes or assessments required to be levied or collected for the payment of indebtedness so incurred may be levied upon all property subject to taxation or special assessment by the Local Entities or School Districts without limit as to rate or amount, and the Maximum Property Tax Rates applicable herein shall not apply to the payment of indebtedness so incurred. The Maximum Property Tax Rates applicable to Local Entities shall not be applicable to obligations to levy taxes under the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 or to the authority of Local Entities or School Districts to levy and collect taxes to pay for Local Entities or School Districts retirement and pension benefits pursuant to laws which have been, or may in the future be, approved by the voters.

SECTION 14. Severability.

If any portion, section, subdivision or clause of this Article, or the application thereof to any entity, person or circumstance, be declared unconstitutional or held invalid or deemed unenforceable for any reason, the remaining portions of this Article and the application of such portions to other entities, persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby.

SECTION 15. Implementing Statutes.

(a) The Legislature, by statute, shall establish procedures for elections required by this Article, shall appropriate funds for any State-wide special election called pursuant to this Article and shall enact any other statutes necessary to carry out the provisions of this Article.

(b) The Legislature, by statute, may determine the fund or funds from which transfers to the Tax Surplus Fund, as established by subdivision (a) of Section 2 of this Article, shall be made, unless this Constitution restricts the use of a designated fund to other specified purposes. In the absence of statutory provisions, transfer to the Tax Surplus Fund shall be from the State General Fund.

For the record, in press release #198, dated 4-6-73, the following corrections should be made:

.....earnings (total state personal income) which state government can take in taxes over the next 15 years.

While requiring that the state must gradually take a smaller and smaller share of the state's total personal income in taxes each year, the constitutional tax limit will nevertheless enable the state budget to double in ten years and actually triple in 15 years to $27.4 billion in 1989, in order to not only keep pace with population growth and inflation, but also to provide the state with additional revenues to innovate new programs to meet public needs. While the state will need a cumulative increase in revenues of about 118 percent to keep up with growth and inflation, the state budget can increase by nearly 200 percent under the tax limit, providing substantial fiscal leeway for creating and expanding state programs where justified.

RELEAS Immediate

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced the appointment of Salvador J. Espana, Jr., of Sacramento, as the Director of the State Office of Economic Opportunity. He replaces Robert B. Hawkins, Jr., of Loomis, who resigned last month.

Espana has been the Deputy Director for Operations of the State OEO since October 1971. He has been working at OEO since March 1967 as a program analyst except for a 15 month period in 1968-69 when he served as assistant to the governor for community relations.

"Sal Espana has been instrumental in ensuring that the federally funded programs in California were effective and efficient," stated Governor Reagan, "his experience and knowledge, gained during the past six years, will ensure that the OEO continues to be responsive to the needs of Californians," added the governor.

Prior to entering state service, Espana was manager for eleven years of the West Side Growers Association in Los Banos. He is a partner in a restaurant business and several other business ventures. During the Korean War, he served four years on active duty with the U.S. Navy.

Governor Ronald Reagan today called the attention of Californians to the observance of National Action for Foster Children, this week, describing it as "an excellent opportunity to refocus community attention on foster care needs and programs.

"I know that many of our communities in this state have made plans to improve public knowledge of foster care in various ways during this coming week," the governor said, "and I urge citizen support of those plans.

"The benefits of foster care programs to society as well as to homeless children have been well established in California for many years. There always seems to be a need for more foster parents, and this is an excellent chance for communities to make these needs known to people who might be able to take part."

There are an estimated 31,000 foster children in California at the present time, ten per cent of the nationwide figure. An estimated 1,200 children become potential foster care placement cases every month in the state.

Governor Ronald Reagan today named the members of a special task force whose responsibilities during the next six months will be to take a careful, comprehensive look at the multi-faceted structure of local government in California and recommend ways to make it more efficient, more responsive and less costly to the taxpayers.

The task force will be under the overall direction of Lt. Governor Ed Reinecke who will head a steering committee comprised of members of the governor's cabinet to provide policy guidance to the task force members. Robert B. Hawkins, Jr., 31, former director of the state Office of Economic Opportunity, will serve as chairman of the task force itself (previously announced).

