Scope and Content Note

The material within the Cabinet Affairs office records is predominantly from the first administration. After Craig Fuller left Cabinet Affairs to become the Chief of Staff for Vice President Bush in early 1985, the office underwent a structural change. Alfred Kingon became the Cabinet Secretary with a small staff and the Office staff – already small – was reduced even further.

In addition, the Cabinet Council structure was changed by new Chief of Staff Donald Regan to just two – the Domestic Policy Council and the Economic Policy Council. This required much less tracking and coordination by Cabinet Affairs staff. Nancy Risque took over the post of Cabinet Secretary in March 1987 and the staff was reduced even further. Material for this time period is concentrated in staff collections rather than the office.

This collection is arranged into eight series.
