Up to 20,000 patients a year will be treated at a new Veterans Administration outpatient clinic planned for Sacramento, Governor Ronald Reagan said today. The clinic will increase significantly the health care facilities available to former servicemen in Northern California.

In his budget message today in Washington, President Richard Nixon asked Congress for $5,600,000 to operate and equip six clinics in urban areas. The clinics would be in leased office or commercial buildings, have a staff of 25 and be supported by the nearest VA hospitals.

The small clinic program is designed to meet pressing needs for veterans' health care in urban areas, according to veterans administrator Donald E. Johnson. The VA estimates the clinics can be established and operated at a cost of $35 per patient visit.

The leased outpatient clinic program will augment a record $276 million VA construction program proposed for fiscal 1975.

Other clinics are proposed for Allentown, Pennsylvania; Evansville, Indiana; Greenville, South Carolina; Lantana, Florida, and Beaumont, Texas.

Governor Ronald Reagan today named state Social Welfare Director David B. Swoap head of the new Department of Benefit Payments in the Health and Welfare Agency.

In conjunction with the 36-year-old Swoap's appointment, the Department of Social Welfare officially changes its name. Swoap will continue to administer the social welfare operations included in the new department.

Legislation passed last year authorized the formation of the new department by next July 1 and the implementation early this year to permit a smooth transition of several fiscal functions from other state departments.

Audit and collection units from the Health and Employment Development departments eventually will be transferred to the new organization. When organizational moves are completed, the department will have about 2,300 employees: 1,250 from Employment Development, 900 from Social Welfare, and 150 from Health.

No major personnel actions are involved at this time.

Swoap became social welfare director last May. He had been acting director for two months after transferring from the State Personnel Board, where he was assistant secretary for 13 months.

Prior to joining state government, Swoap was district coordinator for State Senator Howard Way.

He received a bachelor's degree from Denison University in Ohio and a master's from Claremont College.

He will continue to receive an annual salary of $33,960.

The following statement by Governor Ronald Reagan was released 2-6-74 per telephone inquiries from AP and UPI:

"Ivy Baker Priest is a dedicated public servant and a truly outstanding American. While I am sorry she has chosen not to seek a third term as our treasurer, I most certainly understand her motives. Family considerations and those of personal health most assuredly should, and do, come first.

"She has given to Californians and to her country a total of 16 years of sound investment practices and financial expertise which achieved economic benefits for the burdened taxpayers.

"In particular, it was through her efforts that California received and kept a Triple-A bond rating. Unless you're a financial wizard, that probably doesn't mean anything. But to the people of this state it has meant the saving of millions of dollars in interest. The taxpayers of California owe much to Ivy Baker Priest.

"From my own standpoint, Ivy has been a close personal and political friend and I wish her well."

Governor Ronald Reagan today presented to U. S. Congressman Alphonzo Bell (Republican - 28th District) the first annual CACVE---
Governor's Award for Vocational Education in California.

The award, a plaque, was presented during a special meeting of 30 CACVE members in the Council Room of the Governor's Office. CACVE stands for California Advisory Council on Vocational Education.

"We in California are striving for equal educational opportunities for job preparation," said the governor, "and Congressman Bell's efforts at the federal government level have given us a magnificent example to follow."

Governor Reagan said there is a trend today toward the realization that a successful and meaningful life can be obtained without the requirement of a college degree. He said this is possible, in part, because of the growing availability of technical expertise being shown not only in vocational schools, but in public and private schools as well.

"It is my observation that the traditional philosophy of 'sheepskinitis,' without regard to availabilities in the job market, is less salable to the youth of today," the governor said. "Our educational system should provide salable skills for everyone, including those who desire to go into higher education. More and more of our youth are demanding their education be relevant. They want to be able to do something, as well as know something."

Bell, in his seventh Congressional term, is the ranking minority member of the General Subcommittee on Education and third-ranking minority member on the Education and Labor Committee.

