The move also followed an announcement this week by Somalia and Ethiopia, longtime adversaries, to restore diplomatic relations and withdraw troops from their border. Western diplomats said Ethiopia appeared to have agreed to ease tensions with its neighbor so as to redeploy thousands of soldiers.

arms moratorium came tonight in a Tass report about a message from the Afghan leader to the United Nations Secretary General, Javier Pérez de Cuéllar, on the status of the talks.

As reported by Tass, the message charged that the main obstacle to a peace agreement was a dispute with Pakistan over the frontier between the two countries. In contrast to earlier messages from the Afghan leader, this one made no mention of the disagreement over military supplies.

The border dispute is not considered a major obstacle in the peace talks, which include the Afghan regime and Pakistan as the representative of the guerrillas and are mediated by the United Nations. The United States and the Soviet Union are to act as guarantors of the accord.

Cabinet Approves Effort to Widen Trade With Soviet in 5 Categories

By CLYDE H. FARNSWORTH
Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, April 6 — On the eve of a visit to Moscow, Commerce Secretary C. William Verity Jr. has won Cabinet approval of an initiative to stimulate trade with the Soviet Union, Administration officials said today.

The plan calls for the United States and the Soviet Union, at meetings in Moscow next week, to form high-level working groups to spur exchanges in five areas — food processing, energy, construction equipment, medical products and the services sector, which includes such activities as insurance.

Mr. Verity won approval of his initiative after two months of Cabinet discussion. The Treasury and State Departments gave him strong support, one official said, and only the Pentagon voiced reservations, fearing that an improved Soviet economy would mean a stronger adversary.

With Frank C. Carlucci as Defense Secretary, the Pentagon has taken a more pragmatic stand on East-West trade issues than it did under its previous chief, Caspar W. Weinberger. He objected to selling almost anything to Moscow on the ground that this would enhance its military capability, his aides said.

Some agreements to establish joint ventures between American companies and the Soviet Union will be signed next week. Last year the United States and the Soviet Union had trade totaling $2 billion, down from $4.5 billion in 1978. Most of it consisted of sales of grain to the Russians.

Mr. Verity said in a recent interview that he hoped bilateral trade would Japan Is Denied Fishing in U.S.

President Reagan turned down a Japanese request to fish American waters because the Commerce Department has accused Japan of violating an international moratorium on commercial whaling.

Japan will be barred from allocations of fish until the "situation has been corrected," the Commerce Department said. Japan had already been denied any American fish this year because fisheries stocks were considered too low.

reach $5 billion to $10 billion annually.

Many analysts believe that, as trade increases, political pressure to eliminate American barriers to Soviet trade could increase as well. Washington levies higher tariffs on imports from the Soviet Union than on those from most other countries, and it bars Soviet buyers from receiving American trade and commodity credits.

Arrangements for the working groups are to be made next week when Mr. Verity and 500 American business executives meet in Moscow with Soviet officials, including the Soviet leader, Mikhail S. Gorbachev, American trade officials said.

Mr. Verity is going to Moscow as co-chairman of the Joint Commercial Commission, a body formed in 1973 that brings trade agencies of the two governments together. It will meet next week.

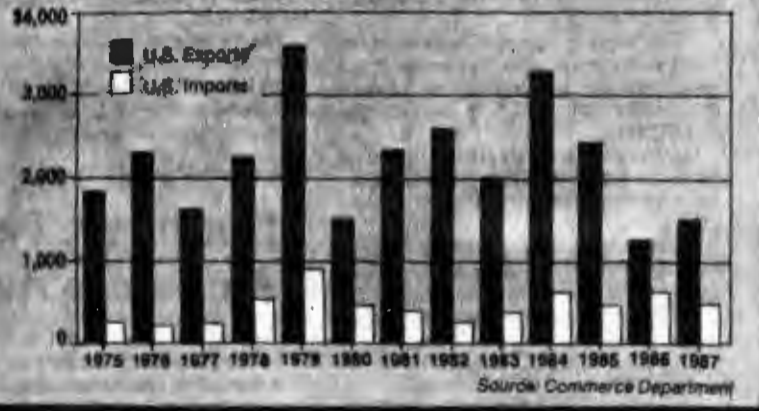

American officials are trying to keep next week's meetings low-keyed. One reason is that many business leaders are still wary of the reaction of stockholders, unions, human rights groups and others to full-fledged commercial relations with Moscow and want clearer signals of a thaw in political relations.

