THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTONINFORMATION

FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: WILLIAM P. CLARK *WPC*SUBJECT: Your Meeting with General Dozier
(Thursday, February 4 - 9:30 a.m.-9:45 a.m.)Issue/Event

Brief meeting Thursday morning, February 4 with General James L. Dozier and his wife Judith, accompanied by Italian Ambassador to the U.S. Rinaldo Petrignani.

Facts

General Dozier, back home following his release from Red Brigade terrorists, will have attended a prayer breakfast at the Washington Hilton immediately preceding his call on you (call scheduled for 9:30 a.m. and to end at 9:45 a.m.).

Discussion/Talking Points

- Reiterate your admiration for the General's bearing under conditions of dire stress;
- Praise Mrs. Dozier for her courage and support during her husband's ordeal;
- Note the constructive words of support he gave for Europe's role in NATO in his first public remarks following his liberation;
- Express special U.S. respect for, and gratitude to Italy for its superb achievement in the conduct of the liberation operation;
- Tell Dozier we also appreciate the gesture which Italian President Pertini extended in honoring him at a special luncheon in Rome;
- Ask the General if he has any special insights concerning his ordeal he would care to share.

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

February 4, 1982

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ON
PAPERWORK AND REGULATORY RELIEF FOR SMALL BUSINESS

Today President Reagan and Vice President Bush are releasing the Information Collection Budget for Fiscal Year 1982 and announcing a new list of Federal regulations and paperwork requirements to be reassessed by the Presidential Task Force on Regulatory Relief. Small businesses will benefit particularly from the paperwork reductions achieved by the Information Collection Budget process and the new regulatory and paperwork reviews. The President and Vice President are also directing the agencies to take maximum advantage of the Regulatory Flexibility Act to ensure that Federal regulations do not impose disproportionate burdens on small businesses.

The Information Collection Budget sets limits on the burden (measured in "burden hours") Federal agencies may impose on individuals, businesses, and state and local governments through reporting and recordkeeping requirements. Each year, the agencies and the Office of Management and Budget determine paperwork "budget cuts" achieved by streamlining or eliminating existing forms and recordkeeping requirements. This year's budget reduces Federal paperwork by nearly 200 million burden hours--a 13 percent reduction from the paperwork that existed when President Reagan took office. This is the equivalent of 95,000 work-years, and amounts to over one hour of saved time for every man and woman in the United States.

The new list of regulatory and paperwork reviews is the fourth in a series of Federal rules designated for in-depth agency review by the Presidential Task Force on Regulatory Relief. The three earlier lists, designated in 1981, included many requirements that imposed disproportionate burdens on small enterprises. The new list announced today is focused on additional small business issues--such as paperwork under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA), several credit reporting and disclosure laws, and small business export policies. Reduction in these and other regulatory burdens will permit small businesses to compete more effectively with larger firms, leading to lower costs to consumers, greater retirement security for employees, and other important benefits.

Attached are:

- o The Information Collection Budget for Fiscal Year 1982;
- o A Fact Sheet summarizing the Information Collection Budget (Attachment 1);
- o A Fact Sheet describing the 12 regulatory and paperwork issues designated for agency review under the auspices of the Task Force (Attachment 2); and
- o A Fact Sheet describing actions already taken by the Administration to reduce the burden of Federal rules on small businesses (Attachment 3).

OPENING STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT
PRESS BRIEFING ON INFORMATION COLLECTION BUDGET
FEBRUARY 4, 1982

An essential part of this Administration's program for economic recovery is revising or eliminating Federal regulations that place needless burdens on people, businesses, and State and local governments. As we strive to control taxing and spending, we must also cut back Government regulations that are anticompetitive, excessively stringent, or just plain unnecessary.

Federal regulations and paperwork impose a particularly heavy burden on the new businessman and the small businessman. Small firms don't have the luxury of large staffs to fill out Government forms -- and they can't afford high-powered Washington lobbyists. Large corporations also pay a high price for unneeded regulation; much of the burden takes the form of growing budgets for lawyers and accountants -- costs that are handed on to the consumer. But the men and women who run small businesses must shoulder these burdens directly. Often they are the only ones who know enough about their companies to complete all of the detailed Government forms, leaving that much less time to do what they do best -- managing their organizations and developing better products and services.

A vigorous small business sector is essential to a productive and competitive economy. For all of the talk in Washington about government creating new jobs, most of the new jobs actually created are in small private enterprises. Between 1969 and 1976, 82 percent of new jobs were in businesses employing 100 or fewer employees, and 66 percent were in companies with 20 or fewer employees. Currently 38 percent of our gross national product is produced by small business, and small business continues to be our most prolific source of innovation.

So, this Administration's regulatory relief program, headed by Vice President Bush, is paying special attention to regulations that come down hardest on small firms. In a moment, I will turn the lectern over to the Vice President, who will announce a new series of deregulatory initiatives focused on the concerns of small businesses. But first, I want to say a few words about the Information Collection Budget for Fiscal Year 1982, which is being released this morning.

