Dear Senator Baker:

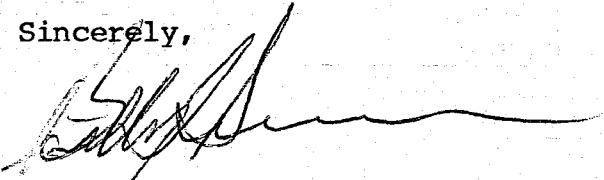

This is to add my voice of congratulations and encouragement to what I know must be an overwhelming and positive response to your acceptance of this awesome responsibility. Your steady hand and ability to move constructively and amicably through conflict and stress is widely recognized and sorely needed.

Confidently I assert that Tennesseans are proud of you and stand ready to provide whatever support is appropriate.

You will be pleased, I'm sure, to learn that Mayor Fulton opened an address to the Nashville Rotary Club on March 2 with a similar expression on behalf of himself and the citizens of Nashville.

Our hopes and prayers are with you.

Dear Chief of Staff Baker:

I am writing to reaffirm my support for President Reagan and to ask you to do all you can to support his policies and make his last two years in office as productive as his first six years.

Secondly I would like to express two of my concerns for our country. First of all, I would like to see all federal funding stopped to any organization that performs or advocates abortion. This slaughter of our unborn children is the most horrible civil rights violation ever. I do not want any of my tax dollars supporting abortion in any way. Please do all you can in support of changing this funding and to implement Title 10.

Secondly, I would like to applaud President Reagan and Attorney General Meese's actions in connection with prosecuting pornographers to the fullest extent of the existing laws. I agree with Attorney General Meese's actions and statement, "Current laws are being violated, and I am committed to redoubling the federal effort to ensure that those criminal elements who are trafficking in obscenity are pursued with a vengeance and prosecuted to the hilt." As a Californian, I am ashamed and deeply offended to know that the vast majority of pornography in our nation is produced in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Just this past week, however, I heard of a case being prosecuted in Los Angeles against five pornographers who "used" a fifteen year old girl in their smut. This is the first case I've heard of and I believe that the Attorney General's actions set up the more vigorous prosecution of pornographers. Please continue to press onward in this endeavor.

I have also heard that, although child pornography has been categorically illegal since 1983, it is still thriving in our country. Also, Holland is exporting child pornography to the United States. Isn't there something that can be done about this situation immediately? How can this type of exportation continue?

Please do all you can to support President Reagan. Thank you for your efforts.

Sincerely,

Peggy Doub

Dear Mr. Baker, Chief of Staff,

Since I was in the Washington D. C. area during this time I felt compelled to drop you a note to congratulate a fellow Tennessean on such a prestigious ~~position~~ appointment. I think that I speak for all Tennesseans regardless of political preference when I say "We're proud of you!"

I first "met" you (I know you do not remember me) when you came to speak at a convocation at Hiwassee College, Madisonville, Tennessee, some 16 years ago. We all knew then that someday you would aspire to greatness in the political world. Now I am a chemist and quality assurance professional at Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Oak Ridge, TN, and you are United States Chief of Staff. ~~I~~ I trust that each of us can give the glory we each attain in our professions to the God who gave us the honor of occupying His positions as he instructed us in

Dear Senator Baker,

Thanks so very much for coming to everyone's rescue - The President's Party's, and indeed, The Nation's.

I will proceed though to put away - for now, at least - my heavy overcoat and boots (and checkbook, too) which I was getting ready for New Hampshire

Dear Mr. Baker:

By way of introduction I am a professor of history at Morgan State University in Baltimore, Maryland. My niece, Robin Smith-Jurado, was a classmate of your daughter at Sidwell Friends School in Washington, D.C. Robin used often to mention you most positively. She graduated in 1974 from Sidwell Friends; in 1979 from Dartmouth College, my alma mater; and in 1983 from the Columbia University Law School. Subsequently, she relocated to Los Angeles, California, where she is now practising law. She married in December, 1985 Ray Jurado, who is a recent graduate of the University of California Law School (Los Angeles).

At this time the family would like to congratulate you on your recent appointment as Chief of Staff to President Ronald Reagan. We are confident that you will use your many talents to improve the image of the presidency and thus restore the Republic to its pre-eminent position which it has previously enjoyed.

