MEETING WITH NATIONAL LEADERS OF PRO-LIFE MOVEMENT

DATE:

January 23, 1984

LOCATION: Cabinet Room

TIME:

11:00 a.m.

FROM:

FAITH RYAN WHITTLESEY

I. PURPOSE

To reaffirm your support for the right to life.

BACKGROUND II.

It is now eleven years since the pro-abortion Roe v. Wade decision of the United States Supreme Court. All pro-life groups support the annual March for Life on or near the anniversary of the Roe v. Wade decision.

In 1982 you urged pro-life leaders to unite on a legislative strategy, which almost all of them did. You supported the 1982 Helms pro-life amendment to the debt ceiling bill; the Helms proposal was tabled by a margin of one vote. In 1983 you joined most of the pro-life groups in supporting the Hatch pro-life constitutional amendment, which failed by a vote of 49 to 50.

Since it appears this Congress is unlikely to pass any general prohibition of abortion, most legislative attention is on related measures regarding federal funding of abortion and abortion related activities.

There is some concern among pro-life leaders about the supposed retreat on the "baby Doe" regulations of Health and Human Services regarding infanticide, but most of these leaders know that the new regulations give real protections to handicapped infants.

Before you join this Cabinet Room meeting, the group will be addressed by Don Devine of the Office of Personnel Management, and Surgeon General Everett Koop.

V. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

11:00 a.m. You arrive in Cabinet room and move to your chair. You make brief remarks and conclude by asking to hear from the group.

11:10 a.m. You walk over in front of the Coolidge portrait and pose for individual photographs with guests, who will circle around the table.

11:15 a.m. You depart.

SUGGESTED TALKING POINTS FOR JANUARY 23, 1984 MEETING WITH PRO-LIFE LEADERS

- -- Thank you for joining me on the busy day of the March for Life. This annual event keeps national attention focused on the need for us to protect the right to life.
- -- As you know, I support any worthwhile measure to protect unborn children. Last year, I worked for Senator Hatch's proposed constitutional amendment, just as I had supported the Helm's bill the previous year. Unfortunately, we have not yet had success with a general solution to the tragic problem of abortion.
- -- I believe, however, that we must in many ways keep up the pressure, in Congress and elsewhere. I support the Hyde-Jepsen bill for a permanent cut-off of Federal funding of abortion, for instance.
- and Secretary Heckler have done an outstanding job in drafting final "baby Doe" regulations. Many people do not realize that, in the struggle over these regulations, the American Academy of Pediatricians and the National Association of Children's Hospitals have changed their official positions. Now they explicitly recognize the value of lives of all children, and they repudiate the idea that physical or mental handicaps justify making "value of life" decisions to end the life of a newborn child.

- -- Even though we are having such difficulty with members of the Congress on this issue, I think we should not be discouraged. One sure way eventually to overturn the Roe v. Wade decision is by improving the United States Supreme Court. I am sure you all have read Justice O'Connor's dissent in the Akron cases. Let's work to make sure the next several new Justices share our views.
- -- Finally, we should recognize the variety of ways to make progress for the right to life. None should be neglected. They are legislative, administrative, judicial, and, yes, electoral. And there is also the totally private sector dimension by which voluntary action by concerned Americans can help save individual lives and help individual mothers.
- -- Now, I'd like to hear from you.

TAPING SESSION

DATE: January 23, 1984

LOCATION: Diplomatic Reception Room

TIME: 4:30 PM

FROM: Jann Duval

I. PURPOSE

To tape a message from the President on firearm safety for the National Rifle Association Information Radio Series.

II. BACKGROUND

This address will reach approximately 32 million listeners nationwide before the end of the hunting season. Additionally, the tape will be broadcast on a revolving schedule through the end of 1984.

The NRA Information Radio Series is broadcast on 188 stations in it's entirety and 30 seconds of the tape on firearm safety will be broadcast on an additional 195 stations.

The series promotes firearm safety in the home ... heavily focused on children; responsible hunting practices, sports shooting, women in sports shooting and wild life management. Of the 26 million hunters in the United States, over 2 million are women.

PRESIDENTIAL TAPING: NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION FIREARM SAFETY MESSAGE MONDAY, JANUARY 23, 1984

Thank you. It's certainly a pleasure to have this opportunity to speak with you. I've always felt a special bond with members of the National Rifle Association having been one myself for a good many years.

Through your educational programs, your hunter and firearms safety training courses, the NRA has done an outstanding job to make gun ownership and the shooting sports safe and enjoyable activities.

On that note, I want to stress that firearms safety is, above all else, the most important concern of all gun owners. It is something to be practiced whether at home, while hunting, or on the target range.

Every gun should be treated as if it is loaded and always pointed in a safe direction. When not in use guns should be unloaded and locked up with the ammunition locked and stored separately.

Gun owners who have children around the house should make certain their firearms are kept out of reach. I certainly believe in educating and training children in firearms safety, but it should always be under careful adult supervision.

Education and training are the keys and, as I said before, the NRA should be congratulated for its work in this area.

I'd like to take a minute and mention another aspect of the NRA I think is important to recognize and which deserves all of our support . . . the selection and training of the U.S. shooting team which will represent the Nation in the upcoming Olympics.

This summer in Los Angeles, America hosts the 23rd Olympic Games and next to the track and field events, the shooting sports will draw more entries from throughout the world than any other sport.

The athletes who make up the U.S. shooting team stand a good chance of winning the gold medals in that highly competitive sport. These athletes -- and believe me, they are true athletes for they must train long and hard to get to the Olympics -- deserve recognition and our support. I'd like the entire U.S. shooting team to know that all Americans are behind them, and I know they will represent this Nation with pride.