Strong critics of the Soviet Union have opposed the new initiative. "The formation of high-profile sectoral working groups is unwarranted, given the limited room for expanded trade and the constraints of our political relationship," said Roger W. Robinson Jr., a former senior director for international economic affairs at the National Security Council.

One dispute over the Verity trip involves who will accompany him from the Pentagon. Hard-liners want David G. Wigg, Deputy Assistant Secretary for policy analysis, the department's staunchest opponent of economic relaxation toward Moscow. Commerce aides are fighting to keep Mr. Wigg out of the group, an Administration official said.

Summit Conference to Follow

The meetings next week will come six weeks before President Reagan travels to Moscow for his fourth summit conference with Mr. Gorbachev. It will be the first trip to Moscow by an American President since Richard M. Nixon met with Leonid I. Brezhnev in 1974.

American business executives interested in trading with the Soviet Union would welcome clearer guidelines on what is acceptable. Many corporations lost money in the last decade when their Soviet investments, made during a period of détente in the Nixon and Ford Administrations, were hurt by a series of embargoes during the Carter Administration and early Reagan years.

Still, a few companies are going forward with joint ventures, some of which are to be signed next week. One is an operation between the Honeywell Inc. and a Soviet enterprise to make automation equipment for the Soviet chemical fertilizer industry, Honeywell executives said.

Other projects already announced are an operation by Combustion Engineering Inc. to develop automated control systems for oil refining and petrochemical plants and a project by the Occidental Petroleum Corporation, linked with Montedison and Enichem of Italy and Marubeni of Japan, to produce sulfur, polypropylene and polyethylene from oil and gas fields in the Caspian Sea.

Marketing Pizza in Moscow

Pizza parlors in Moscow and elsewhere are tentatively planned by other American entrepreneurs, including Pizza Huts, a division of PepsiCo Inc.

The talks in Moscow involve the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Economic Council, which consists of some American corporations and Soviet foreign trade enterprises. It was formed in 1973.

The Joint Commercial Commission, of which Mr. Verity is co-chairman, will also meet next week.

mean by joint ventures, how it's going to work and start the process and maybe start making some trade happen between our two countries."

Mr. Verity said, "Gorbachev feels that the only way they can make a world-class product is to have Germans or Japanese or Americans come in and bring management know-how and technology and help the Soviets make something, show how to put in the quality, the structure, the work force, the management."

He said the Russians "would like to join the market economy," adding: "They would like to be competitive. They cannot do it by themselves."

But Mr. Verity declared that there would be major economic benefits for the United States as well, especially with its huge trade deficit.

The Soviet Union chiefly exports energy and raw materials.

Last year the United States imported $470 million of goods from the Soviet Union and exported $1.5 billion worth. Three-quarters of the American exports were agricultural products and one-quarter were industrial items such as machinery.

Mr. Verity said: "The U.S. is going to have to get used to the idea that the Soviets are good trading partners. Right now we don't have that feeling. A lot of people feel it's a lousy idea. It's going to take time to prove that this is beneficial to both sides."

SUBJECT: U.S. - Soviet Space Cooperation Working Group Meeting

As stated in my May 4, 1987, memorandum to you on this subject, it is necessary that U.S. participants in the Joint U.S. - Soviet Working Groups work within an approved charter which establishes responsibilities, guidelines and objectives. After several interagency working group meetings which attempted to achieve consensus on terms of reference for this process, we are close to agreement. The attached revision, which establishes clear policy, accountability, and feedback mechanisms, should not require extensive senior-level involvement unless policy or procedural disputes cannot be resolved at lower levels.

Please provide your concurrence with this draft, or suggested changes, by June 26, 1987. NSC staff point of contact is Roger G. DeKok, 395-7350.

Interagency Procedures for US Participation in Space Science Cooperation With the Soviet Union

Introduction

This Terms of Reference establishes interagency procedures and mechanism for implementation of the Agreement Between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Concerning Cooperation in the Exploration and Use of Outer Space for Peaceful Purposes, signed in Moscow in April of 1987.

