Dear Mrs. Moore:

Upon the suggestion of Ms. Barbara Cook, you will find enclosed the contemplated wording for the Historical Card of the First Family, which the U.S. Capitol Historical Society plans to offer at its information Center in the U.S. Capitol. Ms. Cook indicated she had spoken with you about the card, and you could give us an approval of the wording. In design, the card would be similar to the enclosed card of President Reagan.

Your suggestions and approval will be appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mike,

Here's a little book I did in 1976 as sort of a personal bicentennial thing. They didn't break into the book stores to get it and I thought I'd celebrate the Yorktown Bicentennial by sending you a copy. The last chapter, headed Virginia and Yorktown, is pretty good and might help work you into the proper spirit for the occasion with our oldest ally, the French, on October 17 or so. The little note following on Travels and Sources will give you an idea of the fun our little family had doing it.

Yours,

FROM

EDWARD V. HICKEY, JR. EVH

I have this morning learned of the untimely death of Commander Bobby Baker's son, Robert (Bobby), last evening due to a car accident.

Bobby Baker is the Operations Officer for WHCA and has served in that capacity since July 1975. Bobby is an extremely fine officer and has been of utmost assistance to the President and White House staff. I feel that a letter of condolence from you and members of the staff would be most appreciated by he and his family. I have requested a letter of condolence from the President through Anne Higgins.

Commander and Mrs. Baker (Bobby and Patsy) reside at:

Dear Frank:

This is merely a note of deepest thanks for your kind offer of help concerning the State dinner entertainers who are to appear at the White House for visiting Heads of Government. You understand the requirements better than anyone and know that these performances at the White House are an important part of the total impression of these crucial visits. We feel very fortunate to have your talent and knowledge to guide us.

At present we have only two confirmed State dinners which have no entertainment. I know that you have discussed with Nancy the possibility of having Benny Goodman entertain for King Hussein of Jordan which would be fabulous for November 2nd. The other dinner will be for Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia on November 6th. As I am sure you can appreciate this is a very important occasion, but I understand that entertainment for the Prince must be scaled within his religious and ethical beliefs. We have to be careful about dancing girls and anything that can be construed as "suggestive". We welcome any suggestions, and have a few thoughts here which might interest you.

The coordination of the dinners is done through the White House Office of the Social Secretary. I would suggest that you call me when you have anything on Benny Goodman, and any thoughts you may have on King Fahd.

Dear Mr. Green:

Thank you for your two most recent letters. I appreciate the time you have taken to voice your opinions on some of the vital issues facing our Nation.

As you may know, the Social Security system is facing serious short-term and long-term financial difficulties. The decisions which are made to insure the integrity of Social Security will have a great and lasting effect on both those who are now dependent on their benefits and those who are contributing to the system. The consequences of any action affecting Social Security are too great to be left to the fickle winds of politics. President Reagan has therefore called upon the Majority Leader of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives to join him in naming a commission to develop measures to insure the soundness of the Social Security system and to protect the future of those dependent on it.

The current level of interest rates is an object of concern for every member of this Administration. The two major causes of high interest rates have been inflation and government borrowing. By reducing government expenditures and by maintaining a steady money supply, both the rate of inflation and the rate of government borrowing will be reduced. Only by limiting the level of competition between government and private borrowers can there be a permanent reduction in the level of interest rates.

The President firmly believes that by adhering to his policy of combined budget and tax reductions, regulatory reform, and steady monetary control, we will achieve a lessening of inflation and increased productivity throughout the economy.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Barton:

Thank you for your recent letter. I appreciate the interest which prompted you to write.

Throughout his political career, President Reagan has enunciated a clear and consistent philosophy of government, a philosophy which has formed the basis of his policies and programs as President. At the center of this philosophy is the belief that all human beings are entitled to the rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness and that our government was created to protect these rights.

In recent years the Federal government has grown beyond the sphere of its legitimate functions, interfering with the rights of the individual and overburdening working Americans through excessive taxation. Because of his abiding concern for the liberty to which every person in our society is entitled, the President has embarked upon a course of reducing the size and cost of government. Because of his faith in the dignity and intrinsic worth of the individual, the President has placed the defense of personal liberty as the primary goal of his domestic policy.

Similarly, out of respect for human dignity, President Reagan has long been an opponent of abortion. He believes that unborn children are entitled to the right to life guaranteed under our Constitution. To place a price on this most fundamental right would jeopardize all of those rights which we as a nation cherish. The President believes that his policies must be judged, not merely by their economic results, but on their effectiveness in expanding the sphere of liberty and increasing the respect for human dignity and human potential which is the basis of all true progress.

Dear Mr. Goldberg:

Thank you for your recent letter. I appreciate the interest which prompted you to write concerning actions taken by the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS has recently issued regulations restricting the tax-exempt status of mortgage revenue bonds. This action was taken pursuant to the Mortgage Subsidy Bond Act of 1980. Currently, the Administration is reviewing both the statute and the regulations which have been put forth. You can be sure that your comments will receive serious attention from the appropriate members of the Administration.

With regard to the article you enclosed with your follow-up letter, the IRS Ruling which limited the tax exempt status of agricultural development bonds has been withdrawn. A proposed regulation which makes the same substantive point as the IRS Ruling will be published on Monday, September 28, 1981. A hearing will be set in thirty days to decide whether this proposed regulation will become effective.
