Dear Lucia:

It was good talking with you this morning and I'm following up on our conversation by asking you to help me. If obtainable, could you send me a position paper or standard letter that the Office of the President sends out when citizens write in expressing concern over the Council of Foreign Relations and Trilateral Commission. In addition, I need the same relative to the Reagan position on human rights as a mainstay of our foreign policy. That would really help us in drafting an appropriate reply to the letters we get in. Thanks again and I'll look forward to seeing you soon.

Sincerely,

President Reagan
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

The enclosed clipping headlined "REAGAN INVETERATE READER" from our overseas Stars and Stripes newspaper had a special appeal to me as Reading Teacher in the Department of Defense elementary school in Giessen, Germany.

Reading of your walking, as a boy, ten miles to the nearest library is a very challenging example to some of the reluctant readers who are sent to me to help them read.

As a footnote, I might add that as a prisoner of war in the Philippines--I taught at the University of the Philippines when Pearl Harbor was attacked--I even taught reading to the children in the Santo Tomas camp where I was interned and would have appreciated your inspiring "readership" in those grim days.

Sincerely yours

Doris Macauley
Doris Macauley (Mrs)

Dec. 7 Poignant Day For Balgat Elementary Teacher

Pearl Harbor Day, Dec. 7, was a day of poignant memories for Mrs. Doris Macauley, third grade teacher at the Balgat elementary school.

Mrs. Macauley, the wife of Thurston Macauley, TUSLOG Historian, was teaching English at the University of the Philippines in Manila at the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Also a newspaper woman and broadcaster, she had been broadcasting against the Japanese over Radio Manila, so she fled from Manila and hid out in the mountains for a year and a half. She was finally forced to surrender to the Japanese when they threatened the lives of the Filipinos who had been helping her in hiding.

For another years, she was in the Santo Tomas and Los Banos concentration camps until the latter was liberated by the 11 th Airborne Division on Feb.23,1945. The division became famous as the "Angels" by dropping behind enemy lines and rescuing some 2,000 internees at Los Banos.

Mrs. Macauley wrote of her wartime experiences in the

Mrs. Macauley

Philippines and her previous reporting for United Press of the Chinese-Japanese war in a book "Bread and Rice" published under her maiden name Doris Rubens after the war. Carlos Romulo, now Philippines Foreign Minister, wrote the introduction to Mrs. Macauley's book.

Besides Turkey, Mrs. Macauley has taught in Air Force and dependent schools in England, France, Germany, Spain and Austria. She has a B. A. from Hunter College, New York, and M. A. in Educational Psychology from Teachers College, Columbia, University. She has worked in the Bureau of Child Guidance in New York specializing in remedial reading, taught an ungraded class at Stuttgart, Germany, and remedial reading at Eastcote, England. In 1962-63 she taught English at Jefferson High, Elizabeth, N. J.

"I even taught school in the concentration camps in the Philippines," Mrs. Macauley recalled. "The students were given regular credits too. I had a remedial reading class."

Inveterate reader Reagan liked Merriwell, Tarzan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan once described himself as an "inveterate reader" and listed among his favorite books "King Arthur," "Frank Merriwell at Yale" and Edgar Rice Burroughs' Tarzan stories.

A 1977 letter from Reagan is a prize exhibit at this week's convention of the American Library Association.

"I've been an inveterate reader all my life," the future president wrote. "My idea of torture would be to find myself overnight in a room with nothing to read."

The letter was in response to the Mobile, Ala., Public Library's survey asking 100 famous people to name five books that influenced them.

Reagan didn't stop at five.

Besides "King Arthur," "Frank Merriwell at Yale" and the Tarzan tales, he listed the novels of Horatio Alger, James Fenimore Cooper and Mark Twain.

Of special pleasure to the 4,000 librarians here is your days of shop talk and stock-taking was Reagan's fond memory. "At least twice a week in Dixon, Ill., beginning at the age of 10, I would hike down to the library for books."