During the Congressional debates in connection with the Vocational Education Act of 1963, Bell said a strong national program of vocational education was an important asset to the social and economic growth of the nation. He played a strong supportive role in the Vocational Education Amendments of 1968.

A native of Los Angeles, Bell is a member of a pioneer Southern California family which developed the communities of Bell, Santa Fe Springs and Bel Air. He received a degree in political science from Occidental College and served in the Army Air Corps during World War II.

The Congressman is married to actress Marian McCargo.

Governor Ronald Reagan tonight made the following remarks at the first presentation of the John and Alice Tyler Ecology Awards at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel:

"It gave me great pleasure one year ago to announce the establishment of the $5 million John and Alice Tyler Ecology Fund to be administered by Pepperdine University. Tonight all of us have been honored to watch three distinguished gentlemen walk to this podium and come away with a share of the first award. It was impossible to separate them in the selection process. Each has contributed so much to achieving the ecological balance necessary to preserve the wonders of this state, this country and the world.

"California's concern for environmental protection and preservation is not merely a reaction to the energy crisis facing us, but is a top priority on the state's agenda. Our response in California---and the response of our nation as well---to environmental problems is ongoing. While the so-called 'hippie culture' received most of the headlines and took credit for accepting ecology as its 'cause,' that was certainly not the case.

"Conservative thinkers believe in conservation at all levels, and that includes our natural resources. The spirit with which John and Alice Tyler planned the awards presented here tonight is the same pioneer spirit of free enterprise which will find the means to cope with all the challenges the future may bring.

reprints
"With gentlemen such as Dr. G. Evelyn Hutchinson, Dr. Arie Jan Haagen-Smit and Maurice Strong to lead the way, our challenges will be that much easier to overcome.

"To Dr. Hutchinson, who is from another state, and Mr. Strong, who is from another country, I would like to offer my special welcome to our Golden State and congratulations on receiving the award.

"To our own Dr. Haagen-Smit, my good friend for many years, I would say 'thank you' for his many contributions toward making California a great place to live."

Governor Ronald Reagan today sent to the legislature a message outlining a benefit package for state employees worth $45 million for 1974-75.

"This is the fulfillment of a pledge I made to you and to state employees last year that our administration would present a balanced program of employee benefits," Governor Reagan stated in his message to the legislature.

"The first-year program which I will propose for allotting the $45 million is focused on what state employees perceive as their highest priority need---increased take-home pay," he added.

The governor and the state Personnel Board are recommending that the state adopt a policy of considering prevailing practices in both salaries and benefits in setting employee compensation. In this total compensation method, salaries and benefits are surveyed separately for comparability with prevailing practice and are adjusted separately.

Members of the administration will first meet and confer on benefit proposals with interested employee organizations to develop enabling legislation. The employee organizations will also be presented the concepts for a longer range benefits program to be achieved. Subject areas that will be discussed with the employee representative include:

--Basic policy statement adopting total compensation as method of determining employee benefits.

--Increasing state share of medical insurance to 80 percent for employee and 50 percent for dependents.

--Reducing retirement contributions of miscellaneous members, also paying social security, from 12 to 10 percent of gross salary.

--Continue one-half of retirement allowance to survivors of miscellaneous members not covered by social security.

--Establish a fully-paid life insurance program to improve on present lump sum death benefit provided by PERS.

--Provide a one-time, catch-up adjustment in the allowance of employees retired prior to July 1, 1971 under the old 1/60th formula.

--Eliminate election day as a state holiday and place one holiday on a "floating" basis.

In addition, there are plans for benefit improvements for employees of both segments of higher education. Non-academic employees of the state University and College system are covered by the above proposals.

A task force has been formed to compare salaries for non-academic personnel at the University with comparable salaried civil service people. If the salaries are equal, the benefits should be equal.

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced the appointment of Sacramento housewife Patricia D. Ingoglia, and the reappointments of Dr. David A. Hubbard, Ph.D., of Pasadena, and Tony N. Sierra of Los Angeles, to the state Board of Education.

