Biography

Office Description

The three member Council of Economic Advisers (CEA) was established by the Employment Act of 1946. The CEA's Sole function is to "advise and assist the President." The CEA is also charged with preparing the annual Economic Report of the President. Over time, the CEA has become the chief economic forecasting unit for the presidential administrations.

The Council maintains a professional staff of economists to assist in fulfilling these functions for the President and the Administration. At the start of the Reagan Administration the staff consisted of ten senior economists, 2 mid-level economists and 5 junior economists.

These economists are usually academic economists hired on leaves of absence from universities or other institutions for one-year terms. Because they are academics, their year generally runs from summer to summer. The mid-level and junior economists generally do not have their Ph.D. completed. Each one is assigned a specific area of expertise.

The Library has arranged this collection into 103 series. The series represent each individual staff economist who has identified work product within our collections. Not each economist who worked at the Council is represented. Full lists of the Council of Economic Advisers staff can be found in the Economic Report to the President, written by the CEA and presented each year to the President.