The librarians are pleased to have a friend in high places. Libraries are having troubles in some places these days — contending with budget squeezes in impoverished big cities and in states like Reagan's California where Proposition 13 has cut off money, and contending with self-appointed censors everywhere.

The association's Office for Intellectual Freedom reports that, nationally, attempts to censor libraries have increased from a rate of three to five a week before last November's election — when conservatives demonstrated their political muscle — to a rate of three to five a day now.

Conservatives aren't the only ones at it, reports Judith Krug, the association's censor watcher. Feminists, too, are trying to purge library shelves of materials they consider sexist.

I do not believe I can give you the advice you ask in helping you to choose a career. A career choice depends heavily upon the talents and interests that each individual brings to the world of work. March 30, 1981

Mr. Ronald Reagan
President of the United States

Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

First; allow me to congratulate you on your election to the office of the Presidency of the United States of America, with the authority and responsibility to represent all the people in this great nation. "Congratulations."

Next to buisness, Mr. President; I am a native, free born, tax paying, United States citizen. I have great need of your assistance. Please mail me a letter or supply me with a blank sheet and envelope of your personal engraved official stationery.

The reason I am requesting this of you is that I have concluded an audit with the federal IRS. During the course of that audit the IRS agent said the engraving of my personal stationery was an un-necessary expense. Therefore denied. My answer to this agent was; "It's your responsibility to go to the President of the United States and tell him to cease and desist using engraved stationery as it is an un-necessary expense." Then when this agent had that stopped; they could come to me and request that I stop engraving my stationery. But the agent was in no way to construed or believe they have the right to stop me from engraving my stationery. The agent's answer denied my deduction and my answer was; "I will see you in court."

I use my stationery to whom ever I write. The only stationery I was charging to my tax statement was the sheets used specifically for maintaining or requesting information about laws and taxes and tax records for the IRS. I wish to use your stationery for evidence in the United States District Court.

Thank you,

MEMORANDUM FOR FRED F. FIELDING

SUBJECT: Request of Polly L. Moter for use of Presidential Seal

Attached is a draft letter in response to Ms. Moter 's request to obtain a copy of the Presidential seal for use in a newsletter she writes and prepares for the Kosair-Children's Hospital/Eastern Parkway in Louisville, Kentucky. She wanted to print the seal together with a note one of the patients received from the President in response to a post-shooting get well card.

In view of her "imminent deadline," I called her after discussing the matter with Mary Lawton. Regardless of the legal restrictions on the use of the seal, no copy of the seal is available in the size and coloration that she needs. I denied her request on the latter grounds; hence the wording of the letter.

To Whom It May Concern:

I write and prepare a newsletter for Kosair-Children's Hospital/Eastern Parkway in Louisville, Ky. A past issue is enclosed.

The children at Kosair received a note from President Reagan in response to a get-well card they had sent him. I would like to reproduce his note in the newsletter and wonder if you would send me a copy of the presidential seal that could be printed on the note. As you may know, the seal on the card is raised but not colored and will not reproduce.

My deadline on the June newsletter is imminent so I would appreciate your speedy consideration of this matter. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Polly L. Moter

Better care for the children

Kosair and Children's Consolidation Becomes Effective May 1

On May 1 the consolidation of Kosair Hospital and Norton-Children's will become legally effective. Some of the immediate ramifications are:

- relief of Children's overcrowded situation,
- 24-hour pediatric coverage at Kosair,
- a redistribution of programs and services at both locations to better utilize each facility,
- administratively and organizationally, Kosair will become part of NKC, Inc., which will manage the operation of two hospitals—Kosair-Children's and Norton.

With the consolidation, planners have brought together two fine children's hospitals—a renowned, but aging, orthopedic facility and an overcrowded pediatric hospital—to create what will become one of the largest and best pediatric centers in the nation.

Both Children's and Kosair Hospitals have established traditions of quality care for youngsters. It is important to the NKC board that those reputations be maintained and that friends of the two hospitals recognize the continued and growing need for support.