He is the author of numerous theological works and has taught throughout the United States and in Great Britain.

He holds degrees from Westmont College and St. Andrews University in Scotland. He is married and has one daughter. He has served on the board since March 7, 1972.

gas
Governor Ronald Reagan today issued the following statement:

"I know I won't be telling you something new or unusual when I say we haven't as much gasoline as we've been used to having in the past.

"But our situation here in California through the next few months is not an emergency. With a little care and consideration, we'll have enough for all our necessary driving.

"Everyone can have about 80 percent of the gasoline we had before the energy shortage. This means we each only have to hold down our driving by 20 percent.

"Eliminating some unnecessary errands, doubling up now and then, holding down speed should do it.

"There is no need for panic or panic buying with the long lines we've seen on television. May I suggest not buying until you have less than half a tank.

"We have a contingency plan but we'd rather not have to use it, and we won't, if we all just eliminate one mile out of five. There will be an adequate supply for everyone."

Governor Ronald Reagan today reluctantly accepted the resignation of Kenneth F. Hall, the state's chief deputy finance director.

Hall, 35, will be seeking the 34th Assembly District seat in the June primary having established residence in Palmdale, a community in northern Los Angeles County.

Hall joined the Reagan Administration at its inception and has served in three sub-cabinet-level positions during those seven years, including the last four as the governor's No. 2 fiscal advisor.

His resignation is effective March 8.

"A man of Ken Hall's caliber doesn't come along every day," said Governor Reagan. "He is a young man of exceptional ability and experience, and I wish him every success in the future.

"He has served this state as an outstanding negotiator and was a principal architect of the hallmark Senate Bill 90 two years ago, which gave us a new method of financing public schools, provided the state's homeowners with much-needed property tax relief and, for the first time, established property tax rate limits for all local government agencies."

Hall, according to the governor, also played a key role in formulating the Reagan welfare reform program and was instrumental in negotiations with the legislature last year on the governor's proposals for $400 million in income tax relief and a $300 million sales tax reduction.

On behalf of the governor and the state Department of Finance, Hall appeared before numerous Senate and Assembly committees.

Before becoming chief deputy finance director in 1970, he was deputy secretary of the Agriculture and Services Agency for two years and assistant cabinet secretary to the governor for one year.

Hall is a native Californian who graduated from Pasadena public schools before earning a bachelor's degree from the University of Redlands and a master's degree in political science from the University of Southern California.

He served the Antelope Valley as administrative assistant to Assemblyman Newton R. Russell (Republican-62nd District) for two years before joining the governor's staff in Sacramento.

Hall is married and has two daughters.

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced he has accepted with regret the resignation of Dwight M. Geduldig, director of the state's Employment Development Department.

Geduldig, who has headed the department since April 1, 1973, said he was resigning to assist Dr. Earl Brian in his campaign to win the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate. Brian is the former secretary of the Health and Welfare Agency, which includes the Employment Development Department.

"Dwight Geduldig has been a valuable member of this administration," Governor Reagan said, "and I want to publicly thank him for a job exceedingly well done."

The Employment Development Department was reorganized under Geduldig's direction to strengthen its function of placing people in jobs. During the first six months of the 1974 fiscal year, placements increased nearly 30 percent over the same period of the prior year. Non-subsidized jobs for welfare recipients jumped from 25,000 in 1972 to 39,000 in the first six months of this fiscal year.

Geduldig entered state service in 1963 as a public information officer with the former Department of Employment. He also served with the State Board of Equalization, and moved to the Department of Health Care Services in April, 1970, later becoming chief deputy director. He became HCS director on July 1, 1972. HCS is now part of the new Department of Health.

