You are way off the mark!

If it wasn't for the Secret Service, the President could very well be dead today. I have nothing but praise for their efforts in all of my dealings with them since 1968.

I am afraid it would be a little hard to tell the family of Agent Tim McCarthy there weren't any heros in the Secret Service on March 30th.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

April 14, 1981

Dear Debbie:

Thank you for your recent letter addressing the question of Title I funding in the federal budget. I assure you that President Reagan and his staff gave very careful consideration to each dollar that he requested in the federal budget over the next several years.

One of the themes that has motivated President Reagan's political career has been the desire to return political power and responsibility to local levels. He believes, and in electing him the American people endorsed the belief, that decisions made at the local level best reflect the concerns of those closest to the subject matter. Education policy is one of the areas in which President Reagan has been most fervent in his advocacy of a relaxation of federal regulations and an increase in local responsibility.

Under the budgetary reforms proposed by this Administration, Title I funding will be incorporated into the block grants going to states and local governments. Where Title I programs have been effective, we expect that local officials will be aware of this success, and continue them. Where such programs have failed, local people will have the discretion to make the changes that they believe appropriate.

Carolyn and the kids have settled in nicely. Let us know if you're ever in Washington.

Sincerely,

MEMORANDUM FOR: Michael Deaver

SUBJECT: Speaking Engagement for the President

I would like to second the invitation the President will be receiving from Mr. Oliver R. Rowe of Charlotte, North Carolina, to be the speaker at the "Citizenship and Patriotism" forum he is staging at the Charlotte Civic Center on June 5.

Oliver is "Mr. Charlotte" to me and the community he has served so generously with his time and money. It would be a natural audience for the President in a key area of the country, as well as on a theme which Ronald Reagan can deliver so well.

I believe Senator Helms and Elizabeth Dole will also be giving their unqualified endorsement to this invitation.

Thanks for considering this.

Sorry it has taken so long to get back to you. I am delighted you and John McKean got together. I am very high on him. I still have not called Charlie, but have it on my list.

We would love to have you and Carolyn and the children back here any time. Obviously, summer is miserable, but the fall is beautiful. Just let us know.

Warm regards,

Dear Loreli:

Thanks for your note. I am happy you are adjusting back to normal civilian life and that you are enjoying your family.

The last two weeks have been hectic, but everyone is settling down and the President is doing well.

I trust that you and Lyn are working some kind of arrangement out so you can continue to contribute.

Thanks again for your note.

Warm regards,

MICHAEL K. DEEVER
