MEETING WITH BIPARTISAN GROUP OF CONGRESSMEN

AND SENATORS

DATE: Friday, January 7, 1983 LOCATION: The Roosevelt Room TIME: 9:45 a.m. (15 minutes)

FROM: Kenneth M. Dubersteinfor

I. PURPOSE

To discuss the Drug Dependent Federal Offenders Act Amendment (H.R. 3963) before a decision is made on whether to sign or veto this legislation.

II. BACKGROUND

In the waning hours prior to adjournment, Congress passed H.R. 3963, a package of crime related measures dealing with drug offenders, justice assistance, anti-tampering provisions, career criminals, and creation of a new federal drug office. The Justice Department, as well as several other federal agencies, have serious objections to the legislation, particularly those provisions which would establish a new "drug czar" with control over all federal drug policy and operations. In addition, Justice is concerned that the bill does not include major crime reform sought by the Administration such as bail, sentencing and exclusionary rule reform.

The Senators and Congressmen in attendance at this meeting have a strong interest in seeing the legislation signed. They are all members of the House and Senate Judiciary Committees. Several of these members have been working with Ed Meese on this issue. Also, Congressman Sawyer, the ranking Subcommittee Republican on the House side, is sponsoring bail and sentencing reform legislation and feels he has a commitment from the Judiciary Committee Chairman to report this legislation by April, 1983. The Administration has been anxious for Congress to consider these bills, and Sawyer feels that the Chairman's commitment to take them up might be voided if H.R. 3963 is vetoed. All of these members will encourage you to sign the bill.

SUGGESTED TALKING POINTS

- --- Welcome Senators and Congressmen. Tell them you are glad to have this opportunity to discuss the Drug Dependent Federal Offenders Act.
- --- Acknowledge the fact that these members of Congress have a strong interest in this bill, and that you know they have worked hard to get it through the Congress. Tell them you are interested to hear their analysis of the legislation.

 (At this point, Senators and Congressmen will make their presentation.)
- --- Point out that as these Representatives know, the Administration has some problems with certain aspects of the bill, and ask Attorney General Smith to comment. You should also ask Secretary Regan if he has any comments to add.
- --- Conclude meeting by indicating that you will consider carefully all the discussion you have heard today before making your final decision with regard to this legislation.

(NOTE: Justice Department fact sheet outlining Administration objections attached for your information.)

I. The "Drug Czar" Provision of the Bill.

A. Major Objections to a "Drug Czar"

- -- The "drug czar" provision, unlike troubling provisions of other bills which have been approved, goes to the very heart of the Executive Branch and the manner in which it functions;
- -- It proposes a radical departure from our 200-year tradition of cabinet government by interposing a new "super cabinet official" between the President and the Attorney General and between the President and the Secretaries of State, Treasury, Defense, and Transportation;
- -- Particularly as to the Attorney General, the "drug czar" provision drastically and unavoidably undermines his position as the nation's chief law enforcement officer; and
- -- It undercuts rather than supports our recently announced drug task force program.

B. Suggested Resolutions of the "Drug Czar" Problem and Their Shortcomings

-- Despite the belief of some that the "drug czar" problem can be "handled" by nominating the Vice President or Attorney General to that post, such suggestions are untenable as they are patently inconsistent with the plain language of the bill and would thus expose either official to serious damage during the Senate confirmation process as such an appointment would correctly be viewed as a blatant circumvention of the intent of Congress;

- -- Experience in attempting to modify recently enacted laws leads us to believe that the "drug czar" provision, if approved, could not be quickly repealed; failure of a repeal effort would irrevocably lock us in to the "drug czar" system;
- -- All the various solutions for "handling" the "drug czar" problem unavoidably weaken the Office of the Attorney General or place the Attorney General in a "super cabinet level" position that he does not desire and feels is improper; and
- -- None of the suggested resolutions reduce the danger that such a "drug czar" poses to future Administrations.

C. Erroneous Claims that the Administration Acceded to the Drug Czar Through Silence

- -- We knew that the drug czar provision would be offered on the Senate Floor and filed a vigorous written objection thereto;
- -- Thereafter, no one in the Administration knew that this provision would be in the final compromise crime package;
- -- Whatever transpired, the entire "drug czar" incident is exceedingly unfortunate but is of such magnitude and of such fundamental importance to the workings of the Executive Branch that we cannot now simply accede to it out of concern that our objections were not sufficiently strident.

II. Career Criminal Provision.

- -- The provision prohibiting the Attorney General from initiating a prosecution of a career criminal without the approval of the pertinent State or local prosecutor is probably unconstitutional as a restraint upon the power of the Executive Branch to take care that the laws are faithfully executed; and
- -- This unprecedented attack upon the power of the Attorney General is particularly obnoxious appearing as it does immediately after the "drug czar" provision which also undermines the power of the Attorney General.