According to Jack Wilson, President of Kosair Charities, studies conducted at Kosair and other specialty hospitals have shown a steady decrease in the use of hospitals that are isolated from large medical centers. Thanks to advances in medical care, the days of long-term hospital care are practically over for orthopedic pediatric patients. Children are treated and are able to return to their homes and schools much faster than in the earlier years of Kosair's operation. Because of that, the occupancy rate has dropped every year. Statistics at Kosair have shown a steady decrease in occupancy since 1957. However, there has been an increased demand for the specialty services offered there and the total number of patients treated has not declined. So the need for Kosair's expertise is still essential for "our children".

NKC President Wade Mountz stated that the consolidation of Children's and Kosair Hospitals will not mean major changes in the operation of either facility in the immediate future.

"The Corporation's Board of Directors will increase in number from 40 to 60 members, to include 20 Kosair directors, but Kosair Crippled Children Hospital will continue to operate in its present Eastern Parkway facility until construction of a new pediatric hospital is completed, probably by late 1984," said Mountz.

The long-term results of the consolidation will mean expanded health care services for the children of Kentucky and southern Indiana.

Jack Proctor, Executive Director of Fund Raising for Kosair Charities, said, "In light of the continued need for care of indigent children, rising medical costs for all patients, cuts in government funding, and the broader base of services that will be offered for sick children, funds will be needed more than ever. There will always be a Kosair and Kosair Charities to direct money to the care of children."

Wilson added, "In addition to our service in the field of hospital care, Kosair Charities Committee, Inc., will function as it always has and will continue to provide support for other programs for children. At present, for example, Kosair Charities is the largest single, local contributor to the Jefferson County Child Abuse Program. We provide space for the Department of Human Resources outpatient clinics, and we support the Kosair Scoliosis and Spine Treatment Center, the Kosair Professorship of Orthopedic Surgery at the University of Louisville, medical and surgical research, the Shrine Referral Program, and many other activities."

Maurice D. S. Johnson, Chairman of the Norton-Children's Board of Directors, looked on as Frank Hower, Jr., Chairman of the Norton-Children's negotiating committee and Jack Wilson, Chairman of the Kosair negotiating committee, congratulated one another after signing the memorandum of agreement between Norton-Children's Hospitals and Kosair Hospital.

The Hospital — An International Center

Foreign accents and interpreters are commonplace at Kosair these days. In recent months children from Greece, Nicaragua, Egypt, Vietnam, the Virgin Islands, Laos, and Ireland have been cared for and made to feel at home by the special warmth of the Kosair staff.

Douglas Stump, of St. Thomas, in the Virgin Islands, was fitted at Kosair for a below-the-knee prosthesis after a motorcycle accident.

Seven-year-old Rolla Gad (top center) came to Kosair from her home in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, for an evaluation of her physical development and a treatment program. Physical therapists like Mary Kay O'Connor find that smiles and encouragement overcome all language barriers.

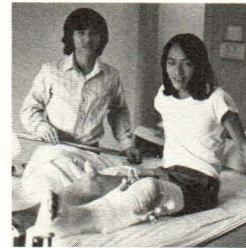

At Christmas time, Alicia Cruz (top left), Kosair's little patient from Nicaragua, had an important visitor — her mother. Employees at the American Embassy in Managua, concerned because the mother and child had been separated since May 3, coordinated the arrangements for Mrs. Cruz' trip and donated their own money to pay for the flight from Miami. The Nicaraguan government provided her transportation to and from Miami. Mrs. Cruz stayed with a Louisville family before returning to her husband and five other children.

Somphong Douangasa (bottom left) posed with his father after dental surgery at Kosair. The two-year-old Laotian boy, whose mother died in the escape from Laos to Thailand, has spent most of his life in a refugee camp.

