MRS. REAGAN: CABINET WIVES LUNCHEON
JANUARY 20, 1982

-- First let me say welcome to the annual luncheon of the Cabinet Wives Auxiliary Post 24. I've been anxious for some time to tell you how much I've appreciated your friendship and support over the past year -- not to mention the support your husbands have given mine.

-- I can't tell you how happy I am our husbands work as a team. President Jackson went through four Secretaries of State, five Secretaries of Treasury, three Secretaries of War, three Secretaries of the Navy, three Attorneys General, and two Postmasters General, in search of a compatible group. And President Monroe was once so upset with his Secretary of Treasury, he is reported to have driven him out of the White House waving a pair of fire tongs.

-- But it has been quite a year and we all have learned a lot. For example, I learned that when a reporter asks what I'm wearing I should just say, "What, this old thing?"

-- I didn't want this lunch to be merely a tea and tulips event so I invited a special guest, Ambassador Kirkpatrick. I hope you had a chance to talk with her about her vigorous role at the U.N. And, of course, I want to thank her for coming.

-- And, again, let me thank you for your encouragement and help. I look forward to us becoming even closer in the year ahead.