Sincerely Yours,

Dear Mr. Baker:

I am a Democrat (though I have voted for Republican candidates when I felt they had a better answer), but I am also a concerned citizen who does not want to see this Administration embarrass and endanger us further. So, I welcome your re-appearance in Washington. I feel you have not only expertize but a sincere desire to see the Congress and the Executive work together for what are crucial objectives: getting the deficit down, beginning a series of arms control agreements with the Russians, (The truth is we are hurting as much as they are by tremendous expenditures on nuclear weapons) and putting more in the budget for low-cost housing, medical care and other important domestic needs. If it takes increased taxes, so be it. The few dollars the Reagan Administration has given me in the form of lowered taxes over the past 6 years has meant nothing to me.

I am enclosing a copy of a letter to the Editor of the Allentown Morning Call that was printed in February. With your predecessor out of the White House, I have real hope some of these changes will come about.

Dear Sir,

Please accept this note as an expression of congratulations and of gratitude for your acceptance of the position you now hold. One word aptly describes it:
Patriotism.

I've enclosed an article which appeared in today's Orlando, Fla Sentinel, which closely mirrors my own views, for your consideration!

Good Luck in your position. My friends and I are confident that you and President Reagan will get our country moving again on the right track.

Very Truly Yours
Tom Halleck

You can put Reagan back on track, Howard,

NEW YORK — An open letter to Howard H. Baker Jr.
Dear Howard,

Congratulations — or condolences, as the case may be.

The Washington wiseacres are convinced that your appointment as President Reagan's chief of staff is an appropriate burial place both for you and the Reagan presidency, but the suspicion in this corner is that there could be some surprises all around.

Everybody seems to be giving you political advice, which is the last thing you need. Like Richard Nixon in his selection of Gerald Ford, Reagan has turned in time of trouble to a veteran legislator universally regarded as a nice guy. You don't need me or anyone else to instruct you on how to get along with Congress.

But those who presume that you will serve merely as an affable caretaker for a burned-out president may well be under-

Louis Rukeyser

BEHIND THE SCENES

estimating you both. Let's not forget that, in the clearest economic confrontation in decades, Reagan in 1984 carried 49 states against a man who was advocating many of the policies that now are being urged on you by your pals in the capital.

If you're going to fool them, you'll have to move rapidly on an economic agenda that will get the Reagan presidency truly back on the track.

A few thoughts for starters:

■ Taxes. The issue that distinguished Reagan economically was his insistence that taxes be reduced. In fact, the promise was always greater than the performance. After the massive and massively helpful changes of 1981, there has been a succession of tax increases disguised by assorted euphemisms such as "revenue enhancement" and "tax reform."

But the overwhelming fact is that lowering taxes actually did increase investment, promote job creation and launch the country on a disinflationary expansion. That confuses academics and politicians who have taught for generations that Washington can spend the people's money better than the people can.

Some of those discredited theorists are howling now for a return to the bad medicine they have routinely prescribed in the past. Indeed, they suggest that "sensible" Howard Baker will support tax increases in 1987 "to reduce the deficit." Fool them, Howard, and help the rest of us: Instead of accommodating the perennial advocates of further government theft from the wage packet, get President Reagan back on the offensive on taxes.

and this is how to do it

■ Spending. Here's the real way to fight that deficit. Urge the president to follow his instincts by making proposals to reform Social Security, Medicare and welfare; streamline defense; and apply a hatchet to the federal bureaucracy.

Those who pooh-pooh such suggestions as politically unfeasible have Washington myopia; it was the advocacy of such significant change that put Reagan in the White House in the first place. Getting back on the attack could restore his image as a man who is a strong leader who knows his own mind.

■ Sense of purpose. Reflect the president's own unique skill for being genial with adversaries but firm on basic policy. The Reagan second term was adrift long before the president carelessly let underlings embark on a loony policy of using American weapons to bribe the gangsters of Tehran. The administration went astray when "non-ideological" staffers tried to preempt Congress in "populist silliness about the tax code.

The political wreckage of that policy of mindless accommodation is all around us. Wouldn't it be ironic if a return to Reagan basics on economics turned out to be brilliant politics, too? What a legacy that would be for you.

With unfashionable hope,
Louis Rukeyser