In requiring (Article 2) that Joint (US/Soviet) Working Groups be established for implementation of cooperation, the agreement specifies that "recommendations of the Joint Working Groups shall be subject to the approval of each Party in accordance with its appropriate national procedures" and that "designated cooperating agencies shall notify each other of the action taken by [each Party] on the recommendations within three months of their adoption by the Joint Working Groups." Procedures within the USG for implementing Article 2 of the agreement are as follows:

A. Review and Approval of Project Proposals

1. All proposals for cooperation with the Soviet Union in space science must be sponsored by a USG agency and will be submitted to NASA for processing in accordance with their designation as the lead implementing agency within the U.S. government.
2. NASA, with the assistance of the sponsoring agency, will prepare a full description of those projects it proposes to submit to Joint Working Groups. Each description will include sufficient technical and programmatic detail to permit an informed interagency evaluation and a statement of the proposed US position on the project for use at the Joint Working Group meeting. As a minimum, project descriptions will include evaluations of each of the attached considerations.
3. Descriptions will be simultaneously provided to the Committee on Exchanges (COMEX), any other interagency group the DCI may designate to address the considerations listed in the attachment, and to members of an NSC-established IG (Space) Working Group (IWG) with sufficient time for full review prior to the IWG meeting. The IWG, co-chaired by NASA and State, with membership from DOD, OSTP, OMB, the DCI and others as appropriate, will review¹ proposed project descriptions and COMEX evaluations¹ to ensure that each proposed project meets national security, foreign policy, and budgetary requirements. The IWG will report its findings to the NSC staff at least 15 days before the scheduled start of the Joint Working Group meeting. If any major issues remain unresolved, the NSC will chair a SIG (Space) Working Group (SWG) meeting no later than 10 days before the scheduled Joint Working Group meeting to resolve the issues identified by the IWG report.

4. The NSC will approve guidance prepared by the IWG for the US delegation to the Joint Working Groups. The SWG will exercise continuing oversight with respect to new project approval, policy decisions, and unresolved implementation or guidance issues.
5. Following each Joint Working Group meeting and prior to providing confirmation to the Soviet Union of the proceedings of Joint Working Groups, NASA will provide the agreed minutes and other relevant supporting documentation to the IWG and to COMEX¹ for the IWG's approval and/or guidance as to any conditions which should be placed on NASA's confirmation of the minutes to its Soviet counterpart. The IWG will report its conclusions through the NSC staff within 45 days of the end of each Joint Working Group for which confirmation is being considered. Open issues will be addressed through a SWG meeting no more than 15 days after the IWG's report is received by the designated NSC office.

B. US/Soviet Joint Working Group Composition and Functions

1. Joint Working Groups will: be composed of scientists and scientific administrators of the two sides in the relevant discipline areas; be co-chaired by the appropriate NASA management official (with an appropriate, mutually agreed role for NOAA in the field of earth sciences) and a Soviet counterpart; be the principal mechanism for detailed planning and monitoring of the agreed cooperative projects; make recommendations to sponsoring/participating government agencies for implementation.

¹and any other interagency review group the DCI may deem appropriate for review of the special considerations contained in specific project proposals

2. NASA will ensure US participation is by the most qualified specialists from government departments and agencies, industry and the academic community. Any agency may nominate a member for the US Joint Working Group. Selection of US delegates to Joint Working Groups will be made by NASA subject to oversight by the SWG.
3. The Joint Working Groups will seek appropriate ways to integrate near-term cooperative activities with future directions which cooperation may take, so as to develop a scientifically beneficial program of cooperation, and will provide recommendations to their agency principals as appropriate.
4. The U.S. delegations to Joint Working Groups will develop for NASA and sponsoring agency review and approval: specific project plans; schedules for joint activities; specific lists of data, publications and all other materials to be exchanged as part of cooperative activities; and detailed proposals for required personnel exchanges.
5. The Joint Working Groups will meet as mutually agreed and required. The agenda for each meeting will be agreed in advance. Lists of delegation members to each meeting will be exchanged in advance. The outcome of each meeting will be recorded in agreed minutes or other appropriate documentation, subject to confirmation according to paragraph 5 above. Between Joint Working Group (JWG) meetings, NASA will periodically report to IWG members the substance of all scientific contact between the JWG parties in implementing agreed projects.
6. The U.S. delegations to Joint Working Groups will report on the progress of each project. This feedback report will include statements regarding attainment of objectives, difficulties with project execution and evaluation of the benefits. Such reports will be included in agreed minutes as appropriate and/or as requested by the IWG.