Five years ago South Vietnamese Phong Vo (top right) was injured in a hit and run accident with a jeep driven by Communist soldiers. He said that there were no doctors in the hospital where bystanders took him because most of the physicians in South Vietnam are in concentration camps. In spite of the patching up by nurses and paramedics, he was left with pain and little use of one leg so he escaped from Vietnam to have his leg repaired and to seek freedom. Now he has both. The interpreter, Phan Dinh, is a foster brother of one of Kosair's nurses.

Evangelia Hatciparaskivas, from Greece, was treated for scoliosis by Dr. Kenton Leatherman, who has traveled to Greece as a visiting professor.

Little Irishman Johnston Combs (bottom center) became six years old on St. Patrick's Day and received new braces the next day. His family moved here from Belfast to escape the political turmoil. His mother said that, except for an occasional "cheerio" and "aye", Johnston became quite Americanized during his stay in the hospital.

Looking Well into the Future

National Hospital Week • May 10-16, 1981

"Looking Well into the Future" will be the theme of the American Hospital Association's celebration of National Hospital Week, May 10-16.

Edward Schottland, President of Kosair, said, "We think that the 1981 National Hospital Week theme fittingly describes the commitment of our hospital staff to improving the future health of our community and the children we serve. We devote our fullest resources to providing the best health care possible today. But we know that we have to look to the future to find even better ways to care as patients' and the community's needs change."

Evidence of Kosair's commitment to caring for the area's handicapped children is the consolidation with Norton-Children's Hospitals. Studies have shown that a more centralized, comprehensive children's medical complex would better serve the health needs of youngsters.

Other areas in which Kosair looks to the future are through research — especially in the Scoliosis and Spine Treatment Center; new programs; fund raising; continuing education to keep staff members up to date with new techniques, treatments, equipment, and data; and improvements in braces and artificial limbs.

Recently a cost containment program was developed so that Kosair employees could help hospital administrators "look well into the future". Each month money-saving suggestions from employees are analyzed and the originator of the most practical idea wins a day off. Last month Nurses' Aide Wilma Perkins' suggestion concerning bed linens led to a review of the use of all linens.

Health Care Trends

Predicting the future is not always possible, but planning for it is. Trends in the health care field in recent years provide indicators that help health care leaders and observers forecast hospitals' futures in the 1980's.

Did you know . . . ?

* Each year in Kentucky about 1500 children under 6 years old are injured in car accidents and 15-20 are killed. If all pre-schoolers rode in safety seats, injuries would be reduced 80% and deaths 90%.

- * Nearly 5% of live-born infants have a significant congenital malformation, birth defect, or genetic disorder. During the last several years a variety of sophisticated technologies have been developed to diagnose fetal disorders and to manage high-risk pregnancies.
- * Violence — accidents, murder, or suicide — is implicated in three out of every four deaths in the 15-24 age range.
- * Between 1950 and 1977, the mortality rate for children aged one to 14 years halved.
- * A baby born in this country today can be expected to live more than 73 years. A baby born in 1900 could be expected to live only 47 years.
- * The number of hospitals operated as multi-hospital systems will double in 1989 to encompass more than 65% of the acute-care hospital beds in the U.S. Such networks of facilities and services have been increasing to centralize both management and the use of capital.

They Work for the Children

(Editor's note: With this issue of Step Ahead we're beginning a new series on the folks at Kosair who have been chosen by their co-workers as employees of the month. We think you'll enjoy getting to know some of the many professionals who work behind the scenes for the children of Kosair.)

Employees of the Month

Jan. — Marcia Humphrey, Medical Records Clerk.

Feb. — Anna Johnston, R.N., Surgical Supervisor.

March — Beulah McKinney, Seamstress.

Marcia Humphrey

At a time when some other young mothers might start slowing down, Marcia Humphrey is gearing up. Now in her eighth month of pregnancy, she recently went from part-time to full-time in Medical Records.

She said, "When my present position opened and with the cost of living rising every day, it seemed like the perfect time to start working more."