III. Conclusion

- -- There is no way that H.R. 3963 can be approved without seriously undermining the Administration's efforts to combat the drug menace in this country;
- -- It distorts the organization of the Executive Branch by undercutting the authority of several Cabinet members, including the Attorney General and the Secretaries of State, Defense, Treasury and Transportation and by ignoring the Cabinet Council system and undermining it;
- -- It duplicates many of the functions of the White House Office on Drug Abuse;
- -- It displaces the normal budget process by granting the Director authority over budget;
- -- It ignores coordination schemes put in place by the President relative to FBI-DEA cooperation and the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Program;

- -- The creation of a new layer of bureaucracy will require use of scarce resources and increase inefficiency; and
- -- It makes the "czar" "accountable to Congress" raising a constitutional question of separation of powers.

BILL SIGNING: NUCLEAR WASTE POLICY ACT OF 1982 FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1982

Welcome to the White House. The 97th Congress received its share of criticism for its performance during the lame duck session, but today we are signing a vital piece of legislation that made it over the final hurdles during those last frantic hours before adjournment — a tribute to the dedication of leaders like Senators McClure, Stafford, Simpson and Johnston; and Representatives Broyhill, Dingell and Udall. They provided the bipartisan muscle needed to push this bill through a frustrating legislative maze. I understand that almost a dozen congressional committees were involved in this legislation, but with bipartisan support and cooperation from industry, labor and environmental groups, we managed to get it through the process. It's a bill that is good for all these groups because it's good for America.

The Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, which I am signing today, provides the long overdue assurance that we now have a safe and effective solution to the nuclear waste problem. It is an important step in the pursuit of the peaceful uses of atomic energy, a program launched by President Eisenhower in his speech before the United Nations in 1954. The outlines of that program have changed with the years, but America's leadership in the use of the peaceful atom remains strong.

This Administration is committed to the use of nuclear energy as a crucial element in the enormous task of supplying America's energy needs. American industry has developed a strong technological base for the production of electricity from nuclear energy and we owe it to our people to make it possible to use this technology to better their lives. This act, the culmination of 25 years of legislative effort, clears a barrier that has stood in the way of the development of this vital energy resource. It allows the Federal Government to fulfill its responsibilities concerning nuclear waste in a timely and responsive manner.

On October 8, 1981, I announced several policy initiatives regarding nuclear energy. In April of last year, I requested legislation in the area of waste that encompasses the key elements of this bill:

- -- A system of fees paid by utilities so the full cost of nuclear waste disposal will be borne by the beneficiaries of nuclear power rather than the taxpayers as a whole;
- -- A method for State participation in the siting procedures, giving them a strong voice in the process and a means for resolving objections;
- -- A limited and temporary Federal storage program to assist utilities with grave near-term storage problems, thus preventing plant shutdowns over the next decade as utilities run out of on-site storage;
- -- A commitment to permanent geologic disposal as the ultimate solution to the waste problem;
- -- A study of monitored retrievable storage as an interim step toward permanent disposition; and

-- A clear distinction between the handling of civilian and defense wastes.

The step we are taking today should demonstrate to the public that the challenge of coping with nuclear waste can and will be met. There are, of course, problems associated with every form of energy, whether animal power, solar, fossil fuel or nuclear. But with resolve and the good sense to work together, as was demonstrated by the Congress on this issue, we can and will prevail over the sometimes complex and perplexing obstacles to our progress. This legislation represents a milestone for progress and the ability of our democratic system to resolve a sophisticated and divisive issue.

Enactment of this legislation is particularly appropriate now because it enhances the prospects of ample supplies of electricity at affordable prices for all Americans.

And with that, I will sign this bill.

WASHINGTON

MEETING WITH LEBANON PRIVATE SECTOR GROUPS

DATE:

Friday, January 7, 1983

LOCATION:

The Roosevelt Room

TIME:

1:45 p.m.

FROM:

WILLIAM P. CLARK WW

I. PURPOSE

To meet and congratulate the Lebanon Private Sector Groups.

II. BACKGROUND

Many private and voluntary groups, such as Save the Children and the American/Lebanon Private Sector Cooperation, Inc., are cooperating to contribute various forms of aid to Lebanon. This includes distribution of food, medical supplies, financial or similar contributions to help build Lebanon. The groups will receive active support by the U.S. Government but are expected to determine their own priorities and raise funds for their own programs. (See Tab A for a detailed breakdown of the purposes of each group.)

III. PARTICIPANTS

List attached at Tab B.

IV. PRESS PLAN

Photo opportunity.

