Biography

Office Description

Mail Analysis was one of the major functions in the Correspondence Office. This unit analyzed the content of all incoming correspondence to determine counts on subject matter, support or complaints received via the mail. Analysts also assigned response form letters (known as ROBO letters) depending on the incoming subject, or transferred material for response from an agency, and/or needs for a Presidential message or a special response letter. The outgoing Robo letters are contained within the Office of Correspondence records as part of Series I-IV.

This office was supervised by Lillie Bell for the entire term of the Reagan administration. We have assigned most of the material concerning this function to this office. The Library also has a small collection for Bell.