Born in St. Paul, Minnesota, Geduldig graduated from San Jose State College in 1949 with an A.B. degree in journalism and economics. He joined United Press International in San Francisco as a correspondent and was promoted to bureau manager in Spokane, Washington. He later was an editor with the San Jose News, San Francisco News, and the Santa Rosa Press Democrat.

Geduldig was an active member of the American Newspaper Guild, AFL-CIO, in San Jose. He served three years on the Guild's executive committee and was elected president of the San Jose Newspaper Guild in 1960.

Geduldig and his wife, Dorothy, have three children and reside in Carmichael. His resignation becomes effective March 1.

Governor Ronald Reagan today issued the following statement:

"Today I have instructed the state's Employment Development Department to step up its job-finding efforts to reduce unemployment caused by the energy crisis."

"Specifically, I have asked the department to do the following:

1) Increase its contacts with employers. 2) Use classified advertisements in newspapers as potential sources of job openings. 3) Intensify 'job development' efforts for exceptionally qualified job applicants. 4) Form a cadre of retired business executives to assist businesses in danger of failing.

"These steps will increase our sources of job leads and help employers find the workers they need.

"In 1970, 71 and 72 an average of more than 1,800 California businesses failed each year. A recent study found that 94 percent of the failures were caused by poor management. The average business in California employs 10 to 20 people, so these failures represent a loss of more than 20,000 jobs.

"There is a wealth of retired business executives in California. Their experience and abilities can be used to save some businesses from going under. We are going to organize this resource and offer their services as part-time consultants to reduce the number of business failures and the jobs they represent.

Chief

"I have with me Peter Rank, Deputy Director of the Employment Development Department. We'll be happy to answer your questions."

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced that he has vetoed the following bill:

SB 404 - Schrade Requires public agency contracts to provide for the assumption of the responsibility for the removal, relocation or protection of existing utilities if they are not identified in the plans and specifications. Contract documents must provide for compensation to the contractor when utilities are not so indicated in the plans and specifications. The bill also removes the requirement that subcontractors be listed by the prime contractor on public contracts involving street lighting or traffic signals.

REASON FOR VETO: "I have no objections to the provisions of SB 404 relating to the relocation of utility facilities. However, I believe that the amendment to the Subletting and Subcontracting Fair Practices Act eliminating the listing of subcontractors merits further legislative review.

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced in Los Angeles that he has directed Herbert Temple Jr., director of the Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, to immediately send the following telegram to the boards of supervisors in the state's 58 counties (please note that the governor's reference is to a "marketing system" as opposed to rationing).

Text of the telegram:

"Governor Reagan will entertain formal requests from county governments to proclaim a 'state of emergency' for that county in order to exercise his emergency powers under the provisions of the Emergency Services Act to establish a marketing system for more orderly consumer purchasing of gasoline at the retail level.

"Upon receipt of the formal request from the county, the governor will proclaim a 'state of emergency' implementing the plan generally outlined below.

"The plan will become effective March 1, 1974 and will consist of the following general provisions:

"(1) It will be mandatory;

"(2) It will be based on alternate days of the month and odd and even license plate numbers;

"(3) Gasoline will not be sold to vehicles whose fuel tanks are more than half full. The details of this plan will be provided tomorrow, February 26.

"It is requested that within 24 hours after receipt of this telegram the local counties will either:

"(1) Declare their local emergency and request proclamation of a 'state of emergency,' or;

"(2) Transmit to the director of the California Office of Emergency Services their decision not to declare a local emergency.

"It is planned that local state teams will be established to monitor the conduct of this program to include such functions as:

"(1) Provide assistance in resolving local government gasoline retail and consumer issues which can be resolved at the local level;

"(2) Identify problems related to the plan itself for transmission to the California Office of Emergency Services to identify and investigate distribution inequities within their counties;

"(3) Coordinate a program of voluntarily staggered business hours for retail service stations.

"It will be necessary that each county establish a control center to provide for this monitoring of the program.

"A telephone number for this control center should be announced and manned by competent persons to insure that citizens and the private businesses concerned have a continuous source of information and assistance. At the state level the emergency monitoring location will be the Office of Emergency Services."