Mrs. Humphrey started at Kosair nine years ago — first as a switchboard operator and then as the hospital's first admissions clerk. She also worked on the transcriptions desk, taking a few months off in 1979 for the birth of her twin boy and girl. After their arrival she returned part-time to Medical Records.

Marcia Humphrey

"I really like Medical Records," she said, "because of the variety of work — statistics, filing, charts, admission papers, fiscal reports. There's always something to do."

Some of the important things she transcribes are the histories and physicals, "op notes", or operative records on the patients who have had surgery, and discharge papers.

Anna Johnston

On the operating end of the "op notes" is Anna Johnston, R.N. As surgical supervisor she is in charge of the 15 people in surgery and the cast room. After 20 years in her field Mrs. Johnston said that she is addicted to her work. "I like being able to control the quality of care the patients receive in the Operating Room," she said.

Her work is important enough to her, in fact, that in 1979 she was one of the first nurses in the U.S. to receive her certificate for operating room nursing. She is also attending night classes at U of L and in December will receive her B.S. in health education.

She said that one of the highlights of her career was in 1970 when she was sent to Paris to learn about Kosair's Cotrel table for putting casts on scoliosis patients. She spent a week observing the French team and the famous Dr. Cotrel who designed the table. She asked questions through an interpreter and returned to Kosair to train what is believed to be the only Cotrel team in the U.S. Since the crinoline and the soft stockinette shirts that go under the casts are unavailable in this country, she helped design a pattern for them so they can be made at the hospital.

"I'm proud of my involvement in that project," she said, "because the Cotrel technique provides a better correction than other techniques and the casts are less bulky."

Beulah McKinney

Another participant in that experience was Beulah McKinney. She is Kosair's seamstress and helped Mrs. Johnston develop the pattern for the stockinette shirts. Now she makes them up "by the batch". As a part-time employee she also mends, makes drapes, and sews a variety of items that saves the hospital money.

Nineteen years ago when she first started at Kosair she was even responsible for making traction straps and for providing clothes for the patients. "Many of the children came in from the mountains," she said, "and they just didn't have anything to wear so church women helped me make clothes for them."

"I guess I'm just cut out to sew," said Mrs. McKinney. "Even at home, if I'm not sewing for myself, my daughter, or my 16-year-old granddaughter, I'm quilting. I just love it."

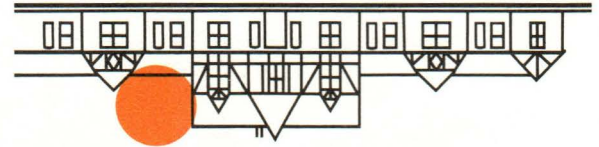

It takes many employees like Mrs. Humphrey, Mrs. Johnston, and Mrs. McKinney, who love their jobs and whose work in different areas of the hospital overlap in small but important ways, to care for the children of Kosair.

Blind Singer and Golfer to Play in Tournament

Of all the celebrities playing in the golf tournament, none could relate to the children of Kosair better than Tom Sullivan. Blind since birth, Sullivan has overcome what he calls his "inconvenience" to become a singer, composer, arranger, actor, and athlete.

He rowed in the 1967 Henley Regatta, won a place on the 1968 U.S. Olympic wrestling team, plays basketball, swims, rides horses and motorcycles, runs eight miles a day, has made 37 skydives and is a fanatic golfer who shoots in the low 90's. Sullivan's golf pro and constant companion, David Foran, helps him on the course by positioning him and describing the holes.

He had hoped to play in the 1980 Foster Brooks Tournament but was unable to break a previously scheduled singing engagement. He expressed particular disappointment at not being on hand to visit with the children at Kosair.

Blindness Not A Handicap

When asked by a reporter for Golf Magazine if he considers himself handicapped, he said, "No, I'm merely inconvenienced. We label too much as we travel through life. People refer to the blind as handicapped, but what about the person who is shy or fat or worried about growing old or troubled about being inept in some important area of living?"