The Information Collection Budget -- or "Paperwork Budget" -- sets limits on the burdens imposed on the private sector by Federal forms and recordkeeping requirements. Under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, most Federal forms and recordkeeping requirements must be approved by the Office of Management and Budget. One of the requirements for approval is a sound estimate of the total workload, measured in hours, the form will impose on all of the individuals who will have to fill it out -- an important step in realizing annual reductions in paperwork by streamlining or eliminating forms.

We've made some real progress. When I took office, Americans were spending over 1.5 billion hours each year filling out forms and records to satisfy Federal laws and regulations.

Think of it. That's a workload greater than the entire workforce of our automotive industries. We will be eliminating nearly 200 million hours of this wasteful burden by the end of the year -- a reduction of over 1 hour of costly paperwork for every man and woman in the United States. This means a savings of productive effort equal to that of 95,000 people working 40 hours a week for an entire year -- and, as the details in the budget illustrate, many of these savings come from reducing tax and regulatory forms that are unusually burdensome to small businesses.

These paperwork reductions are a good start, but they are only a start. The budget we are releasing this morning still does not document all of the Federal paperwork that must be identified and reduced. And, as you will see in a moment, many of the issues that are being designated for revision by my Task Force on Regulatory Relief are based upon complaints from small companies about unnecessary paperwork. So now, I'm going to turn over the proceedings to Vice President Bush to discuss these issues with you. Thank you.

MEETING WITH REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

DATE: February 4, 1982
LOCATION: Oval Office
TIME: 11:40 a.m. - 11:50 a.m.
FROM: ELIZABETH H. DOLE

- I. PURPOSE: To accept the "Report to the Nation" annual report and the Silver Buffalo Award.
- II. BACKGROUND: The "Report to the Nation" Ceremony has been an annual event since 1910. Every President since President Taft has invited the Boy Scouts of America to the White House to deliver their annual report. The report is required by Congress, since the Boy Scouts are chartered by Congress. The presentation occurs during the national anniversary celebration of the Boy Scouts.

The Silver Buffalo Award is the highest honor bestowed by the Boy Scouts to adult volunteer leaders for distinguished service to youth on a nationwide level.

III. PRESS PLAN: Press photo opportunity.

IV. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS:

- 11:40 a.m. The Scout group will join you in the Oval Office. Dr. Thomas MacAvoy will introduce you to Patrick Burnside who will present you with your registration card for the coming year.
- 11:42 a.m. Dr. MacAvoy will introduce Shawn Hart who will deliver the "Report to the Nation."
- 11:45 a.m. Dr. MacAvoy will introduce Chuck Wolf who will present you with the latest issue of the Norman Rockwell Scouting Plates.
- 11:46 a.m. Dr. MacAvoy will introduce Kevin Moll who will give you a scout walk stick and the newly revised edition of the Handbook for Scoutmasters.

11:48 a.m. You make brief remarks.

11:50 a.m. You thank your guests and they depart.

TALKING POINTS

- Thank you for the gifts, especially the Silver Buffalo Award. I am honored by your kind consideration.

- The Boy Scout movement is dedicated to high ideals. Its idealism becomes a reality when fine young men like you keep alive the spirit of self-help and dedication to others.

- As some of you may know, I relish my time in the hands of nature. Nature brings to man, peace and a feeling of belonging. I am grateful to you, in the name of all Americans, for your efforts at preserving our uncommonly beautiful land.

- Your 1982 theme "Save Our American Resources (SOAR) ... for the Better Life", reflects the essence of the scouting movement and its achievements.

MEETING WITH REVEREND ROBERT SCHULLER

DATE: February 4, 1982

LOCATION: Oval Office

TIME: 11:50 a.m.

FROM: Elizabeth H. Dole

I. PURPOSE

To greet the Reverend Bob Schuller of the Garden Grove Community Church of Garden Grove, California.

II. BACKGROUND

This brief meeting is in response to Reverend Schuller's request to meet you in the Oval Office. He is an ardent Republican and a very strong supporter of yours. This request was conveyed via Dennis Revell.

Reverend Schuller preaches every Sunday to nearly three thousand people in his glass-walled "Crystal Cathedral," a spectacular religious edifice. Some of his congregation is parked in cars outside. His sermon is broadcast under the title The Hour of Power to an estimated audience of three million nationwide. Reverend Schuller has been very successful in preaching to the unchurched by stressing the power of positive thinking.

TALKING POINTS FOR MEETING WITH REVEREND ROBERT SCHULLER

- I understand your weekly televised sermon, The Hour of Power, is one of our country's most successful national religious broadcasts, reaching over three million viewers.

- Elizabeth Dole tells me she recently appeared at your famous "Crystal Cathedral" and was very moved by your service.

- I support the "possibility thinking" message of your ministry, typified by one of your slogans, "Turn your scars into stars." I believe this approach is very appealing because it reaches out to people, especially the unchurched.

- Thank you for your support and prayers.