Governor Ronald Reagan today made his last two appointments to the 12-member California Manpower Planning Council, which was established by 1973 legislation (AB 1103 and SB 601).

Joining the 10 members appointed by the governor January 9 are Samuel L. Barrett, 52-year-old state Director of Vocational Education, and Dr. Anthony J. Pitale, 31, associate director of the California Advisory Council on Vocational Education and Technical Training.

Barrett, a Sacramento Democrat, became vocational education director last August 22 after serving several months in the acting director capacity. As director, he also is an Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Barrett has been with the state Department of Education since 1960. The native of Beaumont (CA.) attended Riverside College and the University of California at Davis, earning bachelor's and master's degrees at the latter school.

He was in the U.S. Navy for three years during World War II. He and his wife, Kathleen, have three daughters and a son.

Dr. Pitale, who lives in Carmichael and declines to state a political party affiliation, has been in his present post one year. He had been a consultant in vocational education for the disadvantaged for the San Francisco Unified School District, an administrative intern with the state Department of Education and a research consultant for the National Advisory Council on Vocational Education in Washington, D.C., in the past.

He received his doctorate in vocational and career education from UCLA last June after having earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Temple University in Philadelphia.

He is married and has one child.

Manpower planning council members serve at the pleasure of the governor and receive their necessary expenses.

Governor Ronald Reagan today accepted with reluctance the resignation of State Corporations Commissioner Brian R. Van Camp, who said he would be leaving the $33,960 a year post on March 6 to run for Secretary of State.

"Brian's dedication to good government has been demonstrated very effectively over the past four years of my administration," Governor Reagan said. "While his fine administrative ability will be missed, I can understand his desire to seek an elective office."

Van Camp, 33, served as assistant secretary and acting secretary of the Business and Transportation Agency before becoming Commissioner of Corporations on August 2, 1971. At 30 he was the youngest person ever appointed to that post.

In a letter to the governor, Van Camp said he would become associated with one of Sacramento's oldest law firms, Diepenbrock, Wulff, Plant and Hannegan.

The Sacramento native has directed the 280 employees of the Department of Corporations which, besides granting permits to companies issuing securities and licensing stockbrokers and brokerage houses, regulates consumer finance companies, credit unions and escrow companies.

Van Camp is credited with taking the lead nationally in closing down the fraudulent "commodity option contract" scheme last year, which had cost investors upwards of $70 million in its few months of operation.

Before joining the Reagan administration, Van Camp was a deputy state attorney general and attorney for the Sacramento Redevelopment Agency. He graduated from the University of California at Berkeley, where he was student body president in 1962, and received his law degree from UC's Boalt Hall School of Law.

Last year, Van Camp was the "International Young Man of the Year" of the International Active 20-30 Club. He was the Sacramento Jaycees' outstanding young man in 1969.

He lives in Sacramento with his wife, Moni, and their daughters, Meg and Laurie.

MEMO TO THE PRESS

Governor Ronald Reagan will hold a press conference at 3 p.m. in room 1190 today (Wednesday, February 27) to announce the details of the fuel marketing plan. He will be accompanied by Herbert L. Temple, director of the state's Office of Emergency Services, and Wesley Bruer, executive secretary, of the Governor's Energy Planning Council.

Walthall

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced a mandatory marketing plan for the sale of gasoline in California counties requesting him to declare a state of emergency in their areas because of the problems caused by the shortage of fuel.

The plan goes into effect March 1 in those counties that will have requested it by 5 p.m. Thursday. (Counties that have made the request up to now will be announced at today's press conference.)

"I would like to emphasize that this plan is only a temporary measure," Governor Reagan said. "I am taking this action at the request of a number of local government officials and gasoline retailers.

"The plan is designed to eliminate the long lines waiting for service at gasoline stations and to protect the general public and station attendants.

