PRESENTATION OF GOLD LIFE-SAVING MEDAL

DATE:

JUNE 6, 1983

LOCATION:

Oval Office

TIME:

11:45 A.M.

DURATION:

15 minutes

FROM:

Craig L. Fuller

I. PURPOSE

To present the U.S. Coast Guard Gold Life Saving Medal posthumously to Mr. Arland D. Williams, Jr. for his acts of heroism in assisting in the rescue of five Air Florida crash victims. Award to be presented by the President to mother of Mr. Williams.

II. BACKGROUND

- On January 13, 1982, all of America looked on as heroic actions were taken to rescue the handful of survivors of the Air Florida crash into the icy Potomac River in Washington, D.C. One may recall the "unknown hero" who, time after time, passed the rescue line from the helicopter to his fellow survivors. A U.S. Coast Guard investigation has proved that Mr. Arland Williams, Jr. is in fact the "unknown hero".
- o Gold and Silver Lifesaving Medals are awarded for personal heroic daring in rescuing or endeavoring to rescue others from drowning, shipwreck, or other perils of the water. Only 607 Gold Medals have been awarded since 1874.
- o Gold Lifesaving Medals were presented to Martin L. Skutnik and Roger Olian and Silver Medals to Melvin Windsor and Donald W. Usher for their heroism in the Air Florida incident.
- o Mrs. Williams, in her letter to the President, stated, "I ask no honors (for my son) but I do ask that he be acknowledged as the hero and not known as the 'unknown hero'."
- O Congressman Daniel Crane introduced resolutions in both the 97th and 98th Congresses regarding the heroism of Mr. Williams, a native of Mattoon, Illinois.

III. PARTICIPANTS

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: PRESENTATION OF COAST GUARD

GOLD LIFESAVING MEDAL

POSTHUMOUSLY TO ARLAND WILLIAMS, JR.

MONDAY, JUNE 6, 1983

Today we honor Arland Williams, Jr. Many Americans are aware of his heroism, yet few of us knew his identity. Those of us who know of his bravery have remembered him only as the "Unknown Hero." We award this medal to his memory in the hope that it will provide the recognition he deserves.

It wasn't far from here, where on January 13, 1982, Air Florida flight 90 crashed into the Potomac shortly after take off. All of us were glued to our television sets, watching live coverage of an incredible rescue scene. In the freezing cold, we watched as a helicopter hovered over the crash site, dropping a line to those few survivors who huddled on the tail section of the plane.

There was heroism that day, but none so magnificent as the man who time and again passed the rescue line to other survivors, insuring their safety at great risk to his own life. He passed that line to others five times, and then when the helicopter went back for him, he was gone.

The scriptures tell us that one can have no greater love than to lay down his life for a friend. Arland Williams gave his life for all of us. His courage and decency in the midst of crisis live on to inspire all of us to live up to our ideals. The description in Time magazine said, "If the man in the water gave a lifeline to the people gasping for survival, he was likewise giving a lifeline to those who observed him."

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate his parents, Arland and Virginia Williams, for the job they did as parents. The values you taught your son held firm. No parents can be prouder than to know that their child had the courage and unselfishness to act as their son did on that tragic January afternoon.

And to his children, Arland and Leslie, you, too, have much of which to be proud. I know you miss your dad, but he has given all children something to look up to.

The Coast Guard Gold Lifesaving Medal we award Arland Williams, Jr. today is reserved for those who have demonstrated exceptional bravery in the rescue of others from drowning, shipwreck, or other perils of the water. Mrs. Williams, I hope you will accept it in your son's behalf: with it goes the admiration of all who respect courage and honor.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: NATIONAL SPELLING BEE JUNE 6, 1983

First let me welcome all you spellers to the White House and let me compliment you -- that's compliment with an "i", not complement with an "e" -- on your accomplishments. You are the 137 finalists out of 8 to 9 million students who participated in this national spelling bee. That is quite an honor and you should be very proud.

You know because of this event I learned that the study of spelling is called orthography. ORTHOGRAPHY. That's O-R-T-H-O-G-R-A-uh-P-uh-H-Y. I'm sure you already knew but I thought I'd give you that just in case they asked it on Wednesday.

All of us are proud, not only of your spelling ability but of your determination to increase your knowledge. I wish all American students were as interested in their studies as you. And I wish all teachers and parents took an interest in their children's educational development as your parents and teachers have taken in yours.

Now on Wednesday you're going to be feeling the pressure of the competition. But I want you to know that you're already winners in my book and in the hearts of your hometowns. So enjoy the competition and your trip to Washington.

I'm told you're on your way to a bar-b-que -- that sounds like fun -- so I don't want to hold you up, but, again, let me wish you all the best of luck on Wednesday. And remember "i" before "e" except after "c."

MEETING WITH DR. HISAHI SHINTO, President, Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Public Corp. (NTT) and Martin Feldstein (CEA)

FROM : Martin Feldstein

DATE: June 6, 1983

LOCATION: OVAL OFFICE

TIME : 3:45 p.m. (5 minutes)

I. PURPOSE

Photo Session with The President

II. BACKGROUND

Dr. Shinto is President of NTT. As part of "opening the Japanese market" to U.S. firms, Japan agreed to permit NTT to buy equipment from the United States. Until now, the United States sales have been very small. Prime Minister Nakasone said when he was here that he would look into this. Dr. Shinto does not speak fluent English.

Dr. Shinto is a good friend of Roy Pfautch, President Civic Service Incorporated.

V. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

Helpful background talking points attached.

TALKING POINTS

- -- We are pleased that NTT has purchased $40 million of U.S. equipment in the two years since the agreement.

