MEETING WITH THE PRESIDENT'S ECONOMIC POLICY ADVISORY BOARD

May 20, 1982
11:30 a.m.
Roosevelt Room
(30 minutes)

From: Edwin L. Harper

I. PURPOSE

- A. To receive Board members' advice with respect to implementing your Economic Recovery Program.
- B. To review the current economic outlook and the reliability of signals that the current recession will end in the next several months.

II. BACKGROUND, PARTICIPANTS, AND PRESS PLAN

- A. Background: This is the sixth meeting of your Economic Policy Advisory Board. The Board last met on March 18, 1982. Last minute scheduling changes prevented you meeting with them on that date. This was the first time they had met and not had an opportunity to present their views directly to you.

Subsequently, Donald Regan and other administration officials briefed you on the meeting. A copy of the summary prepared from that meeting is attached.

The meeting will commence at 10:00 a.m. and will focus on:

- 1. The Economic Outlook and Financial Market Developments
- 2. The Budget Outlook

Following their discussion with you at 11:30 and lunch at Noon the group will reconvene to discuss international economic intelligence matters including the Latin American and Eastern European debt situations.

- B. Participants: George Shultz, Chairman
Martin Anderson
Arthur Burns
Peter Flanigan
Milton Friedman
Alan Greenspan

- C. Press Plan: Possible White House Press Corps Photo Opportunity.

III. Talking Points

- A. It is always a pleasure to meet with this group and to have the benefit of your advice.
- B. I regret very much that last minute scheduling difficulties made it impossible for me to attend your meeting on March 18. However, Don Regan and his colleagues provided me with a detailed review of your meeting and ideas.
- C. I know that you have already met for an hour and a half this morning and I trust that has produced the usual consensus that occurs when a group of economists get together for any extended period of time.
- D. There are two issues that I am particularly interested in hearing from you about:
 - 1. The first is your view of the recession and the current economic outlook. What concrete signs do you see with respect to the timing and strength of the recovery?
 - 2. The second is our current mix of fiscal and monetary policy and the economic effects we can anticipate if we are successful in getting our budget enacted.

BRIEFING PAPER FOR THE PRESIDENT

MEETING WITH THE CABINET

DATE: MAY 20, 1982

TIME: 12 NOON (60 MINUTES)

LOCATION: CABINET ROOM

FROM: CRAIG L. FULLER

I. PURPOSE/BACKGROUND

This is a scheduled meeting of the full Cabinet to discuss the following items:

1. EPA Annual Report -- Anne Gorsuch requested an opportunity to brief you on EPA accomplishments over the past year that she has served as the administrator. This will be brief.
2. Clean Water Act -- A decision is required concerning whether or not to advance an administration initiative regarding the Clean Water Act. A decision memorandum which has been reviewed in a working session of the Cabinet Council on Natural Resources and Environment is attached for your review.
3. OECD Ministerial Report -- Secretary Regan will lead a discussion reporting on the meetings attended by himself along with Secretary Baldrige and Bill Brock. Issues expected to be discussed at the Versailles Summit were considered at the OECD meeting.
4. Budget Update -- Recent events concerning the budget resolution debate will be presented by Ed Meese and Ken Duberstein.

II. PARTICIPANTS

This will be a principals only meeting since it is a working luncheon. A final participants list will be attached to the agenda.

III. PRESS PLAN

White House photographer only.

IV. SEQUENCE

Once the meeting is called to order, Anne Gorsuch will lead off.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: JAMES G. WATT, CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE
CABINET COUNCIL ON NATURAL RESOURCES AND ENVIRONMENT

ISSUE: What Amendments to the Clean Water Act should the Administration Propose?

BACKGROUND

Authorization for the Clean Water Act expires on September 30, 1982.

Changes for Title II, the Construction Grants Program, were signed into law on December 29, 1981. The remaining titles, for which the authorization expires this year, cover the Act's goals; enforcement, permitting and technology requirements for industrial discharges of pollutants into the nation's waters; and a permit program for the protection of the nation's wetlands.

Although authorization expires on September 30th, monies will nevertheless be appropriated to continue the current law. The Senate Environment and Public Works Committee will continue to hold hearings on this legislation, but the Committee may not report out a bill this year, given the limited number of legislative days remaining.