Governor Reagan said he is asking the task force members to take a hard, close, analytical look at the entire structure of local government. "Then, ask yourselves: if you were starting all over again, how would you structure local government to make it the most efficient, most responsive and least costly instrument of the people at the local level?"

The governor emphasized that the task force---known as the Governor's Task Force on Local Government---is not intended as a move toward another layer of government such as some proposals for regional government. "That would merely compound the problem by creating more government. On the other hand, some counties may today be either too big or too small to effectively deal with the problems and needs of the 1970s than they were when county lines were first drawn in the horse and buggy era of the last century."

He said many of the 58 counties in California were formed and the boundary lines drawn more than 100 years ago when California was a much different, far less populated, place than it is today.

"Today, California has some 5,800 units of government below the state level, including 58 counties, 407 incorporated cities, more than 1,100 school districts and almost 4,200 special districts performing one or more services. In the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Area alone, there are more than 800 separate taxing jurisdictions, each with a responsibility for a specific service, and each authorized to levy taxes to support its operations.

"The average citizen is not even aware of all these different units of government. The only time he gets a first-hand knowledge of their existence is when he has a complaint about service, or more likely when he receives his property tax bill. When they are looking at that long list of governmental units which their tax dollars are taken to support, many citizens must wonder whether they are getting their money's worth, and whether all these different layers of government are really necessary," the governor said.

"The reform and modernization, indeed the streamlining, of local government is, and should be, one of our top priorities. And, it is this major task which the members of the task force will be tackling in the months ahead," he added.

In addition to the steering committee and the task force itself, the overall effort will include participation by the Council on Intergovernmental Relations, and advisory committees to be made up of local government officials, public administrators, representatives of the academic community, and private citizens. Currently, at the governor's request, the Council on Intergovernmental Relations is conducting public hearings on this subject throughout the state. The results of these hearings will be compiled and then submitted to the task force for consolidation with its own study material.

The goal of the Local Government task force effort will be to recommend a comprehensive plan and provide it to the governor, the legislature, local government officials, and the citizens they serve so that they can modernize and streamline their own governmental structures to more effectively and efficiently meet the growth needs and changing requirements of all the people of California in the years to come.

Those who will serve on the governor's task force on local government include:

--Earl J. Strathman, 58, a former County Administrator in Alameda County.

He previously worked in the Los Angeles County Administrator's office and served as director of the University of South Dakota's Government Research Bureau.

He is a past president of the County Personnel Administrator's Association of California, a former director of the Western Governmental Research Association and a former vice-president of the American Society for Public Administration.

Strathman is a Democrat. He will receive $100 per day, plus necessary expenses.

--John D. Phillips, 64, who has over thirty years' experience in municipal government as both a city manager and city attorney. He recently retired after serving for seven years as city manager of Pasadena. Previously, he was city attorney and later, city manager of Berkeley.

Phillips is a past president of the city manager's department of the League of California Cities and is a former Regional vice-president of the International City Management Association. Phillips also helped to form the Association of Bay Area Governments.

He is a Republican. He will receive $100 per day plus necessary expenses.

--Charles D. Hobbs, 39, with experience in various areas of state and local finance, operations management, and computer-based information systems.

Most recently, he served as a member of the governor's tax reduction task force and as special consultant to the governor for tax and spending programs.

He was formerly deputy director for operations in the state Department of Social Welfare and was one of the principal architects of the California Welfare Reform Program.

Prior to joining state government, Hobbs was engaged for 12 years in managing the design, development and operation of computer-based information systems for military, commercial and public applications.

He is a Republican. He will receive $140 per day plus necessary expenses.

--Allen Hyman, 30, an economist with special interest in the fields of urban and transportation economics. He has an AB and MA from UCLA and expects to complete work for his Ph.D. from that institution this year.

Hyman's experience includes work as a Research Economist for the state Office of Economic Opportunity and Southern California Edison Company and as an instructor in finance and economics at the University of Southern California. He is a Democrat. He will receive $75 per day plus expenses.

--Gregory C. Krohm, 26, an economist who recently completed work for his Ph.D. at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. He has a B.A. in Economics from Loyola University of Chicago. His special areas of interest have been urban economics and the economics of crime. Krohm's dissertation topic was an economic analysis of city annexation policy.

