- AB 2212 - Chacon Chapter 47 Provides that a city by ordinance may designate the appeals board set up under the Community Redevelopment Law to hear appeals from public entities concerning relocation benefits allowed home owners under the Relocation Assistance Act. The bill exempts those state agencies which have an appeals board. It permits any person entitled to relocation assistance to appeal his eligibility for, or amount of, assistance to the public entity or to the appeals board set up under the Community Redevelopment Law. The bill also eliminates any compensation received for relocation from consideration in determining financial ability to support a relative who is on welfare. It eliminates from attachment by the county money received for relocation benefits, and for six months money received for the residence, of a relocated person who is on welfare.

Governor Ronald Reagan announced today he has signed the following bill:

SB 1340 - Moscone Chapter 48	Revises provisions of the Governmental Conflict of Interests Act relating to conflicts of interest and financial disclosure by certain public officials.
---------------------------------	--

Statement by Governor Reagan:

"I have today signed SB 1340, which amends the Governmental Conflict of Interests Act (Chapter 1166, Stat. 1973), but I feel the legislature has not fully met its responsibilities and that additional legislation is needed--at this session--to remedy a mediocre attempt to clarify the law.

"It has been the concern of many local, county and state officials that the Act's applicability and requirements in many areas were unclear. SB 1340 resolves some of those concerns. However, I share the Assembly Republican Caucus' concern that Senator Moscone has weakened the original Act to the detriment of the public's right to full disclosure.

"For example, Section 3625(a) of the original bill states... 'no official shall have economic interests which are in substantial conflict with the proper exercise of his official duties and powers.' This has been moved from the operative provisions of the Act to the intent language of SB 1340, an obvious weakening of the law. In addition, I believe the exemption of legislators and other full-time elected and appointed officials provided in SB 1340, and in the original Act, should be modified to insure that all outside sources of income be disclosed.

"I am asking the legislature to clear up the ambiguities in the law by approving legislation that will insure that the original intent of the Conflict of Interests Act is preserved.

"Accordingly, we will introduce legislation that would clarify and strengthen what I consider to be a vital protection of the public interest."

Governor Ronald Reagan today accepted with deep regret the resignation of A. Alan Hill, deputy secretary of the Agriculture and Services Agency.

Hill has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for the 9th Assembly District which includes Marin and Sonoma counties. His resignation was effective March 8.

"Al Hill has been one of the most hard working and dedicated members of this administration," Governor Reagan said.

"His counsel at cabinet meetings on the most complex and significant issues has been invaluable, especially in the area of conservation and ecology. His work as deputy director of the Department of Conservation was outstanding.

"I want to publicly acknowledge and personally thank Al for the contribution he has made to this administration."

Hill was named deputy secretary of the Agriculture and Services Agency in November of 1972. Prior to his appointment, he also served as an assistant to Secretary for Resources Norman B. Livermore, and was an alternate member of the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency Council and a member of the Bay Area Conservation and Development Agency.

He served four years as a state information officer for the Republican State Central Committee and previously was an assistant to former State Senator John F. McCarthy of Marin County.

Hill received his AB degree from the University of the Pacific and has done graduate work at the University of California and Golden Gate University.

He and wife Jeanette have three sons. They make their home in San Rafael.

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced that he has vetoed the following bill:

SB 968 - Roberti Requires governing boards of school districts which maintain health programs to employ only certified persons who hold health and development credentials or standard designated services credentials with specialization in health in such programs.

REASON FOR VETO: "SB 968 interferes with local control of schools in that it mandates a program which currently is permitted by law. School districts may already employ properly certified people for the work, and supervisors of health and physical development of pupils already are required to be credentialed; thus, the bill is unnecessary.

"A number of local and county school superintendents have requested that the bill be vetoed. In some rural areas there may be difficulty in finding properly credentialed personnel. Therefore, existing school health programs may have to be eliminated.

"Accordingly, I am returning the bill unsigned."

The following statement was delivered today by James Lake, director of the Washington office of the State of California, before the Federal Energy Office hearings in Washington, D.C., pertaining to the FEO's revocation of the state and local government exemption from crude oil price ceilings:

"The State of California thanks you for this opportunity to present its views on the recent action of the Federal Energy Office in revoking the state and local government exemption from crude oil price ceilings.