"There has been some violence and disruption of traffic at scattered locations. I am hopeful that this marketing plan will alleviate the problems caused by the shortage of fuel for both drivers and station attendants."

The plan provides that service stations in the affected counties will sell gasoline on even numbered days of the month only to customers whose vehicle license plates end in even numbers. Customers whose license plates end in odd numbers could purchase gasoline only on odd numbered days of the month.

Personalized license plates that have no numbers will be considered as odd numbers under the plan.

The plan will be enforced by local law enforcement officials. Violations would be a misdemeanor upon conviction with a maximum fine of $500 or six months in jail, or both. Citations would be issued to violators.

Service stations will be required to clearly indicate their supply of gasoline either by a sign or flag. If the flag system is used, a green flag will indicate gasoline is available for the general public (according to their license plates); yellow flags will indicate that gasoline is available for emergency vehicles only, and red flags will show that the stations are out of gasoline or closed.

The plan permits individual retailers to set their own hours for business and the days of operation. However, they will be required to manage their monthly fuel allocations so they will last throughout the month.

Emergency vehicles, buses and vehicles used for commercial purposes are exempted from the plan. Vehicles with out-of-state license plates are also exempted from the alternate day ban, but not from the half tank provisions.

The plan urges all gasoline suppliers to refrain from establishing additional retail stations and not to reduce existing supplies to open any unnecessary new stations.

Governor Reagan offered the plan to the requesting counties under the authority of the California Emergency Services Act.

CALIFORNIA GASOLINE EMERGENCY
MANDATORY MARKETING PLAN

The following plan shall become effective at the times and in the counties designated by the Governor through emergency proclamations.

1. At the retail level, gasoline may be dispensed into vehicles with a license plate whose last (or only) digit is an odd number (1, 3, 5, 7 and 9) only on odd numbered days of the month, that is, on the first, third, fifth, seventh and so on. Environmental license plates that contain letters only will be equivalent to the digit 1. Examples of odd number plates are as follows:

SAM 123
123 SAM
MARTHA
KAM 2345
12345J
J12345

2. At the retail level, gasoline may be dispensed into vehicles with a license plate whose last (or only) digit is an even number (0, 2, 4, 6 and 8) only on even numbered days of the month, that is, on the second, fourth, sixth, eighth, tenth and so on. Examples of even number plates are as follows:

SAM 132
DAVE 2
2 MARY
KMA 3456
01234J
J01234
W6ABC

3. For any calendar month in which there are 31 days, sales may be made on the thirty-first day of the month without regard to the registration plates of the motor vehicle.
4. Gasoline shall not be sold to any vehicle that has more than one-half tankful of gasoline. When requested by the gasoline attendant, the customer shall permit inspection of the fuel gauge with the ignition key in the "on" position.

5. When dispensing gasoline to the general public, gasoline retailers shall not refuse to sell gasoline to anyone, on appropriate odd or even days, except to refuse to sell gasoline to vehicles with more than one-half a tankful of fuel.
6. Each service station shall clearly indicate its gasoline supply and service situation by a sign or flag, easily visible from off the premises. If the flag system is used, the following will apply: Green flag--gasoline available for the general public (on appropriate days for appropriate license plates); yellow flag--gasoline available for emergency vehicles only; red flag--out of gasoline and/or closed.
7. Individual retailers are the best judges of the business days and hours that satisfy their customers' needs; therefore, no general hours or days of operation are specified. However, each gasoline retailer shall clearly post his anticipated minimum business days and hours. Retailers in a common marketing area are encouraged to work out staggered hours of operation.
8. Each gasoline retailer shall manage his monthly fuel allocation so that it will last through the month. This may be done by adjustment of business hours and business days of the week, or by establishing maximum or minimum purchase volumes, or both. However, readjustments should be no more frequent than absolutely necessary.
9. The following vehicles are exempt from the provisions of these orders:
 - Emergency vehicles as defined in the State Vehicle Code, Division 1., Section 165 (copy attached).
 - Buses regularly used to transport passengers.
 - Vehicles used for commercial purposes in the judgment of the gasoline retailer.