His political affiliation is independent. He will receive $75 per day plus necessary expenses.

Hawkins, the task force chairman, holds a Doctorate in Political Science from the University of Washington where he specialized in the area of local government. He will be paid an annual salary of $28,875. He is a Republican.

The Court of Appeal in San Francisco Monday issued a Writ of Supersedeas which permits the governor to give state employees the traditional time off with pay. The time off has been given traditionally to allow state employees to attend church services on Good Friday.

The San Francisco court ruling stayed a ruling April 6 by the Alameda County Superior Court that said it was unconstitutional for the state to give a religious holiday off with pay.

Acting Governor Ed Reinecke today announced he has signed legislation eliminating some of the inequities resulting from the passage of Proposition 20, the California Coastal Zone Conservation Act of 1972.

The measure, SB 256, introduced by Senator James R. Mills (D-San Diego), specifically exempts any person from having to get a permit under the coastal zone act if they had already received a permit from a city or county and had started construction prior to November 8, 1972, when Proposition 20 was approved by the voters.

Under Proposition 20, permits on developments from the Coastal Zone Commission were required after April 1, 1972.

"I am extremely pleased to sign this measure into law because it removes many of the inequities and uncertainties hanging over permit requirements of coastal developments that were already under way prior to the approval of Proposition 20," Reinecke said.

"It was unfair to those individuals who had received building permits after April 1 of last year and prior to the approval of Proposition 20 on November 8, who had substantial investments and had begun construction, to require them to stop their projects and apply for another permit.

"The uncertainties of the permit requirements are eliminated by this new law, and I am confident that the objectives of the coastal zone act will be better served."

The bipartisan measure also clarifies the law to state that filing fees collected by the various coastal zone commissions will be used to offset their operating costs.

The bill, containing an urgency clause, became effective with Reinecke's signature.

Revises the exemption from certain contractual limitations of contracts for electronic data-processing work entered into by any school district in a county with a population in excess of 1,400,000 to apply where no regional educational processing center was in operation on July 1, 1971.

SB 256 - Mills
Chapter 28

Specifically exempts any person from a permit requirement of the California Coastal Zone Conservation Act of 1972 for any development, if such person, prior to November 8, 1972, rather than April 1, 1972, relying on a city or county permit, commenced construction and performed substantial work on the development and incurred substantial liabilities for work and materials necessary therefor.

The bill specifies that all permit application filing fees and reimbursements for expenses shall be credited and appropriated to the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission for expenditure to support the operation of the commission and regional coastal zone conservation commissions.

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced approval by the U.S. Department of Labor of California's occupational safety and health plan.

The plan was submitted by the state under the provisions of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970.

"Approval of California's plan assures ongoing and even better protection of our working men and women," Governor Reagan said. "I wish to commend all those who took part in the task of meshing the federal criteria with the state's existing industrial safety program which was a model for the nation."

The state plan was developed under the direction of an advisory committee appointed by the governor. It originally was submitted to the regional office of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) last September and was resubmitted in December after being returned for modification. Approval was authorized by Assistant Labor Secretary John Stender after detailed study and review.

Under the terms of the federal act, state inspectors will enforce state industrial health and safety laws and federal inspectors will enforce federal laws during a transition period of three to four years. The state will assume complete jurisdiction at its conclusion.

Approval of the plan also made the state eligible for 50 percent federal funding of its occupational safety and health activities. Application already has been made for a $5 million grant.

Legislation has been introduced both in the Assembly, by Assemblyman Jack R. Fenton (D-Montebello) and the state Senate by Senator Fred Marler (R. Redding) to implement provisions of the state plan.

Governor Ronald Reagan has proposed an increase in the 1973-74 State Parks budget by $91,599 to assure opening this summer of 4,000 acres of new park system lands in the Santa Monica Mountains.

Under normal budget scheduling, funds for the project would not have been available for at least another year, the governor noted.

"We couldn't allow 4,000 acres of recreational open space within the city limits of Los Angeles to lie unused even for one season when the need there is so great," the governor said. "This way we can provide limited use while long-range plans are being made for more permanent development.

"The opportunity came to us this spring when the California State Parks Foundation acquired a key parcel that will connect with other lands the state has purchased or been given over the past few years."

