Biography

Biography

In August 1982, Dee Jepsen took over the Public Liaison women's portfolio vacated by Wendy Borchardt. Jepsen resigned in October 1983 to devote more time to the 1984 re-election campaign of her husband, Sen. Robert Jepsen (R-Iowa).

As the 1982 and 1984 elections approached, polls indicated that the "gender gap" from the 1980 Presidential campaign still existed. Women remained less likely than men to support Ronald Reagan on a wide range of issues, including war and peace matters, economic policy, and "women's issues" such as the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion. To help counteract this trend, several Public Liaison staff people (Jepsen, Judi Buckalew, Mary Jo Jacobi, Mary Elizabeth Quint, etc.) worked on outreach to women, as their chief task or a secondary task, in the 1982-1984 time period.