"I want to address a few remarks on the fiscal impact to California of the FEO action and then call on California State Controller Houston Flournoy, who is chairman of our State Lands Commission, to explain the restrictive effects on crude oil production this amendment has had.

Economic Impact on California

"Underneath the California tidelands exists a wealth of oil which belongs to all the people of our state. Under carefully devised legislation, this is being exploited in two forms: (1) oil and gas leases issued by the State Lands Commission in which the state receives a royalty percentage -- in money or in oil; and (2) the net profits contracts system in the Long Beach tidelands in which the state and the City of Long Beach share the profits of production with the operating oil companies.

"In simplified terms, under present leases and contracts, the state treasury is entitled to the value of roughly 135,000 barrels of oil each day.

"As everybody knows, the fair market price for domestic crude oil right now is $5 per barrel above the FEO-imposed ceiling price. In California, and particularly on its tidelands, where gravities generally are lower than in the mid-continent, this ceiling price is in the range of $4.25 and $4.75 per barrel. Thus, the fair market value of California crude, as shown by the exempt price, is currently over twice the ceiling price imposed by FEO.

"Applying this $5 per barrel differential to the daily production from which California receives payment, it amounts to approximately $650,000 per day or $230,000,000 per year.

"Stated more bluntly: the FEO action revoking the state's exemption is costing the people of the State of California $650,000 a day -- $230,000,000 a year.

"Another vice of the FEO action is its retroactive effect --- not only does California lose its exemption, but it loses it back to last October 25. This action alone wiped out over $55 million due the state treasury, and has put the state in the position of being required to pay back some money --- claims so far of $1.3 million.

California's Use of Tideland Oil Revenues

"Now the question has been asked, what would California do with all this money?

"First, the tidelands oil is a public asset, owned by the people of California. And this oil is a depleting asset. Once a barrel of oil is out of the ground it is gone for good. The people of California are entitled to receive fair market value for their oil. The FEO ceiling price order deprives the people of California of over half of that value, and at a time when California tidelands oil production has reached its peak. A federal rule which allows over half the value of oil to be kept by purchasers cannot be considered in the public interest.

"Secondly, since the creation of the State Lands Commission in 1938, the California Legislature has recognized that tidelands oil is a capital asset and has directed that oil revenue be devoted to public capital projects. Initially this was the acquisition of state park lands. In the late 1950s and the 1960s a large portion of this revenue was devoted to California's progressive Central Valley Water Project. Twenty-five million dollars of this revenue is still used annually for this purpose. The balance currently is devoted to capital outlay for California's university and college systems. The City of Long Beach's share of tideland oil has, of course, been used to help create a modern and thriving port.

"There have been suggestions that this new money be devoted to energy related uses, such as rapid transit facilities as urged by State Controller Houston I. Flournoy/ and the California Legislature. The state currently has this matter under serious study. You may be assured that this revenue derived from a scarce and valuable public asset will be used only for long-term and statewide public benefit.

"It has been suggested that to restrict California's oil revenue to ceiling prices would result in lower gasoline prices at the pump. This requires two assumptions, neither of which will hold up:

"First, that the California public-interest oil is a significant factor in the gasoline market. It is not. The 135,000 daily barrels of oil is virtually nothing against the nine million plus barrels per day of crude oil production in the United States, or the 17 million plus barrels of daily demand in this country, or the five million plus barrels of price from imported crude oil and products. At least 40 percent of all crude oil used in this country is not subject to price ceilings. California's share is miniscule.

"The second assumption is that any savings resulting from an artificially restricted price impound on California's crude oil will be passed on to the consumer at the pump. This is extremely doubtful.

"As the president said in his message on vetoing the Emergency Energy Act, rollbacks on crude oil prices would result in 'minimal, if any, reduction in gasoline prices.' If this system created by the FEO worked perfectly, perhaps that would be the result. It is known the system is not working perfectly, and the FEO does not have the staff to make it perfect. As a recent newspaper article pointed out, FEO has the use of 300 IRS agents to check on the 225,000 service stations in this country, and in checks on 20,000 of them, found 25 percent were overcharging. There is no way of checking on whether this roll-back on state crude oil prices would be passed through to the consumer at the pump. If you could guarantee that result, the state might reconsider its position. The state guarantees that the $230,000,000, if received by the State of California, would be expended for the public, the same people who are supposed to benefit by reduced prices.

