Biography

Office Description

The White House Office of Records Management (WHORM) is the central record keeping unit within the White House Office. The Office of Records Management maintained the basic filing systems resulting in the major collections held at the Reagan Library: Alphabetical (Name) File, Subject File, Bulk Mail Sample, President's Handwriting File, Staff and Office Files and the Storage Information and Retrieval System (STAIRS) automated IBM database and search system.

As material was retired, the Office made determinations about its filing status and entered information about the material into the STAIRS system if necessary. The STAIRS system contains online descriptions of the WHORM Subject File case files, a small amount of information regarding Alphabetical file information, box information and folder lists for White House Staff and Office material, a database for gifts, an online version of the Presidential Diary and a database for White House audio-visual materials. Retired material was stored at the White House and most material was eventually moved to the Presidential Materials storage at the National Archives. The office provided reference and retrieval for all the materials stored locally or at the Presidential Materials storage at the National Archives. On average, the Office received about 50,000 pages weekly for storage and 150-200 reference requests regarding stored material.

The storage of material and the reference and retrieval services of this office were generally known as White House Central Files in previous administrations. References to this older name are seen within these records. During the Reagan Administration, the name was used for the storage area for retired records only.

Since the White House Office of Records Management is one of the “permanent” staff offices at the White House, the documentation of their work is maintained at the White House. The Library has a relatively small amount of material generated regarding the records management work conducted during the Reagan Administration and it is mostly from the second administration. In addition to record-keeping practices, WHORM also conducted exit interviews with staff members leaving the White House. The Library maintains these interviews in a separate collection: White House Office of Records Management (WHORM): Exit Interviews.

Scope and Content Note

Scope Note

The White House Office of Records Management collection consists of three series: SERIES I: Subject File; SERIES II: Document Requests Regarding Nofziger/Meese Investigation; and SERIES III: Publications. Series III contains three subseries.

Series List

SERIES I: SUBJECT FILE

This series consists of material documenting the WHORM Subject File and application of subject classifications; a copy of the White House Staff Manual; a copy of the White House Telephone Book; copies of original box inventories filed by office and by the date the box number was generated; formal statements on transfer of staff material to Records Management and lists of White House personnel, noting White House and detailees for 1984-1989. The series is arranged alphabetically by folder title.

SERIES II: DOCUMENT REQUESTS REGARDING NOFZIER/MEESE INVESTIGATION

This series contains material relating to the White House Office of Records Management efforts to locate Reagan Administration documents in its custody that were responsive to the Independent Counsel investigation involving the Wedtech Corporation, Franklyn (Lyn) Nofziger, and Edwin Meese III. White House Counsel staff attorney Peter Keisler worked with WHORM Director Terry W. Good, and the Department of Justice, to locate and review relevant documents.

Most of this series consists of search printouts from STAIRS. All of the databases maintained at the White House were searched for relevant documents or folders responsive to the Independent Counsel's requests.

Mr. Keisler and Justice Department staff examined the STAIRS search printouts produced for the investigation. They used self-stick notes ("Post-It Notes") and handwritten marks to flag printouts describing possibly relevant records that required direct examination. Keisler and Good pulled the records marked on the printouts, leaving pink charge-out cards in their place. If the Justice Department decided that some pulled records were indeed relevant, two photocopies were made, one for the Justice Department and one for Mr. Keisler.

In addition to STAIRS printouts, this collection contains most of the used charge-out cards, notes and memos on searches for relevant records, reference lists of White House staff members, and memos and handwritten lists that describe generally the contents of boxes in WHORM custody.

For related material to this series, see also SERIES IV: Investigations of the Peter D. Keisler collection, and SERIES VI: Lyn Nofziger/Wedtech/Edwin Meese investigation within the Counsel to the President, White House Office of: Investigations: Records.

SUBSERIES A: Publications from the Office of Rhett Dawson

SUBSERIES B: Publications from Various Staff Members and Offices

The first five items are from Subseries B: Publications from Various Staff Members and Offices and the final two items are from Subseries A: Publications from the Office of Rhett Dawson. SERIES III: PUBLICATIONS, 1981-1989

This series consists of publications transferred to the White House Office of Records Management by various White House staff members and offices. It contains three subseries: Subseries A: Publications from the Office of Rhett Dawson; Subseries B: Publications from Various Staff Members and Offices; Subseries C: Congressional Quarterly & National Journal Publications.

All of the publications within this series appear to have been items collected by the Records Management staff from various offices and also appear to have been publications from the end of the tenure of a particular staff person. The most numerous or noted staff members for the material include James Baker, Kenneth Barun, Pat Buchanan, Patricia Bryant, the Drug Abuse Policy Office, Kenneth Duberstein, Fred Fielding, Edwin Gray, Ann Higgins, Al Kingon, Lee Verstandig, Roger Porter, Robert Reilly, Jack Svahn, Helene Von Damm, and Richard Williamson. Some of the material was originally placed in the White House Office of Records Management Subject File PU (Publications) and the Library has transferred this material to this series. Additionally there was a large number of publications belonging to Craig Fuller. This material was transferred to his collection since he already had a publications series. The Library also transferred the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents, 1982 to our journal collection. Bulky publications have been transferred to the book collection. Transfer information can be found within the series. The first two subseries are arranged alphabetically by folder/publication title and the third subseries is arranged chronologically.