Vehicles with out-of-state license plates are exempt from the alternate day ban on gasoline purchases but not from the one-half tank purchase provision.

Operators of exempt vehicles are urged to purchase gasoline only on appropriate alternate days whenever possible.
10. Storage of gasoline in separate containers in the trunk of automobiles or in homes or garages is an extremely dangerous practice. At the retail level, gasoline may be dispensed into separate containers only when necessary in the judgment of the gasoline retailer. Such sales shall be in the smallest practical quantity.
11. All gasoline suppliers are urged to refrain from establishing additional retail stations. Gasoline supplies available to existing stations should not be further reduced in order to supply unnecessary new stations.

12. Pursuant to the authority of Section 8665 of the Government Code, any violation of these orders or regulations is a misdemeanor and upon conviction, shall be punishable by a fine of not to exceed five hundred dollars ($500) or by imprisonment not to exceed six months or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SECTION 165, DIVISION 1., STATE VEHICLE CODE

165. An authorized emergency vehicle is:

- (a) Any publicly owned ambulance, lifeguard or lifesaving equipment or any privately owned ambulance used to respond to emergency calls and operated under a license issued by the Commissioner of the California Highway Patrol.
- (b) Any publicly owned vehicle operated by the following persons, agencies or organizations:

- (d) Any state-owned vehicle used in responding to emergency fire, rescue or communications calls and operated either by the Office of Emergency Services or by any public agency or industrial fire department to which the Office of Emergency Services has assigned such vehicle.
- (e) Any state-owned vehicle operated by a fish and game warden.
- (f) Any vehicle owned or operated by any department or agency of the United States government:
 - (1) When such department or agency is engaged primarily in law enforcement work and the vehicle is used in responding to emergency calls, or
 - (2) When such vehicle is used in responding to emergency fire, ambulance or lifesaving calls.

Governor Ronald Reagan today proposed that $250 million in general revenue sharing funds be transferred to the state School Fund for use in the 1974-75 fiscal year.

The money to carry out the proposal would come from two sources, $220,435,876 expected in general funds allocated for the current fiscal year (July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974) and $29,564,124 from revenue sharing funds appropriated during 1974-75.

A detailed account of the state's planned use of revenue sharing plans will appear in today's (February 28) Los Angeles Times. Publication of the plan, in addition to a subsequent actual use of funds report, is required by the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, which authorized revenue sharing.

Emergency Gasoline
Marketing Bulletin
No. 1

Governor Ronald Reagan has declared states of emergency in Alameda, Contra Costa, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Mateo and Solano counties due to gasoline marketing problems. Beginning at 12:01 a.m. Friday, motorists in these jurisdictions will only be able to purchase gasoline every other day of the week, dependent on the last digit of their license plates.

Friday, March 1, an odd day, gasoline stations may sell only to license plates ending in 1, 3, 5, 7, or 9. Saturday, March 2, an even day, just even numbered plates may buy: 0, 2, 4, 6, and 8. Sunday, the 3rd, is another day for odd numbers; Monday, the 4th, for even. Personalized plates without digits must purchase on odd days.

Vehicles with more than 1/2 tank of gasoline may not purchase fuel. When station attendants ask to see gas gauges, drivers are required to comply with their requests. Cars with out-of-state plates may buy any day, but are not exempt from the 1/2 tank provision.

Stations will clearly post their hours of business. ^{ALL} Many will use a flag ^{or sign} system. A station flying a green flag has gasoline available to the general public. A red flag means the station is closed, and a yellow flag indicates fuel is available for emergency vehicles.

As requested by the county boards of supervisors, the Governor has made this plan mandatory in affected counties. Violations are misdemeanors and are punishable by fines up to $500 or imprisonment not to exceed 6 months, or both.