Federal - State Relationships

"Last September Governor Reagan created in California an Energy Planning Council to cope with the energy crisis. This is the agency that handles state functions under the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973 enacted by Congress. The Energy Planning Council and its staff was directed to cooperate fully with its federal counterparts --- and they have. They have tried to work together so that we can all do a job that must be done.

"Despite this, California has seen the FEO divert its gasoline supplies to other states, saddle the state with an excessive share of military oil products demands, particularly when the military could produce its demand from Elk Hills, and now this --- cutting off its revenue. Actions such as this, which were taken without public notice and without public hearing, place an intolerable strain on our system of federalism.

"The State of California thinks an action of the federal government, which will have such an adverse effect on state government and will override well established state policy, deserves far greater consideration and public airing than was given in this case. Fair treatment for the 20 million people of the State of California requires that the FEO action of February 21, 1974 be immediately repealed and the state and local government exemption be restored.

"Thank you again for this chance to express California's great concern over the action taken by the Federal Energy Office."

Governor Ronald Reagan today ordered primary and special elections to fill vacancies in the 6th Congressional District and 24th State Senatorial District.

Primaries in both will be June 4, in conjunction with the statewide primary. Special elections, if necessary, will be July 2.

The vacancies occurred as a result of Congressman William S. Mailliard's resignation to accept an appointment as U.S. Ambassador to the Organization of American States and the resignation of State Senator Robert J. Lagomarsino following his election March 5 to the 13th Congressional District seat.

The 6th Congressional District, as presently constituted, includes the counties of San Francisco and Marin and a small portion of Sonoma County. Most of this will be changed to the 5th District in December because of reapportionment.

The 24th State Senatorial District presently includes all of Ventura and Santa Barbara counties. Reapportionment changes the seat to a new 18th District encompassing the western part of Ventura County and almost all of Santa Barbara County in December.

As a result, most candidates in both races will undoubtedly file for election on the same ballot to unexpired terms in the present districts and new terms in the new districts.

Governor Ronald Reagan today approved changes in the California Gasoline Emergency Mandatory Marketing Plan now operating in the counties of Los Angeles, Orange, Alameda, Contra Costa, Solano, San Mateo, Riverside, Santa Clara and Ventura.

The emergency proclamation was amended to take effect immediately.

The new rules were developed by the Energy Planning Council and the Office of Emergency Services as the result of the State Monitoring Program of the marketing plan. Representatives of the nine counties involved met in Sacramento yesterday, and recommended the changes (which are attached).

Major changes include providing exemptions from the odd/even plan for emergency vehicles to include "public or private vehicles used for protection of life, property, and public health," along with public transit vehicles, U.S. postal vehicles, and vehicles operated by the handicapped.

The amended regulations are attached. New sections are underlined.

REGULATIONS FOR CALIFORNIA'S GASOLINE EMERGENCY

In light of the state of emergency now existing in the counties of Los Angeles, Orange, Alameda, Contra Costa, Solano, San Mateo, Riverside, Santa Clara and Ventura, and pursuant to the authority vested in me to promulgate, issue and enforce rules, regulations and orders, I deem the following amended rules and regulations necessary for the protection of life and property:

1. At the retail level, gasoline may be dispensed into vehicles with a license plate whose last (or only) digit is an odd number (1, 3, 5, 7 and 9) only on odd numbered days of the month, that is, on the first, third, fifth, seventh and so on. Environmental license plates that contain letters only will be equivalent to the digit 1. Examples of odd number plates are as follows:

SAM 123
123 SAM
MARTEA
KAM 2345
12345J
J12345

2. At the retail level, gasoline may be dispensed into vehicles with a license plate whose last (or only) digit is an even number (0, 2, 4, 6 and 8) only on even numbered days of the month, that is, on the second, fourth, sixth, eighth, tenth and so on. Examples of even number plates are as follows:

SAM 132
DAVE 2
2 MARY
KMA 3456
01234J
J01234
W6ABC

3. For any calendar month in which there are 31 days, sales may be made on the thirty-first day of the month without regard to the registration plates of the motor vehicle.
4. Gasoline shall not be sold to any vehicle that has more than one-half tankful of gasoline. When requested by the gasoline attendant, the customer shall permit inspection of the fuel gauge with the ignition key in the "on" position.