"Those handicaps can be more troublesome than blindness because people do not take such shortcomings into account, whereas they make all kinds of allowances for the blind. But classify a handicap as an inconvenience and it becomes only one tiny factor in the total person."

As a musician, Sullivan performs in nightclubs and on television; has arranged scores for Ray Charles, Aretha Franklin, and Lou Rawls; and dreams of becoming a top executive of a major record company.

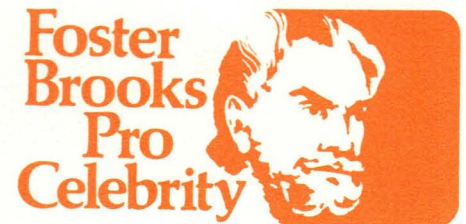

At 33 he has written two books about his own life — Adventures in Darkness and If You Could See What I Hear, soon to be released as a movie. He lives with his wife and two children in Palos Verdes, California.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

June 11, 1981

Dear Mr. Bowman:

Your letter of May 20, 1981 has been referred to this office for appropriate response on behalf of the President. Please be assured that the White House is not attempting to deny you access to any materials which are generally available to the public. However, you should note that the President's personal stationary, is the private property of Mr. Reagan and is not paid for with appropriated funds. Additionally, the President does not take a tax deduction for the cost of his personal stationary.

I trust that the above will satisfy your inquiry.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. President:

Attached is a copy of the response from Mr. Fred Fielding, Counsel to the President, that I received to my letter to you dated March 30, 1981. (Item No. 1). I suggest that you have a closer look at the abilities of your counsel, Mr. Fielding. The reasons are:

- Copy To:* →
1. I am a free born United States citizen. My birth right makes me a part owner of the United States government.
 2. The Federal government, including the Office of the President, are servants to the citizens of the United States.
 3. On March 30, 1981, I sent a certified letter to the Office of the President requesting of him some evidence (a sample of his stationery) that I need to use in a court of law of the United States. My letter makes an official citizen's legal request for use of public property that is in the care and trust of the President's office.
 4. My letter to you, dated March 30, 1981, listed the options to the Office of the President of the United States. Please see the attached copy. (Item No. 2)
 - A. First Option: This was addressed to the man in the office.
Quote: "Please mail me a letter, etc."

Statement: There are two acceptable methods to collect legal evidence under the United States Constitution. One is to simply ask for it as gentlemen do. The second method is to wait until I go to court and then take the evidence through the power of the subpoena. Out of the high respect for the Office of the Presidency, I elected to use the gentlemen's method.

20 May 1981

Allow me, the citizen, to offer you some counsel, since your official counsel is not looking out for the integrity of the Office of the Presidency of the United States. For an impartial letter you could just simply state the facts truthfully. (a) Yes, my official personal stationery is engraved, or (b) No, my official personal stationery is not engraved.

- B. Second Option: This option is also impartial. Refer to Item No. 2 from the attached letter. Quote: " Supply me with a blank sheet and envelope of your personal engraved, official stationery." Note: The blank sheet and the envelope could be marked as follows: This sample stationery is to be used for evidence purposes only. Thus the impartial intent would not be misconstrued, nor would the official stationery be misused. We will be dealing only with facts. Note: Truthful facts are impartial.

Statement: Your counsel's answer (Item No. 1) does not address the above stated two issues. Your counsel is only putting out smoke in his effort to side step the issues in your name. This type of action and attitudes toward the taxpaying, voting, United States citizens, does not dignify the man in the office of the Presidency of the United States.

Conclusion: Now, let us put this plain and simple. Will you please supply me with the requested sheet of official stationery and envelope, as requested in my previous letter to you? Or, is the Office of the President going to go on record for it's intention to suppress my request for stationery to be used as evidence?

Thank you,

William F. Bowman

March 30, 1981

Mr. Ronald Reagan
President of the United States
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

First; allow me to congratulate you on your election to the office of the Presidency of the United States of America, with the authority and responsibility to represent all the people in this great nation. "Congratulations."