  NOTE: Major U.S. sellers have been Motorola, IT&T, and AT&T.
- -- We hope to develop a larger share of NTT's $3.2 billion annual purchase of equipment on a strictly competitive basis.

NOTE: U.S. share now less than 1 percent. The U.S. has not proposed any specific target share.

- -- We are especially pleased about your recent memorandum of understanding with Secretary Baldrige that will facilitate improved exchange of technical information and a greater potential for U.S. sales in Japan.

  NOTE: Memorandum of understanding included the following points:
  - Trial exchange of technical information and personnel between the National Bureau of Standards and NTT.
  - NTT will send buying mission to U.S. for purchase of telecommunications softwear and telephone equipment.

- 3. U.S. companies will be invited to "inlab" symposia in Japan on NTT R&D activities.
- 4. NTT pledged an effort to simplify rules for the Japanese interconnect market and to serve as an honest broker for U.S. vendors in this market.

Additional Notes:

Shinto is expected to confirm that NTT will not discriminate in any way in favor of Japanese firms.

Baldridge regards the recent meeting as very favorable.

MEETING WITH BUSINESS-HIGHER EDUCATION FORUM LEADERS

MONDAY, JUNE 6, 1983 OVAL OFFICE JAY KEYWORTH Jay Myrront 3:50 p.m.

I. PURPOSE

> To acknowledge receipt of and discuss the Business-Higher Education Forum's report to the President on "America's Competitive Challenge."

BACKGROUND II.

The Business-Higher Education Forum, which consists of leading corporate and academic chief executives, has just completed a study of how the nation should respond to problems of industrial competitiveness. This project was encouraged by a Presidential letter in March 1982. The final report was transmitted to the President, with an endorsement by Jay Keyworth (copy attached) on May 16, 1983. The BHEF's major conclusions are strongly supportive of the Administration's approach to creating a climate in which the private sector can use its skills and resources to improve American industrial competitiveness.

III. PARTICIPANTS

The Task Force is led by Robert Anderson, CEO of Rockwell International, and David Saxon, President of the University of California. A complete list of attendees is attached.

IV. PRESS PLAN Photo pool coverage.

SEQUENCE OF EVENTS ٧.

Meeting scheduled for five minutes. Brief discussion with the President and photo opportunity (President and two Task Force leaders).

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM:

JAY KEYWORTH

SUBJECT:

"AMERICA'S COMPETITIVE CHALLENGE"

A REPORT FROM THE BUSINESS-HIGHER EDUCATION FORUM

by Keyworth

At the request of Bob Anderson and Dave Saxon, I am transmitting, with my endorsement, a report prepared for you by the Business-Higher Education Forum on the subject of U.S. industrial competitiveness. That group was strongly motivated by your encouragement, in a March 29, 1982, letter, and its leaders are looking forward to their scheduled meeting with you on May 26.

The central conclusion of this report is that Americans must recognize that our social and economic well-being depends critically on how well our industries can compete worldwide—and that all sectors of society have a mutual responsibility for assuring that ability. Although the report backs up its statement by listing a great many possible actions, it specifically warns against quick fixes and against "the twin pitfalls of protectionism and increased government intervention into private sector activities."

I consider this to be the most astute, and most substantive, private-sector analysis of competitiveness yet to emerge. Its appearance now is especially timely in light of the new President's Commission on Industrial Competitiveness, and we expect enthusiastic support for the Commission's work from Forum members.

In general, the report advocates coordinated efforts--by government, business, labor, and education--to build on our traditional industrial strengths. It stresses the need for:

- (1) Increased capital investment in production resources.
- (2) Better use of our research and development tools for technological innovation.
- (3) Assurance of an appropriately trained workforce.

These recommendations are remarkably consistent with Administration goals and practices. In fact, the role advocated for government is "to streamline its own processes and create an environment in which the individual and collective talents of the private sector can be focused to meet the competitive challenge."

The Forum readily acknowledges that its work is no more than a step in a long process—one that requires a national consensus for action. As a way to speed that consensus, the Forum recommends that you make a major public address on the need for and the ways to achieve better industrial competitiveness. They believe such a speech would spur our citizens and institutions to reassess many of the contradictory views that impede a coordinated effort. I concur.

Finally, I was struck in particular by one sentence in the report that seems to me to echo the philosophy we have been following ourselves in taking actions to strengthen U.S. industry:

"Our mandate must not be to punish or retard the competitive gains made by other nations, but to do a better job of competing ourselves."

The Business-Higher Education Forum is continuing its work on industrial competitiveness. If their on-going effort is as successful as this first part, they will be increasingly important allies in our programs to stimulate industrial growth.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: YOUNG ARTISTS IN PERFORMANCE AT THE WHITE HOUSE: ITZHAK PERLMAN, MARY MARTIN AND JACK RAITT

Thank you all. What a wonderful showcase of American talent this has been. It is said that a nation creates its music -- the composer only arranges it. Without taking anything away from the artists represented here, I think that's true. There's something very special about American music -- when you hear it, there's no mistaking it. It seems to burst with confidence, energy and imagination. It is the expression of a nation of free men and women bound only by the limits of their dreams.

You could hear that spirit in the lilt and lyrics of the songs tonight, and see it in the faces of the performers. That's why this young artists series is so important: America's youth is inspired by the great performers who have preceded them. They are challenged to contribute to and improve on our great cultural heritage.

On behalf of all the grateful audiences you have enchanted and those you someday will, I congratulate Itzhak Perlman, Mary Martin, Jack Raitt and our troupe of tomorrow's stars. Thank you very much.
