Dear Mike:

Thank you for all your help in making the President's announcement of the Statue of Liberty - Ellis Island Centennial Commission at the White House such a success.

As a memento of the occasion and a token of our appreciation, we are enclosing a copy of one of Peter Max's prints of his Statue of Liberty paintings, which has been personalized for you by Peter.

We look forward to your continued support on this program.

Sincerely,

P.S. - The New York Announcement event last Saturday was equally colorful and successful.

THE WHITE HOUSE

May 18, 1982

On this day President Ronald W. Reagan and Secretary of the Interior James G. Watt announced the founding of the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Centennial Commission. Also present at the announcement was Lee A. Iacocca, newly appointed Chairman of the Commission.

The purpose of the Commission shall be:

- To restore and preserve the Statue of Liberty and the Ellis Island facility
- To create a lasting memorial to the brave people who came here from other lands to help build a great nation
- To plan the Centennial events which will help celebrate the historic occasion
- To assist in developing special programs to ensure the future of these historically significant sites.

The Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island have been a symbol of the spirit and meaning of liberty and democracy for the entire world for nearly one hundred years.

The Statue was conceived as a unifying point for the French people, who raised the initial money for the Statue, and presented her to the people of the United States of America on July 4, 1884. Americans then raised the funds required for her installation and she was dedicated by President Grover Cleveland on October 28, 1886.

Ellis Island was opened on January 1, 1892 and during the next 62 years over 17 million people entered the United States through the Island. Today nearly one-half of all Americans can trace their ancestry to family members whose first steps in America were onto the island.

Today, both the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island are in a serious state of deterioration.

Once again, Americans will be asked to answer the challenge to preserve and protect these treasured symbols of American freedom.

Presented here as a memento of this historic day is a poster reproduction of the Statue of Liberty, one of six versions painted by Peter Max, one of America's foremost artists.

The six original paintings, from which the posters were reproduced, were painted on the South Lawn of the White House on July 4, 1981. They are currently on view at the Knoxville World's Fair. Three of these have been sent to The White House especially for today's ceremonies.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

January 11, 1982

Dear Gil and Gretchen:

Thank you so much for remembering us at Christmas. I can't believe the size of your family. It seems like yesterday we were swilling champagne at your wedding reception.

Washington is wild but we are still hanging on at least until the end of 1982 and then its time to start anew. We see Berg and Carole back here occasionally. Let me know if you're coming our way so we can help.

Again, many thanks.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL K. DEEVER

Dear George and Liz:

Ah Miss Grace - how have we managed to survive two cold winters, not to mention the other seasons, in Washington without her glorious lemon cake. You were so thoughtful to think of us cast-aways. Thank you so much.

Carolyn joins me in wishing you and your family a most marvelous New Year 1983 filled with all sorts of good things, including Miss Grace cakes.

Dear Carolyn and John:

Thank you so much for the box of almonds and the beautiful Lalique figure. We had such fun this summer at the Lake, and the trout will remind us of all those good times we spent at the castle, all the times before and those to come.

Happy New Year.

Dear Charlotte and Dick:

Thank you so much for the case of Kiwis. They are a very welcome Vitamin-C packed addition to our grey landscape here in Washington, and will remind us of the wealth of good things and good friends we have in California.

Carolyn and I join in wishing you the best of 1983 and the hope that we will meet in San Francisco this spring.