Next to buisness, Mr. President; I am a native, free born, tax paying, United States citizen. I have great need of your assistance. Please mail me a letter or supply me with a blank sheet and envelope of your personal engraved official stationery.

The reason I am requesting this of you is that I have concluded an audit with the federal IRS. During the course of that audit the IRS agent said the engraving of my personal stationery was an un-necessary expense. Therefore denied. My answer to this agent was; "It's your responsibility to go to the President of the United States and tell him to cease and desist using engraved stationery as it is an un-necessary expense." Then when this agent had that stopped; they could come to me and request that I stop engraving my stationery. But the agent was in no way to construed or believe they have the right to stop me from engraving my stationery. The agent's answer denied my deduction and my answer was; "I will see you in court."

I use my stationery to whom ever I write. The only stationery I was charging to my tax statement was the sheets used specifically for maintaining or requesting information about laws and taxes and tax records for the IRS. I wish to use your stationery for evidence in the United States District Court.

Thank you,

Dear Mr. President:

For the past ten years we have, each year, held a celebrity golf tournament in honor of the late Vince Lombardi. Every cent of the proceeds, other than food and a few basic requirements, goes directly to the Vince Lombardi Cancer Clinic located at the Milwaukee County General Hospital.

To date we have raised just under one-half million dollars for this charity. Our goal this year is $100,000, which we are quite confident of meeting.

I am enclosing together with this letter several brochures that more clearly tell the entire story of the tournament. You may note that we have been honored with celebrity players such as former President Ford, Bob Hope, Fred MacMurray and many more, but the entire tournament is successful because of the many, many people who contribute their time and talents with no reward other than that of helping fight cancer.

My reason for writing to you is to request that, on this the tenth anniversary of the tournament, you might honor the tournament by presenting the proceeds of this year's tournament to Mrs. Marie Lombardi and Dr. Robert Condon, Director of the Vince Lombardi Cancer Clinic. A most appropriate place that we might suggest would be in the beautiful Rose Garden at the White House.

The tournament dates this year are June 19 and 20th, and the proceeds would be available for presentation any time at your convenience between July 15th and August 20th.

While we sincerely would be most honored by your participation, we certainly would be delighted to have Mrs. Reagan or the Vice President make the presentation in the event your schedule would preclude your participation.

Please accept my deepest thanks for any consideration you may give this request.

May God continue to bless you in everything you do.

Sincerely,

Donald W. Tendick, Sr.

Congressman Claude Pepper has written to the White House and asked the President if it might be possible for you to receive a replica of the Medal of Honor that was presented to Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy and her family.

Unfortunately, this is not possible, but I have enclosed two photographs that were taken during this ceremony. I hope that you will enjoy having them as special mementoes for the major part you played in having this honor bestowed in memory of Senator Kennedy.

Dear Mr. President:

Friday, a week ago, you bestowed upon Mrs. Robert Kennedy a gold medal in honor of the great public service of her late husband. Unfortunately, I had to be in Miami that day and was not able to attend this very moving ceremony. I was the author of the legislation, HR 8389, which authorized the preparation and the presentation of this gold medal to Mrs. Kennedy. But the man who really deserves the credit for it is the man who induced me to introduce this legislation, Mr. Joe Blumenthal, of 7920 West Drive, North Bay Village, Florida 33141, one of my constituents; and if it were possible and appropriate for some replica of this medal or some kind of a souvenir of the event to be given to Mr. Blumenthal, he would be profoundly grateful and so would I.

Respectfully yours,

Mrs. Nancy Reagan
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mrs. Reagan:

As you will note from the attached, I have written the President earlier in regard to a "new recipe". Since I haven't had a reply as yet, I am taking the liberty of contacting you in parallel, in the hope of obtaining your support for the proposed visit.

I had the good fortune of meeting Mrs. Bloomingdale on her flight to Washington to join you in the recent trip for the Royal Wedding. She offered to mention my salad as well as my idea for the visit to you, and I have been hoping that she did. In any case, with your possible enthusiasm, and the President's apparent interest in new ideas, I would like to think that I may get the chance to meet briefly and discuss new salad and new science.

