MEMORANDUM FOR MR. ROBERT C. MCFARLANE
THE WHITE HOUSE

SUBJECT: PARTICIPANTS IN SHEVARDNADZE MEETING

The Soviet Embassy gave the Department on September 18 a list of Soviet officials to accompany Foreign Minister Shevardnadze in his September 27 meeting and lunch with the President. An unofficial translation is attached (Tab 1).

Soviet Minister-Counselor Sokolov, who delivered the list, requested our corresponding list as soon as possible. The Department has forwarded to you a suggested list of U.S. participants in the meeting and the White House lunch (Tab 2). When this list is approved, we will inform the Soviet Embassy of the U.S. participants.

Proposed Presidential Toast for Lunch

Mr. Minister, honored guests, colleagues:

A Russian proverb says that he who goes quietly, goes farthest. During our official discussion we exchanged some quiet words of agreement, and some words that were not so quiet. But on the historical road we are travelling we must go together whether we agree with one another or not. There have been many cases in history where two great powers have had to deal with one another. But never before have two nations possessed the means to destroy one another and the world so completely. That is a simple fact, but it changes the world in which we live and in which our two countries interact.

A spirit of humility before these awesome facts of war and peace should guide us in our efforts. Mr. Minister, I know your job is to preserve and defend the interests of your country. That is my job as well. But it is our overriding and joint task to preserve the peace that has always existed between our two nations. We have exchanged views on many topics, but it is this most profound message that I intend to impart to you and to General Secretary Gorbachev when I meet him in November. I pledge myself to spare no efforts to that end of peace and I know that, with your help, we shall not fail.

Notional Press Statement

Today, September 27, 1985 President Reagan met for two hours with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in the Oval Office. Also present were Secretary of State George Shultz, National Security Advisor Robert McFarlane, Ambassador Nitze, Ambassador Hartman, Ambassador Ridgway and Ambassador Matlock. Attending on the Soviet side were First Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs Georgiy Korniyenko, Ambassador Anatoliy Dobrynin, Ambassador and Assistant to the Foreign Minister Chernyshov and Minister-Counselor of the Soviet Embassy Sokolov. Following the talks, the President hosted a lunch in honor of Foreign Minister Shevardnadze.

The discussions covered the full range of items on the U.S.-Soviet agenda. They were held in a serious, frank and constructive atmosphere. Both sides expressed their views, noting areas of agreement and disagreement. They acknowledged areas where the two countries could make progress now and in the meeting between the countries' leaders, President Reagan and General Secretary Gorbachev, in Geneva this November.