Executive Department

State of California

5. When dispensing gasoline to the general public, gasoline retailers shall not refuse to sell gasoline to anyone, on appropriate odd or even days, except to refuse to sell gasoline to vehicles with more than one-half a tankful of fuel.
6. No general hours or days of operation are required by these regulations. However, each gasoline retailer shall clearly post by signs legible from off the premises his anticipated minimum business days and hours of operation for dispensing gasoline.

COMMENT:

Individual retailers are the best judges of the business days and hours that satisfy their customers' needs, and are encouraged to work out staggered hours of operation in common marketing areas. All gasoline suppliers are urged to refrain from establishing additional retail stations, and are urged not to reduce the gasoline supplies available to existing stations in order to supply unnecessary new stations.

7. Each gasoline retailer shall manage his monthly fuel allocation so that it will last through the month.

COMMENT:

The need for maximum and minimum purchase limits appears no longer necessary. Gasoline retailers are discouraged from establishing maximum or minimum purchase limits; however if limits are adopted the retailer should clearly indicate these limits by signs legible from off the premises.

8. Each service station shall clearly indicate its gasoline supply and service situation by a sign or flag, easily visible from off the premises. If the flag system is used, the following will apply: Green flag--gasoline available for the general public (on appropriate days for appropriate license plates); yellow flag--gasoline available for emergency vehicles only; red flag--out of gasoline and/or closed. If the sign system is used, it should state the following, or equivalent information: Gasoline available--emergency vehicles only--out of gasoline and/or closed.
9. The following vehicles are exempt from the provisions sections 1 and 2 of these orders:

Executive Department

State of California

- a) Emergency vehicles as defined in Section 165 of the California Vehicle Code.
- a) Public transportation vehicles regularly used to transport passengers which are buses, taxis and vehicles rented for less than 30 days.
- b) Buses regularly used to transport passengers, as defined in Section 233 of the California Vehicle Code.
- b) Vehicles used for commercial purposes in the judgment of the gasoline retailer (see attachment A).
- c) Vehicles used for commercial purposes in the judgment of the gasoline retailer.
- c) Vehicles with out-of-state license plates.
- d) U.S. Postal Service vehicles.
- e) Vehicles operated by handicapped persons, who have no practical alternative to auto transportation, as designated by the following license plate letters:

DPW 000 - 999	000 - 999 DPW
DPX 000 - 999	000 - 999 DPX
DPY 000 - 999	VET 000 - 999

000 - 999 DPW	VTR 000 - 999
000 - 999 DPX	000 - 999 VET

Vehicles with out-of-state license plates are exempt from the alternate day ban on gasoline purchases but not from the one-half tank purchase provision. Operators of the above exempt vehicles are urged to purchase gasoline only on appropriate alternate days whenever possible.

10. The following vehicles are exempt from the provisions of these orders:

- a) Emergency vehicles as defined in Section 165 of the California Vehicle Code (see attachment B).
- b) Other emergency repair and service vehicles, whether public or private, used for functions directly related to the protection of life, property or public health.

OES RELEASE #7353 (amended)

On behalf of the Energy Planning Council, the Office of Emergency Services announces the following clarifications of the Emergency Gasoline Marketing Plan.