I would very much appreciate your assistance, and look forward to meeting you.

Very sincerely,

Harry A. Taylor, Jr.

The Washington Star's

'81 Cookbook:

Part I

bread salads desserts

oting covered dishes, salad bowls and freshly-baked goodies, 18 local super-cooks arrived at The Washington Star on the second Saturday in June to show off their culinary talents. The occasion was the final stage of the '81 Cookbook contest in which we asked readers to submit their favorite recipes in six categories — appetizers, salads, main dishes, side dishes, breads and desserts. More than 1,500 entries poured in from Fredericksburg to Gaithersburg. And eventually, three finalists were chosen in each category to prepare their winning entries for our panel of judges — Star restaurant critic John Rosson, Big Cheese owner Barbara Witt and Star food columnist Lisa Yockelson. After sampling selections from "Spanish-Style Artichoke Fondue" to "Fantastic Lemon Cake," the judges voted NASA scientist Harry Taylor's "Aloha Caesar Salad" out of this world, and awarded him the grand prize of a $250 shopping expedition at his favorite supermarkt. "I use an analytical approach to my cooking," said Taylor when asked about his trade secrets. The chef's winning concoction appears on this page, and other tasty treats from the bread, salad and dessert categories are included in this issue. Because of the overwhelming response to our contest, we regret that many of the recipes we received could not be printed here. In fact, we have had to save the appetizers, main dishes and side dishes for an '81 Cookbook: Part II that will appear July 26th. Until then, happy cooking and bon appetit!

Preparing for the judging, grand prize winner Harry Taylor, Jr. puts finishing touches on his Aloha Salad.

Mr. Max L. Friedersdorf
Assistant to the President for Legislative Affairs
The White House
Washington, D. C. 20500

Dear Max:

Enclosed is a letter to the President from one of my constituents, Harry A. Taylor, Jr., which he has asked me to forward.

Mr. Taylor is a scientist at the Goddard Space Center and is quite proud of his culinary achievement. Some of my staff members are trying out the salad recipe and I hope to conduct a "taste test" of my own soon.

An appropriate acknowledgement to Mr. Taylor would be appreciated.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Charles McC. Mathias, Jr.
United States Senator

Dear Mr. President:

I have just been watching the TV coverage of the House arguments on your tax plan, and was impressed by how passionately some argued against "trying a new recipe". Fortunately, fresh realism seems to be prevailing, thanks to the efforts of your administration. Considering this success in the Congress, I hope that my letter finds you with a very positive and hopefully receptive outlook.

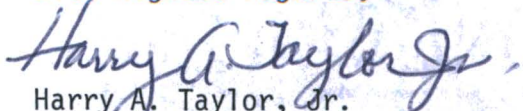

As described in the enclosed article from the Washington Star of 21 June, I had the good fortune to win first prize in the Star sponsored cooking contest. My recipe, Aloha Ceasar Salad, is a polynesian twist on the familiar Ceasar version.

In judging the contest finalists, John Rosson, the long time "Dining Out" columnist of the Star remarked to George Hoyt his publisher that the salad was very distinctive, and deserving of being served at the White House. Reflecting on this and recalling that I had been moved to support your campaign on several occasions (a first for me!), I am presuming to ask that you might reciprocate. It would be a delightful privilege for me to be able to introduce you and Mrs Reagan to my salad.

I would, of course also enjoy the opportunity to comment on how the approach to a new recipe can apply to most problems, not the least some of the objectives of the Space Program. Our current studies of Venus point toward exciting new possibilities for understanding our Earth environment, and our approach to such discoveries involves synergistic techniques analagous to the development of any "new recipe".

I would be deeply grateful for the opportunity to meet you, and I look forward to your consideration and response.

With highest regards,

Harry A. Taylor, Jr.