Cabinet Council Action

The Cabinet Council uniformly agreed to the following recommendations:

- o Reauthorize the Act for five years.
- o Extend the life of the municipal and industrial discharge permits from five to ten years. Municipalities and industries must presently renew their permits every five years.
- o Clarify certain enforcement provisions regarding criminal penalties and inspections.
- o Extend the Presidential exemption of federal facilities during a time of national emergency from one year to three years; expand facilities which can qualify to include new federal facilities and those which discharge toxics.

- o Exempt dams from requirements for discharge permits. A recent court case now forces EPA to regulate over two million dams by requiring discharge permits for their operation. Only a small number are actually believed to cause water quality problems.
- o Give the Administrator of EPA flexibility to reduce federal control over the industrial discharge of pollutants into municipal sewage treatment works by allowing her discretion to determine whether industrial treatment controls are necessary and by giving municipalities more authority to control discharges into their own treatment works if those municipalities are meeting Clean Water Act requirements.
- o Extend from 1984 to 1988 the deadline for industrial compliance with technological requirements for the removal of toxics. EPA has as of yet promulgated no regulations for these requirements. Thus, the 1984 deadline is virtually impossible to meet.
- o Leave unchanged, for the time being, the areas covered under the bill's wetlands protection program which covers "all waters of the United States," including marshes, bogs and swamps. Because efforts to narrow the program are highly controversial (the Senate Committee and Subcommittee Chairmen and Senate Majority Leader are opposed) and because the Administration has no clear proposal to limit the program, the Cabinet Council agreed to defer legislative change for the time being, while the Regulatory Relief Task Force reviews proposals to streamline the program administratively.

Waiver for Industry from Additional Control Requirements

The Cabinet Council gave special attention to the issue of allowing a case-by-case waiver for industry from further requirements to control toxics.

The Clean Water Act requires all industries which discharge toxic pollutants to apply special technological controls (Best Available Technology Economically Achievable) for the removal of those pollutants. Industries must apply these controls even though some of them have largely removed the toxic pollutants through less costly technology already required for the removal of non-toxics, and already in place. The law does not permit the Administrator to waive these requirements, regardless of whether an industry's discharges would have no negative effect on the quality of the receiving waters.

Last February, the Cabinet Council agreed to an EPA proposal to provide a case-by-case waiver from the requirements. The purpose of the waiver system was to ensure that regulatory burdens are imposed only where necessary and cost-effective. Thus, the Cabinet Council clearly endorsed the concept of avoiding "treatment for treatment's sake." At the April 22nd Cabinet Council meeting, EPA recommended dropping the waiver and limiting the reforms for this requirement to an extension of compliance deadlines. In EPA's view:

- o The Administration does not have sufficient evidence on which to base a need for a waiver, since no regulations requiring this technology are yet in place.
- o It is politically unsaleable. Key Senate Committee members oppose it and, although there is some sympathy for it on the House Committee, no one is willing to carry it. Overt relaxation of toxics control implied by a waiver amendment will generate further anti-environmental accusations against the Administration.
- o EPA has the discretion to determine the stringency of the technology standard by regulation.

The law provides the EPA Administrator the discretion to determine the level of additional controls required. The agency contends that when final regulations are established, the level of stringency will be less than industry presumes. Only the steel regulation is close to being proposed. However, using steel as an example, EPA estimates that this Administration's steel regulations will cost $300 million or less (this cost reflects other regulations as well) compared to the last Administration's proposal of $1.8 billion. Even though environmentalists may sue on the grounds that more stringent technologies are available, EPA maintains that the control levels it plans to propose will stand up in Court because the statutory standard is "Best Available Technology Economically Achievable."

On the other hand, should EPA lose court cases on many of these regulations, there will be no back-up to avoid unnecessary treatment. Most industry groups, particularly iron and steel, chemical manufacturers, American Petroleum Institute, and the Business Roundtable support a waiver, fearing that further control requirements could potentially pose enormous costs for an additional five to ten percent of removal. Moreover, state water pollution control agencies are seeking relaxations in several aspects of the current law greater than those which the Administration is proposing. These state agencies, in particular, are looking for flexibility in the BAT process through changes in the law.