The 1,700 acres of new property acquired by the foundation is adjacent to the Topanga Canyon areas already owned by the state park system.

The new lands will be opened for picnicking, hiking, horseback riding, and other day-use activities shortly after July 1, according to William Penn Mott, Jr., director of the California Department of Parks and Recreation.

The legislature must act upon the augmentation in considering the 1973-74 budget.

The $91,599 will provide two rangers and a maintenance man, plus seasonal help for peak use periods. It will also pay for two four-wheel drive vehicles, a small fire pumper truck, and sanitary and other equipment necessary for operation of a park.

Governor Ronald Reagan today issued the following statement regarding a report by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post on the governor's proposed revenue control and tax reduction program:

"It is not at all surprising to me that Mr. Post doesn't favor this effort to reduce and limit taxes. Nor should it come as a surprise to anyone who has observed his continuous support for his bosses' higher government spending proposals and expansion of government control.

"His dire predictions have increasingly supported the big spenders in the legislature who have consistently opposed this administration's efforts to clamp down on spending, and this may be the reason why Mr. Post's fiscal predictions have turned out to be so wrong.

"Even though Mr. Post's office was envisioned as a non-partisan check against excessive spending by state government, his forebodings of fiscal chaos unless the state spent more money and increased taxes have missed their targets completely.

"Here are some examples of the horrendous errors Mr. Post and his staff have made.

"Rather than the $712 million budget deficit which he predicted in 1971, we now have a budget surplus of between $700 million and $850 million which has resulted in large part from our welfare reforms.

"He said our reforms would not work and that they would not affect or reduce state spending. He couldn't have been more wrong. These reforms, in fact, dramatically reversed the skyrocketing welfare burden on the people.

"For the first time in the state's history our welfare caseload has dropped by more than quarter of a million persons, compared to the 40,000 recipients we were adding each month to the roles before the reforms went into effect.

"Last year he challenged our welfare savings estimates as being too high and said delays in implementing the new welfare reform law by welfare rights groups were very likely to transform the administration's planned savings into increased costs. Yet, as the California Journal pointed out later, Mr. Post's early caseload estimate was wrong and the Department of Social Welfare's was right.

"Instead of the huge tax increase he had proposed, the state is now in the healthiest financial condition in many years---without the new and higher taxes he had said were necessary. We even have a huge surplus which the state doesn't need, and which I propose to return to the people.

"He also labeled the budget I proposed for fiscal 1971-72 'the Property Tax Increase Act of 1971.' Yet when the counties had set their tax rates for the following fiscal year, 42 of our 58 counties reported reductions in their basic county tax rates.

"Last year he charged that our budget had short-changed education. Yet state support for public schools this fiscal year is some 48.6 percent more than it was in fiscal 1966-67. And, as a result of the passage of SB 90, state support for our public schools in the coming fiscal year will be nearly 93 percent more than the state provided in fiscal 1966-67, despite the fact that projected enrollment for fiscal 1973-74 will be only 5.7 percent higher than in fiscal 1966-67. The fact is state aid to our schools has increased almost three times as much as enrollment growth, plus inflation, during that period.

"For one who has been so wrong in his predictions to again parrot the precursors of misery and ruin who not only oppose our efforts to cut taxes, but also have consistently urged higher and higher spending levels, is very difficult to understand.

"We simply cannot continue to tax and spend, spend and tax the people's earnings without disastrous consequences. The day of reckoning is at hand. We dare not ignore the lessons of history.

"It is my responsibility as governor to try and reduce taxes---not only this year, but on a permanent basis. Mr. Post seems to feel the state should have unlimited taxing authority, and his efforts to decry the details of our program are consistent with that philosophy.

"I believe there must be a limit on this authority, if our free economy and our private enterprise system is to survive.

"The fact is, taxes are already too high. The carefully drawn plan we have proposed---with the help of some of America's leading tax experts and economists---can and will reduce taxes and reverse the upward spiral toward an ever increasing tax burden in the years ahead.

"Again, I am extremely disappointed that Mr. Post has chosen to abandon the interests of the taxpayers and has instead embraced the policy positions of those free-spending leaders in the legislature by whom he is employed."