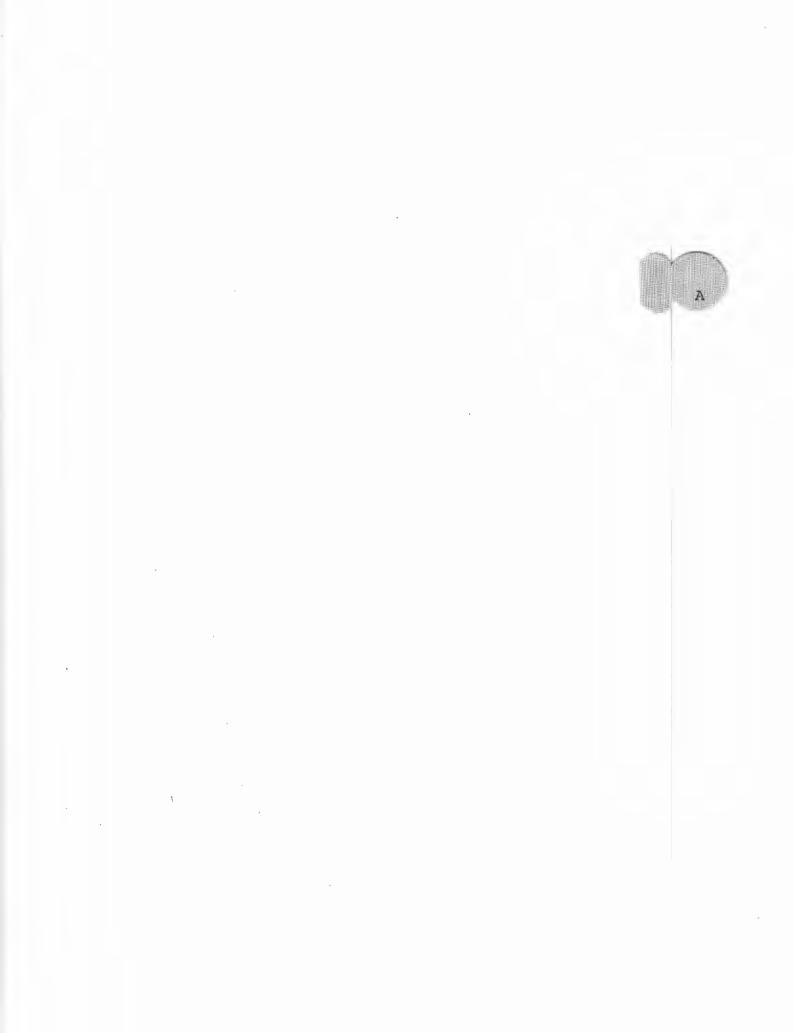

V. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

- o The group will assemble at 1:30 p.m. in the Roosevelt Room. Secretary Shultz, AID Administrator McPherson, Charge Younes, Jack Nugent, Lewis Preston, Morgan Williams, Michael Halbouty and Ralph Davidson will face the group. The Press will also assemble.
- o At 1:45 p.m. the President will join the group and deliver remarks (text at Tab C). The Lebanese Charge will then address the group with a message from President Gemayel. The President will leave following the Charge's remarks.
- O At 1:50 p.m. Secretary Shultz and Administrator McPherson will brief the group.

At 2:00 p.m., McPherson accompanied by Nugent, Preston, Williams and Davidson will proceed to the press briefing room to meet with reporters. 0

Attachments:

Tab A - Purposes of each Group
Tab B - List of Participants
Tab C - Suggested Text for the President

THE GROUP'S PURPOSES:

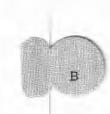

Voluntary Agencies: The private and voluntary groups, such as Save the Children, Catholic Relief Service, etc., which were already on the ground when fighting broke out, have substantially contributed to the relief effort in their dispersement of food, medical supplies, etc. At the request of AID these groups have formed a clearinghouse of information in the U.S. to funnel donations to those voluntary agencies in Lebanon.

American/Lebanon Private Sector Cooperation, Inc. (ALPSCI):
A newly formed organization composed of U.S. businessmen who plan to provide a rapid dispersal system for U.S. companies that want to give financial or in-kind contributions to rebuild Lebanon. It is ALPSCI's intent to form a counter-part group in Lebanon composed of Lebanese private businesses. All resources, including office space, are donated. John M. Nugent, Vice President, Timmons & Company, is the Chairman of the Board.

U.S. Business Commission on Lebanon: Formed at the suggestion of AID, this group is composed of CEO's of major U.S. companies. The group would determine potential for U.S. private sector participation in Lebanon. Lew Preston, CEO of J.P. Morgan and Company, is chairing this group.

Ralph Davidson, President of Time, Inc. orchestrated a one-time effort that raised over $1M from 27 U.S. companies for relief in Lebanon. Much of that money has already been dispersed through voluntary agencies and to the University of Beirut. No further involvement is planned.

OPERATIONS: All of the above named groups are cooperating with each other. All will receive active support by the U.S. Government but are expected to determine their own agenda, terms of reference, and much, if not all, of their own funding.

(SUGGESTED TEXT FOR PRESIDENT)

Good morning (afternoon). I'm happy to welcome you here today.

And I want to say how important your work is to the difficult task of rebuilding war-torn Lebanon.

As the people of Lebanon begin to rebuild their nation, the United States stands behind their efforts. Moreover, we are committed to helping restore the government's sovereignty throughout all of Lebanon. You here today represent organizations based on the selfless American tradition of helping friends in time of need. You also demonstrate your confidence in the resiliency of the Lebanese private sector and its ability to restore a strong Lebanese economy. And I agree that is a great source of progress and hope.

I'm pleased that we could bring you all here today. And before I go let me say that the spirit of volunteerism that your organizations reflect is a remarkable tribute to the altruism found in America.

I wish you every success.