1. Vehicles used for commercial purposes: These guidelines were issued today for use by retailers in determining whether a vehicle is used for commercial purposes.
  - A. Vehicles which by their design, size, or recognizable company identification are obviously being used for commercial purposes.
  - B. Vehicles which are owned and operated as part of a company vehicle fleet as may be determined by company marking or the vehicle's registration.
  - C. Individually owned vehicles used for commercial purposes, as evidenced by the presence of specialized equipment, instruments, tools of the trade or profession, supplies or other material which cannot be readily carried by the vehicle operator on public transportation, or any other evidence that it is necessary to use the vehicle for commercial purposes.
2. Doctors and Nurses: No blanket exemption is made for doctors and nurses. However, when they are using their vehicles for professional purposes (such as special calls) their vehicles should be considered as those being used for commercial purposes and when using their vehicles for emergency calls they should be considered emergency vehicles. Physicians and nurses are expected to do the same planning in fueling their vehicles for private use as are other citizens. In extreme emergency situations, they can call upon taxis, ambulances, or the local law enforcement agency,
3. Appointments: "Sales by appointment only constitute discrimination under Section 210.62 of the Federal Petroleum Allocation and Price Regulations, unless he (the retailer) conducted his business by appointment only prior to January 15, 1972 in so far as he continues his pre-existing practice."
4. FEO regulations also prohibit stations from selling exclusively to commercial vehicles.

Governor Ronald Reagan today said approximately 900 gasoline stations owned and operated by major oil companies in California will be open Sundays, beginning March 24.

At the same time, Governor Reagan said California motorists will still have to conserve gasoline because "the shortage is still acute and will continue for some time."

He urged all Californians to continue their efforts to reduce the use of their automobiles.

"The lifting of the embargo on the sale of crude oil to the United States by the Arab nations will eventually increase the supply of gasoline in California," the governor said. "However, it will be several weeks before the increased supply is felt in California and, even then, the supply will fall short of the demand."

He pointed out the oil companies' owned and operated stations will be open on Sundays only to alleviate some of the difficulties many people are having in obtaining gasoline. The extra day will be particularly helpful in those counties using the "odd/even marketing plan" by reducing the time some motorists must wait to purchase gasoline.

The firms which have notified the governor that they will open their company-owned and operated stations starting Sunday, and the number of stations, include: Standard, 235; Phillips, 200; Arco, 36; Gulf, 66; Douglas, 62; Mobil, 51; Shell, 81; Time, 40; Save Mor, 75; and Union, 5.

Officials at the Exxon Oil Company informed the governor they were in the process of evaluating each of their company-owned stations and that several would be open this Sunday. Texaco, which has no company operated stations in California, is encouraging its franchise dealers to open on Sundays.

In addition, the companies are working on schedules to have their individual stations open on a staggered-hour basis so more will be open throughout the day.

"I am extremely pleased at the oil companies' cooperation," Governor Reagan said. "Their response to our request that they open their stations on Sundays has been excellent."

"The 'Odd/Even Plan' is working and waiting lines at stations are being reduced in most cases and even eliminated. If motorists will continue to reduce the miles they normally drive and use their automobiles wisely, there will be enough gasoline for necessary trips," the governor concluded.

Governor Ronald Reagan today established a state Advisory Commission on Youth, and appointed Lieutenant Governor Ed Reinecke as its coordinator.

The commission, established by executive order, will be made up of 15 persons who are 25 years of age or younger.

"Since there has been increased greater involvement by youth in government in recent years to go along with their full voting responsibilities at 18, it is time the state utilized to the fullest extent their energy and abilities," Governor Reagan said. "This will also provide for their greater involvement in the decision-making process."

Members, the governor said, will be selected as closely as possible to represent the state's youth in geography, population, race and sex.

Nominations for appointment to the commission will be submitted to the governor by the League of California Cities, after consultation with the California Youth Coalition. Members will receive their necessary expenses.

Initial terms for the 15 members will be staggered, the governor said. Eight members will receive three-year terms and seven will get two-year appointments. Thereafter, two-year terms will be the rule.

Staff support for the commission will be provided by existing personnel of the state Office of Planning and Research. Coordination will be the responsibility of the Lieutenant Governor's office.

The commission will hold its first meeting in Sacramento, on a date as yet undecided. After that the commission will meet at least every two months in a location of their choosing.

Commissioners will be responsible for coordinating information on youth activities throughout the state, achieving greater youth involvement in all areas of government, advising the state's executive and legislative branches, conducting forums on areas of concern to youth in which governmental and non-governmental agencies and community organizations may be invited to participate, and studying all problems, activities and concerns of California youth.