Thank you and God bless you.

PRESIDENTIAL TAPING: LINCOLN DAY MESSAGE MONDAY, JANUARY 23, 1984

Ladies and gentlemen, I'm delighted to have this chance to speak to you.

Today Americans across the country have gathered to honor our first Republican President and perhaps the greatest leader in our Nation's history, Abraham Lincoln.

We all have our favorite stories about Mr. Lincoln -- how he grew up in a log cabin, how he walked a mile to return a few pennies, how he wrote the Gettysburg Address on the back of an envelope. My favorite is about a speech he gave during one of our Nation's darkest hours.

In February 1861, Mr. Lincoln made his way slowly eastward, from Springfield, Illinois, to Washington, to take the oath of office as President. He travelled through a country on the verge of civil war. On his way he made short speeches in city after city, attempting to calm the people.

On the 21st of February he reached Philadelphia. Before dawn on the 22nd he went to Independence Hall. A crowd was waiting, and he spoke.

He often asked himself, Mr. Lincoln said, what great principle or idea it was that had held the Union together. "It was not," he said, "the mere matter of the separation from the motherland . . ."

No, it was something more. "Something in the Declaration," they heard him say. "Something giving liberty not alone to the people of this country but hope to the world. It was that which gave promise that in due time the weights should be lifted from the shoulders of all men."

With those words, Abraham Lincoln gave voice to the American dream -- the dream of freedom and prosperity at home and for all who choose to follow our democratic example.

That dream is still precious to all Americans. But in recent years, we must remember, it seemed to grow dim.

Just 3 years ago, big taxing and spending had led to soaring interest rates and inflation. Our defenses had grown weak. In foreign affairs, American influence -- a force for peace in the world -- was shrinking. We stood by, seemingly helpless, as the Soviets amassed vast military power, then intimidated our allies, fueled regional conflicts, and propped up dictators around the world.

Just as during the Civil War Americans had to decide whether to preserve the Union, in 1980 we had to choose whether to continue our national decline or make a new beginning. The American people chose the path of courage, and our Administration was elected to make that new beginning.

We cut the growth of Government spending, pruned needless regulations, reduced personal income tax rates, and passed an historic reform called tax indexing. Never again must Government use inflation to profit at the people's expense.

Today, nearly 3 years after we set our economic policies in place, America is experiencing a vigorous economic recovery.

Inflation has plummeted by three-quarters to about 3 percent during the past year -- the lowest rate in more than a decade-and-a-half. The prime rate is barely half what it was when we took office. Factory orders, retail sales, and housing starts are up; the stock market has come back to life; and the American worker's real wages are rising.

Unemployment is dropping at the fastest rate in more than 30 years. Last year alone, more than 4 million Americans found jobs; and more people are working than ever before in our history.

In our Armed Forces, morale has soared. The percentage of new recruits with high school diplomas has risen sharply and, since 1980, the re-enlistment rate has gone up almost a quarter. Once again America is giving our men and women in uniform good pay, good equipment, and the respect they deserve.

In foreign policy, we've let the world know that America stands for the political, religious, and economic freedom of mankind.

In Grenada, we set a nation free. From Central America to Africa to the Middle East, we're working to support democracy and promote peace. In Europe, the NATO Alliance has held firm. And in our dealings with the Soviets, by strenghthening our defenses and showing the world our willingness to negotiate, we've laid the foundation for a lasting world peace.

We in the party of Lincoln still have much to do -- wringing out more waste and fraud in Government, putting more Americans back to work, attacking the Federal deficit, getting inflation and interest rates down still further -- these and other great labors lie before us. Today, let us rededicate ourselves to our great task. In Mr. Lincoln's words, "With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in . . ."

Thank you, and God bless you.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: OPENING OF THE NATIONAL THEATRE MONDAY, JANUARY 23, 1984

Thank you for that warm reception. I know I speak for Nancy when I say this has been an evening of thrills from the moment we walked through the theatre doors. The show we've just seen is one of those big, bright Broadway productions that starts on a peak and goes up. And before I say anything else, I want to thank the very talented "42nd Street" cast. By the way, I can't help thinking that if I'd been able to dance and sing like that, my career might have taken a different turn.

The National Theatre opened on this site in 1835. Americans perched on the roof and peered through the windows of this building to watch the horseback inaugural parades of McKinley and Teddy Roosevelt. They saw the face of the National when they watched newsreels of the inaugural parades of Wilson, Coolidge, and FDR -- parades that took place when American admirals still wore cockade hats. And through all those years, the National was staging productions that entertained and delighted the people of this city.

In recent years, though, the National fell on hard times. Some even talked of tearing her down. Then, a year-and-a-half ago, an army of designers, electricians, and carpenters went to work to save it. They cleaned the exterior, refurbished the interior, installed new lighting and sound systems, and added a whole new building four stories high for dressing rooms and storage. And they did it all without a penny of Government money. Today we're among the lucky first to enjoy the results. Special thanks go to John Adams, the Chairman of the National Theatre, and to Carol Laxalt and Betty Wright, the Co-Chairwomen of tonight's gala. But I know we want to applaud everyone who had a hand in this wonderful restoration.

With this re-opening, downtown Washington has a spendid theatre and a living link with the past. Speaking as one who lives in the neighborhood, we're all delighted.

And one more thing: Now that the National has reopened, even those of us in Washington will be able to hear the lullaby of Broadway. ["The Lullaby of Broadway" is the show-stopping musical number in "42nd Street."]

Thank you, and God bless you all.