Lastly, the environmentalists will criticize any relaxation of the Clean Water Act, as they already have, so the absence of a waiver will not prevent environmental opposition, although a waiver may generate more strident opposition.

Nevertheless, EPA firmly believes that since it has no evidence on which to base the need for a waiver, such a proposal will only engender acrimonious debate, and jeopardize other changes we are seeking in the current law.

Thus, the Cabinet Council agreed to defer to EPA's concerns, recognizing that if a future case can be made for a waiver during Congressional debate, the Administration will not oppose it, since a waiver from unnecessary controls comports with Administration philosophy. The Cabinet Council also agreed that if no waiver provision results from Congressional action, EPA should conduct a systematic cost/benefit analysis over the next three years to establish a basis for seeking a waiver or for eliminating the requirement altogether in the future.

1. Defer to EPA political concerns and propose no waiver.

REMARKS FOR AMERICAN RETAIL FEDERATION DROPBY
MAY 20, 1982

It is my privilege to welcome the merchants of America to the White House. You are the no-nonsense people who end every day by examining the bottom line. You understand the risks and rewards of investment. Incentive is a tool of your trade, and you get ahead by banking on your faith in the American people.

The wholesale and retail trade employs some 21 million Americans, producing more jobs than almost any other sector of our economy. And retail sales are expected to account for nearly a trillion dollars this year.

That's why it is inspiring for me to see you now. You have been steadfast in your support of our program for economic recovery, and we in this Administration understand that no plan can help our economy unless America's retailers are part of that plan.

While interest rates, as you well know, remain painfully high, and unemployment continues at hurtful and unacceptable levels, your industry may be beginning to inch us out of this recession. Last month retail sales rose by 1.4 percent -- a hopeful sign.

But you also know, as I do, that the shot in the arm our economy needs now is for responsible members of the Congress to pass a budget that brings down the deficit.

This Nation can no longer afford the big spending, big taxing policies that have held sway for the last 20 years. Deficit spending and strangling taxation created runaway inflation, sky-high interest rates and these unacceptable rates of unemployment.

I think we have finally gotten through to the big spenders. Most of them now say that deficits are bad. Unfortunately, they seem to think the American people caused the deficits by not paying enough taxes. Well, I've got another message for them from the heartland: we don't have a trillion dollar debt because we don't tax enough; we have a trillion dollar debt because Government spends too much.

We must not try to balance the budget on the back of the American taxpayer. Simply raising taxes will not do the trick. History proves it doesn't work. In the last 5 years taxes went up by more than 200 percent, and we still had the largest string of deficits in our history.

I have every hope that soon the Congress will pass a budget resolution consistent with the goals you and I embrace. I still believe there are responsible members of both parties who place more importance on the economic health of this Nation than on short term political gain. If together we can both hold down taxes and cut spending -- if we can finally get control of the budget monster -- then I believe a strong and lasting recovery cannot be far away.

I thank you for coming today, and for your help in our effort to return fiscal sanity to Washington. Your efforts have been key to our success so far. I will rely on you as both stalwarts of our economy and keepers of the faith as we meet the challenges still ahead. Thank you very much.

MEETING WITH AMBASSADOR JOHN LODGE

DATE: May 20, 1982
LOCATION: Oval Office
TIME: 3:45 pm (10 minutes)
FROM: Helene von Damm

I. PURPOSE

To tell Ambassador Lodge that you would like him to serve as Ambassador to Argentina where a senior diplomat with his expertise and background will be required to mend our fences. You hope that he is pleased inasmuch as he has made it clear to us that he is looking for a "challenge" and not retirement.

II. BACKGROUND

As you know, Ambassador Lodge has been very anxious to receive an Ambassadorial appointment practically from the day you took office. His feelings were deeply hurt as months passed and no one from Washington called him to duty. You will recall that you, Mike Deaver, Secretary Haig and I round tabled the matter last fall and concluded that I should tell him you have an assignment in mind for him come spring and to please be patient in the meantime. We had tentatively talked about Spain but with the continuing base negotiations going on, Secretary Haig does not recommend an Ambassadorial change there in the immediate future.
