Biography

Biography

Adis Vila was born in Cuba and immigrated to the United States when she was 8 years old. She attended Rollins College in Orlando Florida on a full scholarship.

Prior to joining the White House staff, Ms. Vila was an attorney in Miami, Florida with the law firm of Paul and Thomason.

Starting in 1982, she began her career of government service as a White House Fellow. She was later appointed to positions in the U.S. Department of State and Commerce and the White House by Ronald Reagan.

Vila was named the Assistant Secretary for Administration at the U.S. Department of Agriculture by George H.W. Bush and served as Secretary of Florida's Department of Administration under Governor Bob Martinez.

In 2013, she retired as the first Chief Diversity Officer for the U.S. Air Force. As of 2019 she runs a consultancy business in Miami, Florida.

Scope and Content Note

Scope and Content Note

Adis Vila was a White House Fellow in 1982-1983 assigned to the Office of Public Liaison and reporting to Elizabeth Dole and Faith Whittlesey. Her responsibilities centered on America's youth and leading a White House effort to reach out to young Americans and the youth national organizations. Because of her Latina (Cuban) heritage, she also worked with Cathi Villalpando in Hispanic outreach work.