The commission will encourage the formation of local youth commissions and councils, of which there exist more than 110 currently.

Governor Ronald Reagan announced today he has signed the following bill:

AB 1304 - Russell
Chapter 93

Allows California to join the Multistate Tax Commission as a regular member. California is presently an associate member of the commission.

STATEMENT:

"I realize this is an extremely controversial bill and that both sides have put forth convincing arguments for their points of view. However, I feel that by signing the bill into law, California will maintain its position of leadership in formulating interstate taxation policy and will continue to have the opportunity to protect its interests. In addition, this action will forestall preemption of this vital policy-making area by the federal government. I believe the states, who have a better understanding of their particular problems involving taxation, are in a better position to determine policy in taxing multi-state taxpayers."

Governor Ronald Reagan today announced that he has signed the following bills:

AB 14 -R. Johnson Chapter 95	Increases various fees of the Butte County Superior Court.
AB 1120 - Knox Chapter 92	Deletes the requirement that a surviving husband of a Public Employees' Retirement System member be dependent to receive certain survivor's benefits.
AB 1595 - Duffy Chapter 96	Requires the Board of Medical Examiners to prepare and issue, at least every two years, a report concerning specified information relative to persons licensed by the board.
AB 2546 - Seeley Chapter 97	Authorizes the Director of Food and Agriculture or county agricultural commissioners to prohibit the harvest of crops that carry spray residue in excess of permissible tolerances.
AB 2642 - Bannai Chapter 98	Increases the maximum amount a coroner can collect for embalming a body from $50 to $100. The bill also changes from $75 to $150 the maximum amount available for burial of a person to make embalming a county charge.
SB 1472 - Stiern Chapter 94	Extends the date by which documents relating to boundary changes of county water districts must be filed with government agencies for assessment and tax purposes during the 1974-75 fiscal year.

Governor Reagan also announced that he has vetoed the following bill:

AB 468 - Maddy	Extends to all school districts, rather than those with over 250 average daily attendance applicability of provisions regarding mandatory permanent tenure for certificated employees after three complete consecutive school years of service..

REASON FOR VETO: "This bill would require small school districts with less than 250 average daily attendance to grant permanent status to certificated employees who have served three consecutive school years, commencing with the 1974-75 school year. Current law permits such districts to grant permanent status to certificated employees.

"In most cases, small school districts have only one school, a few teachers, and no full-time administrative staff. They do not have the resources, for example, to cope with the intricate procedures involved in dismissing a tenured teacher. Since they can grant tenure to teachers if they desire, I know of no compelling reason for the state to impose this requirement.

"Accordingly, I am returning this bill unsigned."

Governor Ronald Reagan today appointed Richard N. Parslow, Jr., a staff attorney for Pacific Legal Foundation in Sacramento, to the Orange County Municipal Court bench in Santa Ana.

Parslow, a 39-year-old Republican, fills a vacancy created by the elevation of Judge James H. Walsworth to the Superior Court bench.

After nine years as a deputy district attorney in Orange County, Parslow last June joined the Pacific Legal Foundation, a non-profit, public interest law firm. Foundation officials said their primary purpose is to act as the voice of responsible citizens in matters involving major issues of public policy.

Because of his extensive background in welfare-related matters, Parslow has been assisting other states in welfare reform efforts paralleling California's successful program. His initial effort on behalf of the foundation came at the request of the Illinois Legislature and that state's Democratic Governor Dan Walker.

The early impact in Illinois was the discovery of 20,000 cases of inaccurate reporting of income by Aid for Dependent Children (AFDC) recipients on the welfare rolls, foundation officials said.

Foundation contracts are in effect currently with the states of Pennsylvania and South Dakota, officials said, and many other states have enlisted the foundation's help without contracts. Pennsylvania's legislature has passed through one house a major welfare reform act drafted by Parslow and the foundation.

Parslow is a recognized leader in striving to reach a solution to the state's absent father child support problem.

A native of South Gate, he received his bachelor's and law degrees from UCLA after having served 18 months in Korea as an Army enlisted man.

Parslow is married, has four daughters and will earn $34,605 annually as a judge.
