PUBLIC DIPLOMACY THEMES

Themes

- Reykjavik meeting is not a signing ceremony or media event but a pre-summit planning session.
 - o no signed agreements expected or necessary;
 - o objective is to identify areas where progress is possible by accelerating negotiating efforts;
 - o Iceland meeting is to lay groundwork for Gorbachev's visit to the US, not a substitute for it.

- We will not sacrifice US interests in order to have a summit, or, to obtain agreements.

- Focus is to be on broad agenda essential to true peace and a more productive relationship, including human rights, arms reductions, regional issues and bilateral matters.

- US has positive proposals in each of these areas:
 - o Human Rights: to encourage respect for human rights and fulfillment of international commitments;
 - o Achieving Arms Reductions: to reduce , as a priority, offensive nuclear weapons and eventually eliminate them; to move toward a more secure world in which strategic defenses strengthen peace; to reduce the imbalance in conventional weapons and limit the risk of war by accident or miscalculation; and to ban chemical and biological weapons from the face of the earth;
 - o Ending Regional Conflicts: a three-pronged proposal (first made at UN in October '85) to end regional conflicts by negotiated settlements among the parties, withdrawal of foreign military intervention, and international economic and political support. Until Soviet policies change, our efforts to counter them must continue.
 - o Expanding Bilateral Contacts: to broaden and deepen contacts and cooperation between our peoples, especially young people.

- These are the objectives of all the American people;

- Unity at home, as well as allied unity and strength are essential to achievement of our objectives.
